Reading · The Giant Scarf Project

For the past three weeks, our craft club has been knitting a giant scarf for the statue outside the library. The librarian has been helping us choose colours, and local families have been donating spare wool. We haven't been working every day; we meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. The scarf is nearly four metres long now. Have we been measuring it carefully? Yes, because the statue has unusually broad shoulders. My brother has been counting the stripes and recording their colours in a notebook. He hasn't been knitting, but his record prevents arguments about the pattern. Yesterday a visitor asked about the enormous scarf. We explained our winter display project. The statue is made of stone and doesn't feel cold, but the bright scarf is giving the grey square a warmer appearance.

Listening · Noise Above the Cafe

Leyla: No, I haven't. I've been practising a dance for the college show.
Owner: Have you been jumping near the window?
Leyla: Yes, I have. I've been repeating that part for half an hour. Is it very loud?
Owner: The cups have been shaking a little. One customer thinks we have a musical dishwasher.
Leyla: I'm sorry. My partner hasn't been coming this week, so I've been practising alone and losing track of time.
Owner: You can use the back room after three. It has a concrete floor.
Leyla: Thank you. I'll move my practice there. I haven't been trying to disturb anyone.

Reading · A Map of Every Tree

Our ecology group has been mapping the trees around the school. We have counted forty-two trees, but we haven't finished the whole site. How long have we been working? Since the beginning of this month. Our teacher had prepared a rough map before our first survey, so we knew where to start. We have been adding names and measurements to it. Dilshod has drawn twelve tiny tree symbols, and I have checked their positions. Have we been using an expensive device? No, we haven't. A tape measure and a notebook are enough for this stage. Yesterday we found an apple tree behind the kitchen. The cook had planted it years before our project began. It now produces small green apples. Our map has gained a new symbol, and our team has gained a potential snack location.

Listening · A Difficult Model Bridge

Tutor: What have you been building, Bek?
Bek: A model bridge from wooden sticks. I've been testing different shapes all afternoon.
Tutor: How many versions have you made?
Bek: Three. The first two collapsed, but this one holds a small book.
Tutor: Had you drawn a plan before you started?
Bek: Yes. I had copied a simple triangle design into my notebook before the lesson.
Tutor: Have you been using the same glue each time?
Bek: Yes, I have. I've changed the arrangement, not the glue.
Tutor: What has your partner done?
Bek: She has recorded the weight of each test object. She had brought a kitchen scale before we began.
Tutor: Excellent. Your bridge looks promising.
Bek: Thank you. The first one was better as a pile of sticks, but the third one finally understands its job.

Speaking

Daraxt xaritasini 90 soniyada taqdim eting; sherik qancha va qachondan so'rasin.

Mezon: Hisoblangan son bilan davom etayotgan ishni ajratadi. · Bir Perfect Simple, bir Perfect Continuous va bir Past Perfect tasdiq ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Bek nomidan model ko'prik jarayoni haqida 80–110 so'zli hisobot yozing.

Mezon: Uch variant, kitob va tarozi dalillarini saqlaydi. · Jarayon, natija va boshlanishdan oldingi reja uchun uch zamonni tanlaydi. · 80–110 so'z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I have been building a model bridge from wooden sticks all afternoon. I have made three versions. The first two collapsed, but the third one holds a small book. Before the lesson, I had copied a triangle design into my notebook. I have been testing different arrangements with the same glue. My partner has recorded the weight of every test object. She had brought a kitchen scale before we began. Our final bridge is still small, but it works. We have learned that the shape matters as much as the materials.

Reading · The Empty Cake Stand

When guests arrived for our club anniversary, the cake stand was empty. Had the baker forgotten our order? No, she hadn't. She had delivered the cake to the reception desk at noon. Why hadn't anyone carried it into the hall? The receptionist had left a note for the afternoon volunteer, but he hadn't seen it. He had put a large flower arrangement on top of the paper. Meanwhile, the kitchen team had placed the cake in a cool cupboard for safety. Nobody had told the host about that final move. We searched the building for ten minutes before the cook opened the cupboard. The cake was perfect, and the candles were beside it. The host thanked everyone and placed the flowers somewhere else. Our anniversary celebration finally began with excellent cake and a lesson about visible messages.

Listening · Before the Weather Balloon Launch

Leader: Why did we delay the balloon launch yesterday?
Student: We hadn't checked the wind direction before we carried the balloon outside.
Leader: Had you attached the camera?
Student: Yes, we had. But we hadn't switched it on.
Leader: What had the other team prepared?
Student: They had prepared the tracking phone and written the emergency contact number on the box.
Leader: Had anyone tested the battery?
Student: No, nobody had. We checked it during the delay, and it was nearly empty.
Leader: So the delay helped us.
Student: Definitely. We changed the battery and checked everything again. The balloon rose at eleven instead of ten.
Leader: Did the camera work?
Student: Yes. The first picture showed your nose because you were looking straight into it. The later pictures showed the fields, which was our actual aim.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We delayed yesterday's balloon launch because we hadn't checked the wind direction before taking the balloon outside. We had attached the camera, but we hadn't switched it on. The other team had prepared the tracking phone and written the emergency contact number on the box. Had anyone tested the battery? No, nobody had, and it was nearly empty. During the delay, we changed it and checked everything again. The balloon rose at eleven instead of ten. The camera worked, and its later pictures showed the fields around our school.

