Reading · The Giant Scarf Project

For the past three weeks, our craft club has been knitting a giant scarf for the statue outside the library. The librarian has been helping us choose colours, and local families have been donating spare wool. We haven't been working every day; we meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. The scarf is nearly four metres long now. Have we been measuring it carefully? Yes, because the statue has unusually broad shoulders. My brother has been counting the stripes and recording their colours in a notebook. He hasn't been knitting, but his record prevents arguments about the pattern. Yesterday a visitor asked about the enormous scarf. We explained our winter display project. The statue is made of stone and doesn't feel cold, but the bright scarf is giving the grey square a warmer appearance.

Listening · Noise Above the Cafe

Owner: Have you been moving furniture upstairs, Leyla? Our customers keep looking at the ceiling.
Leyla: No, I haven't. I've been practising a dance for the college show.
Owner: Have you been jumping near the window?
Leyla: Yes, I have. I've been repeating that part for half an hour. Is it very loud?
Owner: The cups have been shaking a little. One customer thinks we have a musical dishwasher.
Leyla: I'm sorry. My partner hasn't been coming this week, so I've been practising alone and losing track of time.
Owner: You can use the back room after three. It has a concrete floor.
Leyla: Thank you. I'll move my practice there. I haven't been trying to disturb anyone.
Owner: I know. Your dancing is welcome; flying teaspoons are a little harder to serve.

Thank you for offering the back room after three. I'll practise there because it has a concrete floor. Your customers need a peaceful drink, and I need a safe place to dance.

Reading · A Map of Every Tree

Our ecology group has been mapping the trees around the school. We have counted forty-two trees, but we haven't finished the whole site. How long have we been working? Since the beginning of this month. Our teacher had prepared a rough map before our first survey, so we knew where to start. We have been adding names and measurements to it. Dilshod has drawn twelve tiny tree symbols, and I have checked their positions. Have we been using an expensive device? No, we haven't. A tape measure and a notebook are enough for this stage. Yesterday we found an apple tree behind the kitchen. The cook had planted it years before our project began. It now produces small green apples. Our map has gained a new symbol, and our team has gained a potential snack location.

Listening · A Difficult Model Bridge

Tutor: What have you been building, Bek?
Bek: A model bridge from wooden sticks. I've been testing different shapes all afternoon.
Tutor: How many versions have you made?
Bek: Three. The first two collapsed, but this one holds a small book.
Tutor: Had you drawn a plan before you started?
Bek: Yes. I had copied a simple triangle design into my notebook before the lesson.
Tutor: Have you been using the same glue each time?
Bek: Yes, I have. I've changed the arrangement, not the glue.
Tutor: What has your partner done?
Bek: She has recorded the weight of each test object. She had brought a kitchen scale before we began.
Tutor: Excellent. Your bridge looks promising.
Bek: Thank you. The first one was better as a pile of sticks, but the third one finally understands its job.

Mezon: Uch variant, kitob va tarozi dalillarini saqlaydi. · Jarayon, natija va boshlanishdan oldingi reja uchun uch zamonni tanlaydi. · 80–110 so'z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I have been building a model bridge from wooden sticks all afternoon. I have made three versions. The first two collapsed, but the third one holds a small book. Before the lesson, I had copied a triangle design into my notebook. I have been testing different arrangements with the same glue. My partner has recorded the weight of every test object. She had brought a kitchen scale before we began. Our final bridge is still small, but it works. We have learned that the shape matters as much as the materials.

Reading · The Empty Cake Stand

When guests arrived for our club anniversary, the cake stand was empty. Had the baker forgotten our order? No, she hadn't. She had delivered the cake to the reception desk at noon. Why hadn't anyone carried it into the hall? The receptionist had left a note for the afternoon volunteer, but he hadn't seen it. He had put a large flower arrangement on top of the paper. Meanwhile, the kitchen team had placed the cake in a cool cupboard for safety. Nobody had told the host about that final move. We searched the building for ten minutes before the cook opened the cupboard. The cake was perfect, and the candles were beside it. The host thanked everyone and placed the flowers somewhere else. Our anniversary celebration finally began with excellent cake and a lesson about visible messages.

Listening · Before the Weather Balloon Launch

Leader: Why did we delay the balloon launch yesterday?
Student: We hadn't checked the wind direction before we carried the balloon outside.
Leader: Had you attached the camera?
Student: Yes, we had. But we hadn't switched it on.
Leader: What had the other team prepared?
Student: They had prepared the tracking phone and written the emergency contact number on the box.
Leader: Had anyone tested the battery?
Student: No, nobody had. We checked it during the delay, and it was nearly empty.
Leader: So the delay helped us.
Student: Definitely. We changed the battery and checked everything again. The balloon rose at eleven instead of ten.
Leader: Did the camera work?
Student: Yes. The first picture showed your nose because you were looking straight into it. The later pictures showed the fields, which was our actual aim.

The other team had prepared the tracking phone and written the emergency contact number on the box. Had anyone tested the battery? No, nobody had, and it was nearly empty. Reading · The Painter's Blue Hands

When I visited my neighbour's workshop yesterday, her hands were blue and the floor was covered with newspaper. She had been painting a wooden cupboard for three hours. She hadn't been using gloves because she couldn't find a pair small enough for her hands. Had she finished the whole cupboard? No, she hadn't. She had painted the doors, but the sides were still brown. Before I arrived, she had moved the shelves into the garden. Then the wind became stronger, so we carried them inside together. Her dog watched from the doorway and kept a careful distance from the paint. We put a clean sheet under the shelves and made tea. By then, my hands were blue too. The cupboard had gained colour, and I had gained an unexpected afternoon project.