Reading · The Painter's Blue Hands

When I visited my neighbour's workshop yesterday, her hands were blue and the floor was covered with newspaper. She had been painting a wooden cupboard for three hours. She hadn't been using gloves because she couldn't find a pair small enough for her hands. Had she finished the whole cupboard? No, she hadn't. She had painted the doors, but the sides were still brown. Before I arrived, she had moved the shelves into the garden. Then the wind became stronger, so we carried them inside together. Her dog watched from the doorway and kept a careful distance from the paint. We put a clean sheet under the shelves and made tea. By then, my hands were blue too. The cupboard had gained colour, and I had gained an unexpected afternoon project.

Listening · A Late Science Team

Teacher: Your team looked tired when you arrived. What happened?
Student: We had been searching for our display box for forty minutes. We hadn't been sitting in traffic, as everyone thought.
Teacher: Had you left the box at home?
Student: No, we hadn't. We had put it in our minibus before breakfast. Another group moved it behind their costumes.
Teacher: So you found it on the bus?
Student: Yes. We had checked the classroom first, then returned to the car park.
Teacher: Was your experiment safe?
Student: Yes. We had packed the bottles carefully. We hadn't been carrying any dangerous materials, only water and food colouring.
Teacher: Good. Your blue volcano attracted a lot of attention.
Student: It did. After all that searching, our volcano finally had its dramatic moment. Fortunately, nobody needed to search for a mop afterwards.

Reading · The Quiet Rehearsal

Our drama teacher found six students asleep on chairs after lunch. Had they been avoiding rehearsal? No, they hadn't. They had been rehearsing a difficult scene since nine that morning. By lunchtime they had performed it eleven times. The teacher had stepped out to collect the costumes, and the group had agreed on a ten-minute break. Why had they been repeating the same scene? The timing of a door slam was wrong. Each time the detective announced an important discovery, the door closed too early and covered his words. The students had finally solved the problem before their break. They had placed a soft stopper near the hinge. When the teacher returned, the room was peaceful. The dramatic mystery was ready, but its detectives needed a little ordinary sleep before solving another imaginary crime.

Listening · Why Were the Shoes So Muddy?

Parent: Had you been playing football before dinner, Hasan?
Hasan: No, I hadn't. I had been helping at the community garden.
Parent: How long had you been working there when the rain started?
Hasan: For about an hour. We had planted eight young trees by then.
Parent: Had everyone been digging?
Hasan: No, they hadn't. Two volunteers had been carrying water, and another had been writing labels.
Parent: What had you finished before coming home?
Hasan: We had covered all the roots with soil and collected the tools. Then the rain became heavy.
Parent: That explains your shoes.
Hasan: Yes. They look like two small gardens now. I hadn't noticed the mud until I reached our front door.
Parent: Please leave them outside. Our hallway already has a plant, and it doesn't need two muddy neighbours.

Reading · A Telescope Ready at Last

Our astronomy club has been restoring an old telescope for a month. We have cleaned the lenses and replaced a damaged screw. Last Friday, however, the first test failed. We had been adjusting the stand for nearly an hour when the teacher noticed a loose joint. We hadn't tightened it properly, so the image shook whenever someone touched the table. After we fixed the joint, the telescope worked. We had expected a serious problem, but the solution was small. Since that evening, we have observed the moon twice. I have been keeping a record of our observations in a notebook. The first page contains a drawing of the moon; the second contains a large reminder about screws. Scientific discoveries are exciting, but sometimes they begin with ordinary checking and a very small tool.

Listening · The Costume Return

Manager: Have you checked the costumes after yesterday's show?
Assistant: Yes. I've counted twenty jackets and nineteen hats. I've been looking for the last hat since breakfast.
Manager: Where had the actors left their clothes?
Assistant: They had placed everything on the back table before leaving. But one actor had been wearing his hat during the final song and forgot to remove it.
Manager: Had he gone home with it?
Assistant: Yes, he had. He called this morning. His little sister has been using it as a bed for her toy rabbit.
Manager: Will he return it today?
Assistant: He's bringing it at four. He has already cleaned it.
Manager: Good. Have you finished the repair list?
Assistant: Not yet. I've been checking buttons too. Two jackets need small repairs, but our rabbit hotel is apparently in excellent condition.

Our class has been measuring the roof garden temperature for a month. We have collected twenty readings, but two are unusable. On Tuesday, the thermometer showed an unusually high number. Before taking that reading, someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe. We had been using the same shaded corner for three weeks, so the change of position mattered. We marked Tuesday's result as unreliable instead of deleting it without explanation. Today we have moved the thermometer back. Our report isn't finished yet. We have been checking the notes against photographs, and we will explain why two readings cannot support our conclusion. A long table is less useful than a trustworthy one.

h-13-1 · Why was Tuesday's high reading unreliable?

Ustoz kaliti: The thermometer had been left beside a warm ventilation pipe.

Dalil: someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe.

h-13-2 · How many readings are usable?

Ustoz kaliti: 18: twenty collected, two unusable.