Listening · A Late Science Team

Teacher: Your team looked tired when you arrived. What happened?
Student: We had been searching for our display box for forty minutes. We hadn't been sitting in traffic, as everyone thought.
Teacher: Had you left the box at home?
Student: No, we hadn't. We had put it in our minibus before breakfast. Another group moved it behind their costumes.
Teacher: So you found it on the bus?
Student: Yes. We had checked the classroom first, then returned to the car park.
Teacher: Was your experiment safe?
Student: Yes. We had packed the bottles carefully. We hadn't been carrying any dangerous materials, only water and food colouring.
Teacher: Good. Your blue volcano attracted a lot of attention.
Student: It did. After all that searching, our volcano finally had its dramatic moment. Fortunately, nobody needed to search for a mop afterwards.

Reading · The Quiet Rehearsal

Our drama teacher found six students asleep on chairs after lunch. Had they been avoiding rehearsal? No, they hadn't. They had been rehearsing a difficult scene since nine that morning. By lunchtime they had performed it eleven times. The teacher had stepped out to collect the costumes, and the group had agreed on a ten-minute break. Why had they been repeating the same scene? The timing of a door slam was wrong. Each time the detective announced an important discovery, the door closed too early and covered his words. The students had finally solved the problem before their break. They had placed a soft stopper near the hinge. When the teacher returned, the room was peaceful. The dramatic mystery was ready, but its detectives needed a little ordinary sleep before solving another imaginary crime.

Listening · Why Were the Shoes So Muddy?

Parent: Had you been playing football before dinner, Hasan?
Hasan: No, I hadn't. I had been helping at the community garden.
Parent: How long had you been working there when the rain started?
Hasan: For about an hour. We had planted eight young trees by then.
Parent: Had everyone been digging?
Hasan: No, they hadn't. Two volunteers had been carrying water, and another had been writing labels.
Parent: What had you finished before coming home?
Hasan: We had covered all the roots with soil and collected the tools. Then the rain became heavy.
Parent: That explains your shoes.
Hasan: Yes. They look like two small gardens now. I hadn't noticed the mud until I reached our front door.
Parent: Please leave them outside. Our hallway already has a plant, and it doesn't need two muddy neighbours.

Reading · A Telescope Ready at Last

Our astronomy club has been restoring an old telescope for a month. We have cleaned the lenses and replaced a damaged screw. Last Friday, however, the first test failed. We had been adjusting the stand for nearly an hour when the teacher noticed a loose joint. We hadn't tightened it properly, so the image shook whenever someone touched the table. After we fixed the joint, the telescope worked. We had expected a serious problem, but the solution was small. Since that evening, we have observed the moon twice. I have been keeping a record of our observations in a notebook. The first page contains a drawing of the moon; the second contains a large reminder about screws. Scientific discoveries are exciting, but sometimes they begin with ordinary checking and a very small tool.

Listening · The Costume Return

Manager: Have you checked the costumes after yesterday's show?
Assistant: Yes. I've counted twenty jackets and nineteen hats. I've been looking for the last hat since breakfast.
Manager: Where had the actors left their clothes?
Assistant: They had placed everything on the back table before leaving. But one actor had been wearing his hat during the final song and forgot to remove it.
Manager: Had he gone home with it?
Assistant: Yes, he had. He called this morning. His little sister has been using it as a bed for her toy rabbit.
Manager: Will he return it today?
Assistant: He's bringing it at four. He has already cleaned it.
Manager: Good. Have you finished the repair list?
Assistant: Not yet. I've been checking buttons too. Two jackets need small repairs, but our rabbit hotel is apparently in excellent condition.

Mezon: Sanash, yo‘q shlyapa sababi va soat to‘rtdagi qaytarishni kiritadi. · O‘tgan sabab uchun Past Perfect, hozirgi qidiruv uchun Perfect Continuous ishlatadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Our class has been measuring the roof garden temperature for a month. We have collected twenty readings, but two are unusable. On Tuesday, the thermometer showed an unusually high number. Before taking that reading, someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe. We had been using the same shaded corner for three weeks, so the change of position mattered. We marked Tuesday's result as unreliable instead of deleting it without explanation. Today we have moved the thermometer back. Our report isn't finished yet. We have been checking the notes against photographs, and we will explain why two readings cannot support our conclusion. A long table is less useful than a trustworthy one.

h-13-1 · Why was Tuesday's high reading unreliable?

Ustoz kaliti: The thermometer had been left beside a warm ventilation pipe.

Dalil: someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe.

h-13-2 · How many readings are usable?

Ustoz kaliti: 18: twenty collected, two unusable.

Dalil: We have collected twenty readings, but two are unusable.

h-13-3 · Order: high reading; usual shaded position; placement by pipe; return to usual position.

Ustoz kaliti: Usual shaded position → placement by pipe → high reading → return.

Dalil: We had been using the same shaded corner for three weeks / Before taking that reading, someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe. / Today we have moved the thermometer back.

h-13-4 · Why keep a labelled unreliable result in the record?

Ustoz kaliti: It makes the exclusion transparent rather than hiding an inconvenient result.

Dalil: We marked Tuesday's result as unreliable instead of deleting it without explanation.

Reading · Two Routes to the River

Our walking club tested two routes to the river on Sunday. The hill route is shorter than the canal route, but it is steeper and more tiring. It took us thirty minutes. The canal route took forty minutes, although the path is flatter and easier for beginners. My uncle prefers the hill because the view is better from the top. My aunt prefers the canal because the benches are more comfortable and the traffic noise is lower. We carried the same small backpack on both walks, so our comparison was fair. Near the canal, a duck followed us for several metres. It seemed more interested in our sandwiches than in our research. Next week we are taking new members along the canal. A longer walk with comfortable breaks is more suitable for that group.

Listening · Choosing a Workshop Chair

Buyer: I'm choosing between these two chairs for my sewing room.
Seller: The wooden chair is cheaper, but the padded one is more comfortable during long sessions.
Buyer: My room is small. Which chair is narrower?
Seller: The wooden one. It fits under this desk easily. The padded chair is wider because of its arms.
Buyer: Is the wooden chair lighter too?
Seller: Yes, by two kilograms. It's easier to move when you clean the floor.
Buyer: The padded seat feels better, though. I work for several hours at a time.
Seller: You could add a cushion to the wooden chair.
Buyer: That's a useful compromise. My cat already thinks every cushion belongs to her.
Seller: Then a removable cushion is safer. You can keep it in the cupboard between sewing sessions and avoid a daily argument about ownership.

Speaking

Ikki yo‘lni 90 soniyada taqqoslab, yangi a’zolar uchun tanlov qiling.

Mezon: Vaqt va qulaylikdan ikkita dalil keltiradi. · Qisqa, uzun va irregular sifat bilan uch comparative ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Tikuv xonasi uchun stul tanlovini 80–110 so‘zda asoslang.

Mezon: Tor xona va uzoq ishlash ehtiyojini hisobga oladi. · Kamida uch comparative va aniq tavsiya yozadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I prefer the wooden chair for my sewing room because it is narrower and cheaper than the padded one. It fits under the desk, and it is two kilograms lighter, so moving it during cleaning is easier. The padded chair is more comfortable, which matters during long sewing sessions. However, a removable cushion gives the wooden chair a softer seat without making it wider. I will keep the cushion in the cupboard between sessions because my cat likes every soft seat. This choice balances the size of my room with my comfort.

Reading · The Lunchbox Test

Three students brought lunchboxes for our design club's practical test. The steel box was the heaviest and the most expensive. The blue plastic box was the lightest, while the cloth lunch bag was the cheapest. We placed the same sandwich and apple inside each one. The steel box kept the sandwich in the best condition because its lid closed firmly. The plastic box was as easy to clean as the steel one, but it wasn't as strong. The cloth bag was the easiest to carry, although the apple rolled against the sandwich and flattened one corner. Our teacher didn't name a single winner. The best choice depends on the journey and the food. For my short walk, the light blue box is enough. For my brother's cycling trip, the stronger steel box makes more sense.

Listening · Three Places to Rehearse

Singer: We have three possible rehearsal rooms. The school hall is the largest.
Guitarist: Is it also the most expensive?
Singer: No. The studio costs the most. It has the best sound equipment, though.
Guitarist: What about the community room?
Singer: It's the cheapest, and it's as close to the bus stop as the studio.
Guitarist: Is it as quiet?
Singer: No, it isn't as quiet as the studio. A chess club meets next door, and the players sometimes argue surprisingly loudly.
Guitarist: The school hall has terrible echoes. Our quiet song sounds like a football announcement there.
Singer: Agreed. The studio is the best place for recording, but we only need to practise tonight.
Guitarist: Then let's use the community room. We can practise before the chess match starts and leave the dramatic arguments to the experts.

Speaking

Uch tushlik idishini 90 soniyada baholang; sherik sayohat turini aytsin.

Mezon: Og‘irlik, narx va himoyani aniq farqlaydi. · Ikki superlative va bir as…as/not as…as ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Guruhga bugungi repetitsiya joyi haqida 80–110 so‘zli tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: Uch xona xususiyatlari va shaxmatdan oldingi vaqtni kiritadi. · Superlative va tenglik/ teng emaslik taqqoslashini ishlatadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

For tonight's rehearsal, I recommend the community room. It is the cheapest option and is as close to the bus stop as the studio. It isn't as quiet as the studio because a chess club meets next door, but we can practise before their match begins. The school hall is the largest room, yet its echoes are a problem for our quiet song. The studio has the best sound equipment and is the most expensive. We should save it for recording. Tonight we need a practical place to practise together.

Reading · The Parcel-Packing Trial

Our school shop compared two ways of packing books for delivery. The first group used loose paper and ordinary tape. The second group used folded cardboard corners. Both groups had some small boxes, but there weren't any large ones. The second group worked more slowly at first because the folds needed care. After ten minutes, they packed books much faster than before. Their parcels also survived our gentle shaking test more successfully. The first group finished a bit earlier, but some books moved inside the boxes. We didn't find any damaged covers, although the movement was worrying. Our shop leader suggested another practice round before choosing a method. Fast packing is useful, but books need to arrive safely. The cardboard corners looked rather like tiny hats, so we called the trial 'Fashion Week for Novels'.