Dalil: We have collected twenty readings, but two are unusable.

h-13-3 · Order: high reading; usual shaded position; placement by pipe; return to usual position.

Ustoz kaliti: Usual shaded position → placement by pipe → high reading → return.

Dalil: We had been using the same shaded corner for three weeks / Before taking that reading, someone had left it beside a warm ventilation pipe. / Today we have moved the thermometer back.

h-13-4 · Why keep a labelled unreliable result in the record?

Ustoz kaliti: It makes the exclusion transparent rather than hiding an inconvenient result.

Dalil: We marked Tuesday's result as unreliable instead of deleting it without explanation.

Reading · Two Routes to the River

Our walking club tested two routes to the river on Sunday. The hill route is shorter than the canal route, but it is steeper and more tiring. It took us thirty minutes. The canal route took forty minutes, although the path is flatter and easier for beginners. My uncle prefers the hill because the view is better from the top. My aunt prefers the canal because the benches are more comfortable and the traffic noise is lower. We carried the same small backpack on both walks, so our comparison was fair. Near the canal, a duck followed us for several metres. It seemed more interested in our sandwiches than in our research. Next week we are taking new members along the canal. A longer walk with comfortable breaks is more suitable for that group.

Listening · Choosing a Workshop Chair

Buyer: I'm choosing between these two chairs for my sewing room.
Seller: The wooden chair is cheaper, but the padded one is more comfortable during long sessions.
Buyer: My room is small. Which chair is narrower?
Seller: The wooden one. It fits under this desk easily. The padded chair is wider because of its arms.
Buyer: Is the wooden chair lighter too?
Seller: Yes, by two kilograms. It's easier to move when you clean the floor.
Buyer: The padded seat feels better, though. I work for several hours at a time.
Seller: You could add a cushion to the wooden chair.
Buyer: That's a useful compromise. My cat already thinks every cushion belongs to her.
Seller: Then a removable cushion is safer. You can keep it in the cupboard between sewing sessions and avoid a daily argument about ownership.

Speaking

Ikki yo‘lni 90 soniyada taqqoslab, yangi a’zolar uchun tanlov qiling.

Mezon: Vaqt va qulaylikdan ikkita dalil keltiradi. · Qisqa, uzun va irregular sifat bilan uch comparative ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Tikuv xonasi uchun stul tanlovini 80–110 so‘zda asoslang.

Mezon: Tor xona va uzoq ishlash ehtiyojini hisobga oladi. · Kamida uch comparative va aniq tavsiya yozadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I prefer the wooden chair for my sewing room because it is narrower and cheaper than the padded one. It fits under the desk, and it is two kilograms lighter, so moving it during cleaning is easier. The padded chair is more comfortable, which matters during long sewing sessions. However, a removable cushion gives the wooden chair a softer seat without making it wider. I will keep the cushion in the cupboard between sessions because my cat likes every soft seat. This choice balances the size of my room with my comfort.

Reading · The Lunchbox Test

Three students brought lunchboxes for our design club's practical test. The steel box was the heaviest and the most expensive. The blue plastic box was the lightest, while the cloth lunch bag was the cheapest. We placed the same sandwich and apple inside each one. The steel box kept the sandwich in the best condition because its lid closed firmly. The plastic box was as easy to clean as the steel one, but it wasn't as strong. The cloth bag was the easiest to carry, although the apple rolled against the sandwich and flattened one corner. Our teacher didn't name a single winner. The best choice depends on the journey and the food. For my short walk, the light blue box is enough. For my brother's cycling trip, the stronger steel box makes more sense.

Listening · Three Places to Rehearse

Singer: We have three possible rehearsal rooms. The school hall is the largest.
Guitarist: Is it also the most expensive?
Singer: No. The studio costs the most. It has the best sound equipment, though.
Guitarist: What about the community room?
Singer: It's the cheapest, and it's as close to the bus stop as the studio.
Guitarist: Is it as quiet?
Singer: No, it isn't as quiet as the studio. A chess club meets next door, and the players sometimes argue surprisingly loudly.
Guitarist: The school hall has terrible echoes. Our quiet song sounds like a football announcement there.
Singer: Agreed. The studio is the best place for recording, but we only need to practise tonight.
Guitarist: Then let's use the community room. We can practise before the chess match starts and leave the dramatic arguments to the experts.

Speaking

Uch tushlik idishini 90 soniyada baholang; sherik sayohat turini aytsin.

Mezon: Og‘irlik, narx va himoyani aniq farqlaydi. · Ikki superlative va bir as…as/not as…as ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Guruhga bugungi repetitsiya joyi haqida 80–110 so‘zli tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: Uch xona xususiyatlari va shaxmatdan oldingi vaqtni kiritadi. · Superlative va tenglik/ teng emaslik taqqoslashini ishlatadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

For tonight's rehearsal, I recommend the community room. It is the cheapest option and is as close to the bus stop as the studio. It isn't as quiet as the studio because a chess club meets next door, but we can practise before their match begins. The school hall is the largest room, yet its echoes are a problem for our quiet song. The studio has the best sound equipment and is the most expensive. We should save it for recording. Tonight we need a practical place to practise together.