Listening · Learning a New Keyboard

Instructor: Are you typing more comfortably on the new keyboard?
Student: Yes. I make fewer mistakes, but I still type a bit more slowly than on my old one.
Instructor: Have you tried any short practice exercises?
Student: I've done some from our course page. The number keys are much easier to reach now.
Instructor: Good. Read the text more carefully before each attempt. Accuracy improves before speed for some learners.
Student: My brother types far faster than I do, but he doesn't check his messages.
Instructor: Then his speed isn't the whole story.
Student: Exactly. Yesterday he invited our aunt to a 'family onion' instead of a family reunion.
Instructor: A memorable invitation! Do you have any questions about the settings?
Student: Just one. I want to change the screen brightness before practising again. The letters are clear, but my eyes feel tired.

Speaking

Qadoqlash sinovini 90 soniyada baholang; sherik xavfsizlikni so‘rasin.

Mezon: Tezlik va kitob siljishini alohida baholaydi. · Ikki comparative ravish, much/a bit va some/any ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Yangi klaviatura bo‘yicha 80–110 so‘zli mashq rejasi yozing.

Mezon: Aniqlik, tezlik va ekran yorqinligini bog‘laydi. · Ravish bilan taqqoslash va some/any ni kamida bittadan ishlatadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I am typing a bit more slowly on the new keyboard, but I make fewer mistakes. I have already completed some short exercises from the course page. The number keys are easier to reach, so I will keep practising. First, I will change the screen brightness because my eyes feel tired. Then I will read each text more carefully before typing it. My brother works far faster than I do, but his messages sometimes contain funny mistakes. I don't need any speed record today; I need clear and accurate writing.

Reading · Soup for the Volunteers

Our neighbourhood clean-up ended with a simple outdoor lunch. We had a lot of soup, but only a few bowls at first. Few volunteers had brought their own, so the organiser borrowed more from the cafe. There wasn't much bread, although there were many apples in a large basket. One volunteer offered to slice the bread thinly, and everyone received some. 'Would you like some soup?' the cook asked each new arrival. A small boy requested some extra carrots but no onions. His father looked surprised because the boy usually avoided vegetables at home. Apparently, garden work had improved his opinion of soup. We counted the cups before serving tea. A few were cracked, so we put them aside. By the end, everyone had eaten, and there was still enough soup for the evening volunteers.

Listening · Setting Up the Art Stall

Artist: How many postcards have we brought?
Helper: Sixty. We also have a lot of bookmarks, but only a few large prints.
Artist: That's fine. Few visitors buy the expensive prints at this fair.
Helper: There isn't much space on the table. Could I have some tape for the display board?
Artist: Of course. Would you like some clips as well?
Helper: Yes, please. The wind is stronger than I expected.
Artist: Put the postcards in the shallow box. Last year a sudden gust sent my landscape cards across the field.
Helper: Free travelling scenery!
Artist: Exactly, but collecting it took half an hour.
Helper: How much change do we have?
Artist: Enough for the morning. There are a few small notes in this envelope. We will count the sales and check our supplies again at lunchtime.

There isn't much space on the table, so I will put the postcards in a shallow box. Could I have some tape and clips for the board? Reading · Two Tents and One Decision

Our hiking group inspected two tents before a weekend trip. Both of them were clean, but neither was perfect. The green tent had enough space for three people, although it was too heavy for our youngest members to carry. The orange tent was light, but there was little room for bags inside. We had a little money left in the equipment budget, enough for one waterproof storage cover. Most of the group preferred the orange tent with bags outside under that cover. Two members preferred the green one because they wanted everything indoors. All of us agreed that either tent was safe in mild weather. None of the poles were damaged. Finally, we chose the orange tent and the cover. Our leader reminded us that dry socks matter more than a bedroom large enough for a dance party.

Listening · Enough Paint for the Mural?

Painter: We have little blue paint left. It isn't enough for the whole sky.
Assistant: There is a little white in this tin. We can mix it with the blue.
Painter: That will make a pale sky. Both of the sample pictures use light colours, so it should work.
Assistant: Either brush is clean. Which one do you want?
Painter: The wide one. The narrow brush is too small for this area.
Assistant: Most of the wall is ready. Only the bird needs detail.
Painter: Neither of its eyes looks right. One is too high, and the other is too close to the beak.
Assistant: At the moment it looks surprised by its own wings.
Painter: Then let's fix the eyes before mixing the sky colour. We have enough time, but very little paint to waste.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We have little blue paint left, and it isn't enough for the whole sky. There is a little white paint in another tin, so we can mix the two colours for a pale background. Both sample pictures use light colours. The wide brush is better because the narrow one is too small for this area. Most of the wall is ready, but neither of the bird's eyes looks right. We will fix those first and then mix the sky colour. There is enough time, but we have very little paint to waste.

Reading · The School Bag Recommendation

Our student council compared three donated school bags before choosing a model for next year's collection. The red bag was the cheapest and lightest, but its straps were too thin for heavy books. The grey bag had more pockets and stronger stitching. The black bag was as strong as the grey one, although it cost much more. We put the same books and a full water bottle in each bag. Most of the testers chose the grey model because it carried the weight more comfortably. A few preferred the red one for short trips. None of the bags was waterproof, so we suggested buying some simple rain covers too. There was enough money for twenty grey bags and twenty covers. Our final recommendation included that exact quantity rather than a vague request for 'lots of bags'.