Reading · The Parcel-Packing Trial

Our school shop compared two ways of packing books for delivery. The first group used loose paper and ordinary tape. The second group used folded cardboard corners. Both groups had some small boxes, but there weren't any large ones. The second group worked more slowly at first because the folds needed care. After ten minutes, they packed books much faster than before. Their parcels also survived our gentle shaking test more successfully. The first group finished a bit earlier, but some books moved inside the boxes. We didn't find any damaged covers, although the movement was worrying. Our shop leader suggested another practice round before choosing a method. Fast packing is useful, but books need to arrive safely. The cardboard corners looked rather like tiny hats, so we called the trial 'Fashion Week for Novels'.

Listening · Learning a New Keyboard

Instructor: Are you typing more comfortably on the new keyboard?
Student: Yes. I make fewer mistakes, but I still type a bit more slowly than on my old one.
Instructor: Have you tried any short practice exercises?
Student: I've done some from our course page. The number keys are much easier to reach now.
Instructor: Good. Read the text more carefully before each attempt. Accuracy improves before speed for some learners.
Student: My brother types far faster than I do, but he doesn't check his messages.
Instructor: Then his speed isn't the whole story.
Student: Exactly. Yesterday he invited our aunt to a 'family onion' instead of a family reunion.
Instructor: A memorable invitation! Do you have any questions about the settings?
Student: Just one. I want to change the screen brightness before practising again. The letters are clear, but my eyes feel tired.

Speaking

Qadoqlash sinovini 90 soniyada baholang; sherik xavfsizlikni so‘rasin.

Mezon: Tezlik va kitob siljishini alohida baholaydi. · Ikki comparative ravish, much/a bit va some/any ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Yangi klaviatura bo‘yicha 80–110 so‘zli mashq rejasi yozing.

Mezon: Aniqlik, tezlik va ekran yorqinligini bog‘laydi. · Ravish bilan taqqoslash va some/any ni kamida bittadan ishlatadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I am typing a bit more slowly on the new keyboard, but I make fewer mistakes. I have already completed some short exercises from the course page. The number keys are easier to reach, so I will keep practising. First, I will change the screen brightness because my eyes feel tired. Then I will read each text more carefully before typing it. My brother works far faster than I do, but his messages sometimes contain funny mistakes. I don't need any speed record today; I need clear and accurate writing.

Reading · Soup for the Volunteers

Our neighbourhood clean-up ended with a simple outdoor lunch. We had a lot of soup, but only a few bowls at first. Few volunteers had brought their own, so the organiser borrowed more from the cafe. There wasn't much bread, although there were many apples in a large basket. One volunteer offered to slice the bread thinly, and everyone received some. 'Would you like some soup?' the cook asked each new arrival. A small boy requested some extra carrots but no onions. His father looked surprised because the boy usually avoided vegetables at home. Apparently, garden work had improved his opinion of soup. We counted the cups before serving tea. A few were cracked, so we put them aside. By the end, everyone had eaten, and there was still enough soup for the evening volunteers.

Listening · Setting Up the Art Stall

Artist: How many postcards have we brought?
Helper: Sixty. We also have a lot of bookmarks, but only a few large prints.
Artist: That's fine. Few visitors buy the expensive prints at this fair.
Helper: There isn't much space on the table. Could I have some tape for the display board?
Artist: Of course. Would you like some clips as well?
Helper: Yes, please. The wind is stronger than I expected.
Artist: Put the postcards in the shallow box. Last year a sudden gust sent my landscape cards across the field.
Helper: Free travelling scenery!
Artist: Exactly, but collecting it took half an hour.
Helper: How much change do we have?
Artist: Enough for the morning. There are a few small notes in this envelope. We will count the sales and check our supplies again at lunchtime.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We have brought sixty postcards and a lot of bookmarks to the fair. There are only a few large prints because few visitors buy expensive artwork here. There isn't much space on the table, so I will put the postcards in a shallow box. Could I have some tape and clips for the board? The wind is strong, and we don't want the cards to travel across the field again. We have a few small notes for change. At lunchtime, we will count our sales and check the remaining supplies.

Reading · Two Tents and One Decision

Our hiking group inspected two tents before a weekend trip. Both of them were clean, but neither was perfect. The green tent had enough space for three people, although it was too heavy for our youngest members to carry. The orange tent was light, but there was little room for bags inside. We had a little money left in the equipment budget, enough for one waterproof storage cover. Most of the group preferred the orange tent with bags outside under that cover. Two members preferred the green one because they wanted everything indoors. All of us agreed that either tent was safe in mild weather. None of the poles were damaged. Finally, we chose the orange tent and the cover. Our leader reminded us that dry socks matter more than a bedroom large enough for a dance party.

Listening · Enough Paint for the Mural?