Listening · A Sensible Refreshment Order

Coordinator: We expect forty guests. Is there enough tea?
Helper: Yes, but there are only thirty cups. We need a few more.
Coordinator: The reusable cups are more expensive to rent than paper ones, but they are stronger.
Helper: They're also easier to carry when full. Both suppliers can deliver before noon.
Coordinator: Which supplier is cheaper?
Helper: The local cafe, by ten thousand som. It doesn't have many large plates, though.
Coordinator: We don't need large plates. Most of the food is small sandwiches.
Helper: Shall I order forty-five cups and some small plates?
Coordinator: Yes. A little extra capacity is useful, but we don't need twice as much as the guest count.
Helper: Agreed. Last time we had enough cups for an imaginary second wedding.
Coordinator: This time let's keep the order realistic and the cupboard clear.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We expect forty guests, but we have only thirty cups. I recommend ordering forty-five reusable cups from the local cafe, together with some small plates. The cafe is ten thousand som cheaper than the other supplier, and both can deliver before noon. Reusable cups cost more than paper ones, but they are stronger and easier to carry when full. We don't need many large plates because most of the food is small sandwiches. A few spare cups are sensible. Twice the guest count would leave too much unnecessary equipment in our cupboard.

Reading · The Useful Skills Wall

Our youth centre has created a wall of useful skills. Members write what they can do on small cards and add their names. Madina can repair bicycle brakes, but she can't repair electric motors. Otabek can design posters and take clear photographs. He can't print large posters at home, so the centre provides that service. I can explain basic phone settings to older visitors. My grandfather can sharpen garden tools and tell whether a wooden handle is safe. He can't use our booking app, but that doesn't make his skill less valuable. We have paired members with different abilities for a Saturday exchange. Nobody receives a score or a certificate. The aim is practical help. One card says, 'I can find lost keys.' Its owner is the receptionist, and her method is simply checking the last place carefully.

Listening · A Team for the School Website

Coordinator: We need a small team for the school website. Tell me your strengths.
Student: I can write short news reports and check names carefully. I can't edit videos yet.
Coordinator: That's useful. Zafar can edit videos, but he can't record clear sound without help.
Student: My sister can do that. She has a small microphone and knows the settings.
Coordinator: Excellent. We also need photographs of the classrooms.
Student: I can take those tomorrow. I can't enter the science lab during lessons, though, so I'll ask about a suitable time.
Coordinator: Good. The first story is about the gardening club.
Student: I can interview their leader. Their tomato plants look impressive.
Coordinator: Please photograph the plants too. Last year's picture showed only our gardener's hat. It was a fine hat, but it didn't explain the project.

Speaking

Ko‘nikmalar devoridagi uch kishini 90 soniyada tanishtiring; sherik yordam so‘rasin.

Mezon: Har kishining aniq qobiliyatini aytadi. · Can va can't bilan jami to‘rtta gap, modal ortidan asosiy fe’l ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Sayt koordinatori uchun 80–110 so‘zli jamoa vazifalari xabarini yozing.

Mezon: Yozish, video va ovoz vazifalarini to‘g‘ri taqsimlaydi. · Can/can't bilan qobiliyatni va hali yo‘q qobiliyatni farqlaydi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I can write short news reports for the school website and check names carefully. I can't edit videos yet, but Zafar can do that. He needs help with clear sound, and my sister can record it with her microphone. I can take classroom photographs tomorrow, although I need a suitable time for the science lab. Our first story is about the gardening club. I can interview the leader and photograph the tomato plants. This time the pictures will show the project clearly, not just the gardener's impressive hat.

Reading · The Event Access Checklist

Our class is helping organise a community exhibition. Before printing invitations, we are checking access to the building. Can visitors enter without using stairs? Yes, they can, through the side door. Can a wheelchair pass between the display tables? Not yet; two tables are too close together. We are moving them tomorrow. What can visitors do if they need a quiet place? They can use the small reading room near reception. Our volunteer team can explain the displays in Uzbek and English. Who can help with large-print labels? The school librarian can. She has offered to prepare them before Friday. The checklist is practical rather than decorative. A welcoming message matters, but a clear route and readable information make the welcome real. We will test the route again after arranging all the exhibits.

Listening · Borrowing the Sound Equipment

Volunteer: Can I collect the portable speaker for Saturday's event?
Technician: Yes, you can. Can you carry it safely on your own?
Volunteer: No, I can't. It looks heavier than I expected.
Technician: Then bring another volunteer. What can you use to transport it?
Volunteer: We can use the centre's trolley. Can the speaker run without a power socket?
Technician: Yes, it can. Its battery lasts about four hours at normal volume.
Volunteer: How can we connect the microphone?
Technician: Use this marked cable. Don't force it into the music input.
Volunteer: Can you show me once?
Technician: Certainly. Then you can repeat the steps while I watch.
Volunteer: Good idea. Last time I connected everything correctly except the power.
Technician: A silent speaker is very polite, but it isn't much help at a public event.

Speaking

Ko‘rgazmaga kirish sharoitlarini 90 soniyali savol-javobda tekshiring.

Mezon: Eshik, stollar oralig‘i va tinch xonani ajratadi. · Uch Can…? va bir wh-can savoli hamda qisqa javob ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Ovoz jihozini oluvchi sherikka 80–110 so‘zli yo‘riqnoma yozing.

Mezon: Aravacha, to‘rt soat batareya va belgilangan simni kiritadi. · Can savoli va unga qisqa javobni tabiiy matnga qo‘shadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We can collect the portable speaker for Saturday, but I can't carry it safely alone. Please come with me, and we can use the centre's trolley. Can the speaker work without a power socket? Yes, it can. The battery lasts about four hours at normal volume. We need the marked cable for the microphone, not the music input. The technician can demonstrate the connection, and then we can repeat the steps. I will also check the power before the event. A correctly connected but silent speaker won't help our audience.