Painter: We have little blue paint left. It isn't enough for the whole sky.
Assistant: There is a little white in this tin. We can mix it with the blue.
Painter: That will make a pale sky. Both of the sample pictures use light colours, so it should work.
Assistant: Either brush is clean. Which one do you want?
Painter: The wide one. The narrow brush is too small for this area.
Assistant: Most of the wall is ready. Only the bird needs detail.
Painter: Neither of its eyes looks right. One is too high, and the other is too close to the beak.
Assistant: At the moment it looks surprised by its own wings.
Painter: Then let's fix the eyes before mixing the sky colour. We have enough time, but very little paint to waste.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We have little blue paint left, and it isn't enough for the whole sky. There is a little white paint in another tin, so we can mix the two colours for a pale background. Both sample pictures use light colours. The wide brush is better because the narrow one is too small for this area. Most of the wall is ready, but neither of the bird's eyes looks right. We will fix those first and then mix the sky colour. There is enough time, but we have very little paint to waste.

Reading · The School Bag Recommendation

Our student council compared three donated school bags before choosing a model for next year's collection. The red bag was the cheapest and lightest, but its straps were too thin for heavy books. The grey bag had more pockets and stronger stitching. The black bag was as strong as the grey one, although it cost much more. We put the same books and a full water bottle in each bag. Most of the testers chose the grey model because it carried the weight more comfortably. A few preferred the red one for short trips. None of the bags was waterproof, so we suggested buying some simple rain covers too. There was enough money for twenty grey bags and twenty covers. Our final recommendation included that exact quantity rather than a vague request for 'lots of bags'.

Listening · A Sensible Refreshment Order

Coordinator: We expect forty guests. Is there enough tea?
Helper: Yes, but there are only thirty cups. We need a few more.
Coordinator: The reusable cups are more expensive to rent than paper ones, but they are stronger.
Helper: They're also easier to carry when full. Both suppliers can deliver before noon.
Coordinator: Which supplier is cheaper?
Helper: The local cafe, by ten thousand som. It doesn't have many large plates, though.
Coordinator: We don't need large plates. Most of the food is small sandwiches.
Helper: Shall I order forty-five cups and some small plates?
Coordinator: Yes. A little extra capacity is useful, but we don't need twice as much as the guest count.
Helper: Agreed. Last time we had enough cups for an imaginary second wedding.
Coordinator: This time let's keep the order realistic and the cupboard clear.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We expect forty guests, but we have only thirty cups. I recommend ordering forty-five reusable cups from the local cafe, together with some small plates. The cafe is ten thousand som cheaper than the other supplier, and both can deliver before noon. Reusable cups cost more than paper ones, but they are stronger and easier to carry when full. We don't need many large plates because most of the food is small sandwiches. A few spare cups are sensible. Twice the guest count would leave too much unnecessary equipment in our cupboard.

Reading · The Useful Skills Wall

Our youth centre has created a wall of useful skills. Members write what they can do on small cards and add their names. Madina can repair bicycle brakes, but she can't repair electric motors. Otabek can design posters and take clear photographs. He can't print large posters at home, so the centre provides that service. I can explain basic phone settings to older visitors. My grandfather can sharpen garden tools and tell whether a wooden handle is safe. He can't use our booking app, but that doesn't make his skill less valuable. We have paired members with different abilities for a Saturday exchange. Nobody receives a score or a certificate. The aim is practical help. One card says, 'I can find lost keys.' Its owner is the receptionist, and her method is simply checking the last place carefully.

Listening · A Team for the School Website

Coordinator: We need a small team for the school website. Tell me your strengths.
Student: I can write short news reports and check names carefully. I can't edit videos yet.
Coordinator: That's useful. Zafar can edit videos, but he can't record clear sound without help.
Student: My sister can do that. She has a small microphone and knows the settings.
Coordinator: Excellent. We also need photographs of the classrooms.
Student: I can take those tomorrow. I can't enter the science lab during lessons, though, so I'll ask about a suitable time.
Coordinator: Good. The first story is about the gardening club.
Student: I can interview their leader. Their tomato plants look impressive.
Coordinator: Please photograph the plants too. Last year's picture showed only our gardener's hat. It was a fine hat, but it didn't explain the project.

Speaking

Ko‘nikmalar devoridagi uch kishini 90 soniyada tanishtiring; sherik yordam so‘rasin.

Mezon: Har kishining aniq qobiliyatini aytadi. · Can va can't bilan jami to‘rtta gap, modal ortidan asosiy fe’l ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Sayt koordinatori uchun 80–110 so‘zli jamoa vazifalari xabarini yozing.

Mezon: Yozish, video va ovoz vazifalarini to‘g‘ri taqsimlaydi. · Can/can't bilan qobiliyatni va hali yo‘q qobiliyatni farqlaydi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I can write short news reports for the school website and check names carefully. I can't edit videos yet, but Zafar can do that. He needs help with clear sound, and my sister can record it with her microphone. I can take classroom photographs tomorrow, although I need a suitable time for the science lab. Our first story is about the gardening club. I can interview the leader and photograph the tomato plants. This time the pictures will show the project clearly, not just the gardener's impressive hat.

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

Reading · The Event Access Checklist

Our class is helping organise a community exhibition. Before printing invitations, we are checking access to the building. Can visitors enter without using stairs? Yes, they can, through the side door. Can a wheelchair pass between the display tables? Not yet; two tables are too close together. We are moving them tomorrow. What can visitors do if they need a quiet place? They can use the small reading room near reception. Our volunteer team can explain the displays in Uzbek and English. Who can help with large-print labels? The school librarian can. She has offered to prepare them before Friday. The checklist is practical rather than decorative. A welcoming message matters, but a clear route and readable information make the welcome real. We will test the route again after arranging all the exhibits.

Listening · Borrowing the Sound Equipment

Volunteer: Can I collect the portable speaker for Saturday's event?
Technician: Yes, you can. Can you carry it safely on your own?
Volunteer: No, I can't. It looks heavier than I expected.
Technician: Then bring another volunteer. What can you use to transport it?
Volunteer: We can use the centre's trolley. Can the speaker run without a power socket?
Technician: Yes, it can. Its battery lasts about four hours at normal volume.
Volunteer: How can we connect the microphone?
Technician: Use this marked cable. Don't force it into the music input.
Volunteer: Can you show me once?
Technician: Certainly. Then you can repeat the steps while I watch.
Volunteer: Good idea. Last time I connected everything correctly except the power.
Technician: A silent speaker is very polite, but it isn't much help at a public event.

Speaking

Ko‘rgazmaga kirish sharoitlarini 90 soniyali savol-javobda tekshiring.

Mezon: Eshik, stollar oralig‘i va tinch xonani ajratadi. · Uch Can…? va bir wh-can savoli hamda qisqa javob ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Ovoz jihozini oluvchi sherikka 80–110 so‘zli yo‘riqnoma yozing.

Mezon: Aravacha, to‘rt soat batareya va belgilangan simni kiritadi. · Can savoli va unga qisqa javobni tabiiy matnga qo‘shadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We can collect the portable speaker for Saturday, but I can't carry it safely alone. Please come with me, and we can use the centre's trolley. Can the speaker work without a power socket? Yes, it can. The battery lasts about four hours at normal volume. We need the marked cable for the microphone, not the music input. The technician can demonstrate the connection, and then we can repeat the steps. I will also check the power before the event. A correctly connected but silent speaker won't help our audience.

Reading · Before the Swimming Lessons

When my aunt was ten, she could cycle across the village without stopping, but she couldn't swim. Her school was near a river, and she watched other children from the bank. Could her parents teach her? No, they couldn't; neither of them was a confident swimmer. A new sports teacher later started lessons at a shallow outdoor pool. At first, my aunt could only put her face in the water for a second. After several weeks, she could float and move across the small pool. She still couldn't dive, but that wasn't the teacher's first goal. Today she takes her grandchildren swimming and understands their nervousness. She keeps her old swimming cap in a drawer. It is bright orange and rather ugly, but it reminds her that ability often grows through many small attempts.

Listening · An Interview with a Sign Painter

Interviewer: Could you draw well as a child, Mr Saidov?
Painter: I could copy simple pictures, but I couldn't draw faces. Every person looked slightly surprised.
Interviewer: Could you paint large letters then?
Painter: Not at first. My father painted shop signs, and I watched him after school. By thirteen, I could paint neat capital letters with a wide brush.
Interviewer: What was difficult?
Painter: I couldn't keep the spacing even. Some words looked as if the letters were arguing and moving apart.
Interviewer: Could your father explain the spacing?
Painter: Yes, he could. He used pencil marks and showed me how to measure each gap.
Interviewer: Do you still use that method?
Painter: Often. Computers help with design now, but measuring carefully is still useful when the real wall isn't perfectly straight.

Mezon: Yuz chizish, o‘n uch yosh va oraliq o‘lchashni kiritadi. · O‘tmish umumiy qobiliyatini could/couldn't bilan ifodalaydi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Mr Saidov could copy simple pictures as a child, but he couldn't draw faces well. His father painted shop signs, and he watched him after school. By thirteen, he could paint neat capital letters with a wide brush. However, he couldn't keep the spaces between letters even. His father could explain this clearly. He used pencil marks and measured each gap before painting. Mr Saidov still uses that method today. Computers help him design signs, but careful measurement remains important when the real wall is not perfectly straight.

Reading · The Lift That Stopped

Our delivery team arrived at the community centre with a large folding table. Usually, we can use the lift, but yesterday it stopped working before we arrived. We weren't able to carry the table up the narrow stairs in one piece. The caretaker checked its frame and found removable legs. With his tools, we managed to take the legs off and carry everything safely upstairs. Before starting, our leader asked, 'May we use the side entrance for the smaller parts?' The caretaker agreed and kept the route clear. Next week, the centre will be able to use the lift again after a repair. Yesterday's problem delayed us, but the event began on time. We learned to measure entrances before deliveries. A folding table is useful only when someone remembers how it actually folds.

Reading · A Quiet Request at the Hostel

During our study trip, four of us shared a hostel room. Guests were allowed to use the common kitchen until ten, but cooking in bedrooms was not allowed. One evening, my roommate wanted hot tea while she worked on her presentation. She wrote a polite note to reception: 'I would like some hot water for tea. Could you tell me whether the kitchen is still open?' It was already ten fifteen. The receptionist brought a flask from the staff room and reminded us about the rule. She didn't change the kitchen hours, but she found a helpful solution. The next morning, we returned the flask and thanked her. A clear request worked better than complaining about the timetable. We also moved our evening study session earlier, so future tea breaks no longer required a small diplomatic mission.