Reading · Before the Swimming Lessons

When my aunt was ten, she could cycle across the village without stopping, but she couldn't swim. Her school was near a river, and she watched other children from the bank. Could her parents teach her? No, they couldn't; neither of them was a confident swimmer. A new sports teacher later started lessons at a shallow outdoor pool. At first, my aunt could only put her face in the water for a second. After several weeks, she could float and move across the small pool. She still couldn't dive, but that wasn't the teacher's first goal. Today she takes her grandchildren swimming and understands their nervousness. She keeps her old swimming cap in a drawer. It is bright orange and rather ugly, but it reminds her that ability often grows through many small attempts.

Listening · An Interview with a Sign Painter

Interviewer: Could you draw well as a child, Mr Saidov?
Painter: I could copy simple pictures, but I couldn't draw faces. Every person looked slightly surprised.
Interviewer: Could you paint large letters then?
Painter: Not at first. My father painted shop signs, and I watched him after school. By thirteen, I could paint neat capital letters with a wide brush.
Interviewer: What was difficult?
Painter: I couldn't keep the spacing even. Some words looked as if the letters were arguing and moving apart.
Interviewer: Could your father explain the spacing?
Painter: Yes, he could. He used pencil marks and showed me how to measure each gap.
Interviewer: Do you still use that method?
Painter: Often. Computers help with design now, but measuring carefully is still useful when the real wall isn't perfectly straight.

Mezon: Yuz chizish, o‘n uch yosh va oraliq o‘lchashni kiritadi. · O‘tmish umumiy qobiliyatini could/couldn't bilan ifodalaydi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Mr Saidov could copy simple pictures as a child, but he couldn't draw faces well. His father painted shop signs, and he watched him after school. By thirteen, he could paint neat capital letters with a wide brush. However, he couldn't keep the spaces between letters even. His father could explain this clearly. He used pencil marks and measured each gap before painting. Mr Saidov still uses that method today. Computers help him design signs, but careful measurement remains important when the real wall is not perfectly straight.

Reading · The Lift That Stopped

Our delivery team arrived at the community centre with a large folding table. Usually, we can use the lift, but yesterday it stopped working before we arrived. We weren't able to carry the table up the narrow stairs in one piece. The caretaker checked its frame and found removable legs. With his tools, we managed to take the legs off and carry everything safely upstairs. Before starting, our leader asked, 'May we use the side entrance for the smaller parts?' The caretaker agreed and kept the route clear. Next week, the centre will be able to use the lift again after a repair. Yesterday's problem delayed us, but the event began on time. We learned to measure entrances before deliveries. A folding table is useful only when someone remembers how it actually folds.

Reading · A Quiet Request at the Hostel

During our study trip, four of us shared a hostel room. Guests were allowed to use the common kitchen until ten, but cooking in bedrooms was not allowed. One evening, my roommate wanted hot tea while she worked on her presentation. She wrote a polite note to reception: 'I would like some hot water for tea. Could you tell me whether the kitchen is still open?' It was already ten fifteen. The receptionist brought a flask from the staff room and reminded us about the rule. She didn't change the kitchen hours, but she found a helpful solution. The next morning, we returned the flask and thanked her. A clear request worked better than complaining about the timetable. We also moved our evening study session earlier, so future tea breaks no longer required a small diplomatic mission.

Listening · A Request for a Library Display

Student: We'd like to display our local-history posters in the library. Could you help us choose a place?
Librarian: Certainly. You're allowed to use the board near the stairs, but not the windows.

Librarian: I can move the expired ones. The current safety notice has to stay visible.
Student: Of course. We'd also like to leave feedback cards.
Librarian: That's fine. You're allowed to put a small box on this shelf.
Student: Could we keep the display here for two weeks?
Librarian: Yes, until the fifteenth. Please include a contact name.
Student: Thank you. Would you like an extra copy for the reading room?

Reading · The Community Recording Day

Our community centre held a recording day for older residents. Some visitors could tell long stories easily but couldn't use the recording software. Student volunteers could manage the equipment, although they needed help with unfamiliar place names. We paired people according to these different abilities. Visitors were allowed to choose whether their recordings stayed private or joined the public collection. One participant asked, 'Could you stop the recording for a moment?' She wanted to check a date with her sister. We paused immediately. Later, we managed to repair a loose microphone connection without losing any files. By the afternoon, we had recorded eight interviews. Next month, the volunteers will be able to edit them after additional training. The project showed that technical confidence and personal knowledge are different strengths, and both deserve respect.

Listening · Planning an Accessible Tour

Guide: We'd like to offer a tour for visitors with different mobility needs. Can everyone enter the courtyard?
Manager: Yes, through the west gate. The old front entrance has steps.
Guide: Could you unlock the west gate before nine?
Manager: Certainly. Visitors are allowed to use the ground-floor rooms, but the upstairs gallery has no lift.
Guide: Then we won't include it. Can we show photographs of those objects downstairs?
Manager: Yes. Last year we managed to create a portable display for another group.
Guide: Excellent. I'd like to borrow that display. Will we be able to use the quiet room afterwards?
Manager: Yes, until noon. Please reserve it today.
Guide: Thank you. A good tour should offer real choices, not leave some visitors waiting beside the stairs while everyone else disappears.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We would like to use the west gate for our tour because the front entrance has steps. Could you unlock it before nine, please? Visitors are allowed to enter the ground-floor rooms, but the upstairs gallery has no lift, so we won't include it. We would like to borrow the portable display and show photographs of the upstairs objects downstairs. After the tour, we will be able to use the quiet room until noon. I will reserve it today. This plan gives every visitor access to the same main information.