Listening · A Request for a Library Display

Student: We'd like to display our local-history posters in the library. Could you help us choose a place?
Librarian: Certainly. You're allowed to use the board near the stairs, but not the windows.
Student: Would you move the old notices, please?
Librarian: I can move the expired ones. The current safety notice has to stay visible.
Student: Of course. We'd also like to leave feedback cards.
Librarian: That's fine. You're allowed to put a small box on this shelf.
Student: Could we keep the display here for two weeks?
Librarian: Yes, until the fifteenth. Please include a contact name.
Student: Thank you. Would you like an extra copy for the reading room?
Librarian: Yes, please. The photograph of the old cinema will interest many visitors. Several still remember its noisy projector better than any film.

Reading · The Community Recording Day

Our community centre held a recording day for older residents. Some visitors could tell long stories easily but couldn't use the recording software. Student volunteers could manage the equipment, although they needed help with unfamiliar place names. We paired people according to these different abilities. Visitors were allowed to choose whether their recordings stayed private or joined the public collection. One participant asked, 'Could you stop the recording for a moment?' She wanted to check a date with her sister. We paused immediately. Later, we managed to repair a loose microphone connection without losing any files. By the afternoon, we had recorded eight interviews. Next month, the volunteers will be able to edit them after additional training. The project showed that technical confidence and personal knowledge are different strengths, and both deserve respect.

Listening · Planning an Accessible Tour

Guide: We'd like to offer a tour for visitors with different mobility needs. Can everyone enter the courtyard?
Manager: Yes, through the west gate. The old front entrance has steps.
Guide: Could you unlock the west gate before nine?
Manager: Certainly. Visitors are allowed to use the ground-floor rooms, but the upstairs gallery has no lift.
Guide: Then we won't include it. Can we show photographs of those objects downstairs?
Manager: Yes. Last year we managed to create a portable display for another group.
Guide: Excellent. I'd like to borrow that display. Will we be able to use the quiet room afterwards?
Manager: Yes, until noon. Please reserve it today.
Guide: Thank you. A good tour should offer real choices, not leave some visitors waiting beside the stairs while everyone else disappears.

We would like to borrow the portable display and show photographs of the upstairs objects downstairs. After the tour, we will be able to use the quiet room until noon. I will reserve it today. This plan gives every visitor access to the same main information.

Our music club can record interviews, but we can't remove every background sound. Last week a gardener sang an old village song for us. We were able to finish the recording before the lawnmower started, although we couldn't stop a nearby bird. The gardener said we could share the song at school, but he didn't give permission to put it online. 'Could you send me a copy first?' he asked. We agreed. One student suggested asking him to record again indoors. Another said the bird made the recording feel natural. The club will ask the gardener what he prefers. Technical ability and permission are separate questions: a clear recording isn't automatically ours to publish everywhere.

Reading · Inside the Repair Workshop

Before our first practical session, the workshop leader explained three essential rules. We must wear safety glasses when cutting wire. We must keep bags away from the central walkway, and we mustn't touch plugged-in equipment during repairs. One student asked, 'Must we wear gloves for every task?' The leader explained that different tools need different protection, so we must follow each demonstration carefully. He showed us a damaged cable and disconnected it before touching the wires. The rules were specific, not simply a long list of frightening words. At the end, we practised arranging a safe work area without switching on any tools. My partner placed his sandwich beside the repair parts. The leader smiled and moved it to the break table. Even a hungry technician must distinguish lunch from spare components.

Listening · Rules for the Night Walk

Leader: Before we begin the nature walk, everyone must stay with a partner. We mustn't leave the marked path.
Visitor: Must we keep our torches on all the time?
Leader: No. At the observation point, I will ask you to turn them off briefly so our eyes adjust.
Visitor: What about photographs?
Leader: You mustn't use flash near the animals. It can disturb them.
Visitor: My phone has a quiet camera mode.
Leader: That's fine, but watch the path first. We must reach the wooden shelter before ten because the gate closes then.
Visitor: Must children walk at the front?
Leader: They must stay beside their accompanying adult. Our front volunteer will set a comfortable pace.
Visitor: Understood. I'll watch the path, not just my screen. I don't want my best wildlife photograph to be an accidental close-up of mud.

Reading · Joining the Weekend Market

Our school enterprise team is renting a table at the weekend market. Every seller has to register by Wednesday and provide a contact number. We have to bring our own tablecloth, but we don't have to bring a table because one is included in the fee. Does every seller have to accept card payments? No; cash payments are allowed, although clear prices are required. Our team leader has to collect the receipts and record the costs. The rest of us have different jobs: arranging products, answering questions and counting stock. We don't have to wear matching clothes, but we have chosen simple name badges. Last year's team wore enormous paper hats, and the wind kept removing them. This year, readable names seem more useful than airborne advertising above a table of notebooks.

Learner: What does the tutor have to know about us?
Assistant: Your contact details and any access needs. You don't have to send previous photographs.
Learner: Good. My current collection contains many accidental pictures of my thumb.
Assistant: Then the course has useful things to offer. You have to pay before the second lesson, but the introduction is free.