Qo‘shimcha bank

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

Our music club can record interviews, but we can't remove every background sound. Last week a gardener sang an old village song for us. We were able to finish the recording before the lawnmower started, although we couldn't stop a nearby bird. The gardener said we could share the song at school, but he didn't give permission to put it online. 'Could you send me a copy first?' he asked. We agreed. One student suggested asking him to record again indoors. Another said the bird made the recording feel natural. The club will ask the gardener what he prefers. Technical ability and permission are separate questions: a clear recording isn't automatically ours to publish everywhere.

Reading · Inside the Repair Workshop

Before our first practical session, the workshop leader explained three essential rules. We must wear safety glasses when cutting wire. We must keep bags away from the central walkway, and we mustn't touch plugged-in equipment during repairs. One student asked, 'Must we wear gloves for every task?' The leader explained that different tools need different protection, so we must follow each demonstration carefully. He showed us a damaged cable and disconnected it before touching the wires. The rules were specific, not simply a long list of frightening words. At the end, we practised arranging a safe work area without switching on any tools. My partner placed his sandwich beside the repair parts. The leader smiled and moved it to the break table. Even a hungry technician must distinguish lunch from spare components.

Listening · Rules for the Night Walk

Leader: Before we begin the nature walk, everyone must stay with a partner. We mustn't leave the marked path.
Visitor: Must we keep our torches on all the time?
Leader: No. At the observation point, I will ask you to turn them off briefly so our eyes adjust.
Visitor: What about photographs?
Leader: You mustn't use flash near the animals. It can disturb them.
Visitor: My phone has a quiet camera mode.
Leader: That's fine, but watch the path first. We must reach the wooden shelter before ten because the gate closes then.
Visitor: Must children walk at the front?
Leader: They must stay beside their accompanying adult. Our front volunteer will set a comfortable pace.
Visitor: Understood. I'll watch the path, not just my screen. I don't want my best wildlife photograph to be an accidental close-up of mud.

Reading · Joining the Weekend Market

Our school enterprise team is renting a table at the weekend market. Every seller has to register by Wednesday and provide a contact number. We have to bring our own tablecloth, but we don't have to bring a table because one is included in the fee. Does every seller have to accept card payments? No; cash payments are allowed, although clear prices are required. Our team leader has to collect the receipts and record the costs. The rest of us have different jobs: arranging products, answering questions and counting stock. We don't have to wear matching clothes, but we have chosen simple name badges. Last year's team wore enormous paper hats, and the wind kept removing them. This year, readable names seem more useful than airborne advertising above a table of notebooks.

Learner: What does the tutor have to know about us?
Assistant: Your contact details and any access needs. You don't have to send previous photographs.
Learner: Good. My current collection contains many accidental pictures of my thumb.
Assistant: Then the course has useful things to offer. You have to pay before the second lesson, but the introduction is free.

Reading · A Change of Exhibition Hall

Our art exhibition moved to another hall yesterday because a pipe burst in the original room. We had to carry twenty framed pictures across the courtyard. Luckily, we didn't have to remove the glass from the frames; the caretaker provided padded trolleys. Did we have to cancel the opening? No, but we had to delay it by one hour. The new hall had fewer wall hooks, so we placed several pictures on display stands. Tomorrow we will have to update the directions on our website and move the outdoor sign. The repair team expects the old hall to remain closed for a week. Our artist was calm about the change. She said the pictures had travelled farther in one afternoon than she had all month. The audience arrived late, but the paintings received plenty of attention.

Listening · After the Train Cancellation

Colleague: Did you have to stay overnight after your train was cancelled?
Traveller: No, I didn't have to. There was a later bus, but I had to change at the regional station.
Colleague: Did you have to buy another ticket?
Traveller: Yes. The bus company doesn't accept train tickets. I kept the receipt for my expense claim.
Colleague: That sounds tiring.
Traveller: It was. I had to carry my display case between two platforms, but a station worker helped me find the lift.
Colleague: What happens next?
Traveller: I'll have to submit the claim by Friday. I'll also have to leave more travel time for the next meeting.
Colleague: At least your presentation went well.
Traveller: Yes. My model building reached the meeting in one piece. It had a complicated journey for something designed to stay in one place.

Reading · Advice for the Community Garden

New members of our community garden receive a short welcome guide. It separates rules from advice. Members mustn't leave tools across the paths, because other gardeners may trip over them. They don't have to buy their own tools; shared equipment is available in the shed. The guide recommends arriving early during hot weather. Gardeners should bring drinking water and a hat, but they shouldn't work for long without a break. Nobody has to finish a whole bed in one visit. Our coordinator checks that beginners choose manageable tasks. Last summer, one enthusiastic volunteer tried to weed three beds before lunch and became exhausted. Now he helps explain the guide. He calls himself the garden's example of excessive ambition. His advice is friendly: a small area done carefully is better than a large area abandoned halfway through.

Listening · Advice Before a Video Interview

Mentor: You should test your microphone before tomorrow's online interview.
Applicant: Do I have to buy a new headset?
Mentor: No, you don't have to. Your current one sounds clear. You should choose a quiet room and check the lighting.
Applicant: My background is a bookshelf. Is that acceptable?
Mentor: Yes. You don't have to use a plain wall, but you mustn't display confidential documents on the screen.
Applicant: I sometimes read long notes while speaking.
Mentor: You shouldn't read every sentence. Prepare a few keywords instead and look towards the camera.
Applicant: My cat often walks across the desk.
Mentor: Then close the door during the interview. You should have water nearby too.
Applicant: Good plan. The cat is confident on camera, but she isn't applying for the job, and her main qualification is interrupting people.

Speaking

Bog‘dagi yangi a’zoga 90 soniyada qoida va maslahat bering.

Mezon: Asboblar qoidasi bilan suv/ta’til maslahatini ajratadi. · Mustn't, don't have to, should va shouldn't ni ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Intervyuga tayyorgarlik haqida 80–110 so‘zli tavsiyalar yozing.

Mezon: Mikrofon, maxfiy hujjat va kalit so‘zlarni kiritadi. · Majburiy taqiq, ixtiyoriy xarid va maslahatni aniq ajratadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

You should test your microphone before the interview, but you don't have to buy a new headset because your current one sounds clear. Choose a quiet room and check the lighting. A bookshelf is an acceptable background, so you don't have to find a plain wall. However, you mustn't display confidential documents on the screen. You shouldn't read long notes word for word. Prepare a few keywords and look towards the camera. Close the door to keep the cat away from the desk, and have a glass of water nearby.

Reading · Too Many Copies

Before our training session, I printed fifty copies of the handbook. When I arrived, the organiser showed me a box of copies from the office. I needn't have printed any: the materials were already ready. My colleague had checked first, so she didn't need to print a handbook and brought only her notebook. We discussed how to avoid wasting paper next time. Should we email the organiser before preparing materials? Yes, we ought to confirm what is available. We need to bring our own pens, but we needn't buy special folders. The organiser also warned us about a timetable change: the session starts earlier tomorrow, so we had better check the new time tonight. My extra handbooks will serve the next group. They aren't useless, but a short message would have saved a long queue at the printer.

Listening · Preparing for the Committee Meeting

Member: Should I bring the large projector tomorrow?
Chair: No, you needn't. The room has one. We only need to bring the presentation file on a memory stick.
Member: I needn't have booked a taxi for the equipment, then. I've already paid for it.
Chair: I'm sorry we didn't tell you earlier. You ought to ask whether the booking can be changed.
Member: I will. What about printed agendas?
Chair: We didn't need to print any yesterday because everyone received a digital copy, so we saved the paper.
Member: Should I arrive at nine?
Chair: You'd better arrive at eight forty-five. We need to test the file before people enter.
Member: Understood. I'll bring the file and leave the projector at home. At least my small bag won't need its own taxi seat.

Reading · A Better Open Day

After our college open day, the volunteer team reviewed the instructions. Visitors had to sign in at reception, but they didn't have to book ordinary campus tours. They mustn't enter laboratories without a guide, and that rule was clearly displayed. Some information was less clear. Volunteers had printed extra maps, although reception already had enough. They needn't have used that paper. Next time, we will have to check supplies before ordering more. We should also place signs at the side entrance because several families missed the main desk. One parent asked whether children had to attend every talk. They didn't; the programme offered choices. Our new guide will separate compulsory steps from optional activities. The aim is a welcoming visit with understandable rules, not a day spent guessing what each coloured arrow means.

Listening · The Equipment Loan Review

Coordinator: Let's review yesterday's equipment loan. Did every borrower return a signed form?
Assistant: Yes. They had to sign before taking anything. They didn't have to pay a deposit for small items.
Coordinator: What should we change next time?
Assistant: We ought to explain the return times more clearly. One person brought a lamp after the office closed.
Coordinator: Agreed. Borrowers mustn't leave equipment outside the door. We'll have to put that on the form.
Assistant: I needn't have stayed late yesterday. The night receptionist could accept that lamp, but I didn't know.
Coordinator: You should check with reception first next time. You don't need to solve every problem alone.
Assistant: That's useful. Should we send a reminder on the return day?
Coordinator: Yes. A short reminder is better than a long search for a lamp without an owner.

Yesterday every borrower had to sign a form before taking equipment, but small items didn't require a deposit. We should explain the return times more clearly because one lamp arrived after the office closed. Borrowers mustn't leave equipment outside the door, so we will have to add that rule to the form. I needn't have stayed late because the night receptionist could accept the lamp. Next time I ought to check with reception first. We should also send a short reminder on the return day to reduce confusion and unnecessary waiting.

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 25 daqiqa; qo‘shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa sarlavha va taxmin; 8 daqiqa mustaqil o‘qish; 10 daqiqa javob; 4 daqiqa dalil bilan qayta tekshirish.

The community centre lends its projector to local clubs. Borrowers must sign the register and mustn't leave the machine in a parked car. They don't have to bring their own cable; one is included. At the previous meeting, we had to borrow an extra extension lead because the socket was far from the screen. This time the organiser has checked the room in advance. She says we should test the picture before the audience arrives. We needn't print fifty handouts because only twenty people have booked. Anyone using photographs ought to check permission from the people shown. The rules protect the equipment, while the advice helps the event run well. Confusing advice with a ban can make a simple service unnecessarily difficult.

Ustoz kaliti: Required; prohibited; unnecessary; advised.

Dalil: Borrowers must sign the register and mustn't leave the machine in a parked car. They don't have to bring their own cable / we should test the picture