Reading · A Change of Exhibition Hall

Our art exhibition moved to another hall yesterday because a pipe burst in the original room. We had to carry twenty framed pictures across the courtyard. Luckily, we didn't have to remove the glass from the frames; the caretaker provided padded trolleys. Did we have to cancel the opening? No, but we had to delay it by one hour. The new hall had fewer wall hooks, so we placed several pictures on display stands. Tomorrow we will have to update the directions on our website and move the outdoor sign. The repair team expects the old hall to remain closed for a week. Our artist was calm about the change. She said the pictures had travelled farther in one afternoon than she had all month. The audience arrived late, but the paintings received plenty of attention.

Listening · After the Train Cancellation

Colleague: Did you have to stay overnight after your train was cancelled?
Traveller: No, I didn't have to. There was a later bus, but I had to change at the regional station.
Colleague: Did you have to buy another ticket?
Traveller: Yes. The bus company doesn't accept train tickets. I kept the receipt for my expense claim.
Colleague: That sounds tiring.
Traveller: It was. I had to carry my display case between two platforms, but a station worker helped me find the lift.
Colleague: What happens next?
Traveller: I'll have to submit the claim by Friday. I'll also have to leave more travel time for the next meeting.
Colleague: At least your presentation went well.
Traveller: Yes. My model building reached the meeting in one piece. It had a complicated journey for something designed to stay in one place.

Reading · Advice for the Community Garden

New members of our community garden receive a short welcome guide. It separates rules from advice. Members mustn't leave tools across the paths, because other gardeners may trip over them. They don't have to buy their own tools; shared equipment is available in the shed. The guide recommends arriving early during hot weather. Gardeners should bring drinking water and a hat, but they shouldn't work for long without a break. Nobody has to finish a whole bed in one visit. Our coordinator checks that beginners choose manageable tasks. Last summer, one enthusiastic volunteer tried to weed three beds before lunch and became exhausted. Now he helps explain the guide. He calls himself the garden's example of excessive ambition. His advice is friendly: a small area done carefully is better than a large area abandoned halfway through.

Listening · Advice Before a Video Interview

Mentor: You should test your microphone before tomorrow's online interview.
Applicant: Do I have to buy a new headset?
Mentor: No, you don't have to. Your current one sounds clear. You should choose a quiet room and check the lighting.
Applicant: My background is a bookshelf. Is that acceptable?
Mentor: Yes. You don't have to use a plain wall, but you mustn't display confidential documents on the screen.
Applicant: I sometimes read long notes while speaking.
Mentor: You shouldn't read every sentence. Prepare a few keywords instead and look towards the camera.
Applicant: My cat often walks across the desk.
Mentor: Then close the door during the interview. You should have water nearby too.
Applicant: Good plan. The cat is confident on camera, but she isn't applying for the job, and her main qualification is interrupting people.

Speaking

Bog‘dagi yangi a’zoga 90 soniyada qoida va maslahat bering.

Mezon: Asboblar qoidasi bilan suv/ta’til maslahatini ajratadi. · Mustn't, don't have to, should va shouldn't ni ishlatadi. · Belgilangan vaqtda tushunarli gapiradi va sherik savoliga javob beradi.

Writing

Intervyuga tayyorgarlik haqida 80–110 so‘zli tavsiyalar yozing.

Mezon: Mikrofon, maxfiy hujjat va kalit so‘zlarni kiritadi. · Majburiy taqiq, ixtiyoriy xarid va maslahatni aniq ajratadi. · 80–110 so‘z yozadi; gaplarni bosh harf va tinish belgisi bilan ajratadi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

You should test your microphone before the interview, but you don't have to buy a new headset because your current one sounds clear. Choose a quiet room and check the lighting. A bookshelf is an acceptable background, so you don't have to find a plain wall. However, you mustn't display confidential documents on the screen. You shouldn't read long notes word for word. Prepare a few keywords and look towards the camera. Close the door to keep the cat away from the desk, and have a glass of water nearby.

Reading · Too Many Copies

Before our training session, I printed fifty copies of the handbook. When I arrived, the organiser showed me a box of copies from the office. I needn't have printed any: the materials were already ready. My colleague had checked first, so she didn't need to print a handbook and brought only her notebook. We discussed how to avoid wasting paper next time. Should we email the organiser before preparing materials? Yes, we ought to confirm what is available. We need to bring our own pens, but we needn't buy special folders. The organiser also warned us about a timetable change: the session starts earlier tomorrow, so we had better check the new time tonight. My extra handbooks will serve the next group. They aren't useless, but a short message would have saved a long queue at the printer.

Listening · Preparing for the Committee Meeting

Member: Should I bring the large projector tomorrow?
Chair: No, you needn't. The room has one. We only need to bring the presentation file on a memory stick.
Member: I needn't have booked a taxi for the equipment, then. I've already paid for it.
Chair: I'm sorry we didn't tell you earlier. You ought to ask whether the booking can be changed.
Member: I will. What about printed agendas?
Chair: We didn't need to print any yesterday because everyone received a digital copy, so we saved the paper.
Member: Should I arrive at nine?
Chair: You'd better arrive at eight forty-five. We need to test the file before people enter.
Member: Understood. I'll bring the file and leave the projector at home. At least my small bag won't need its own taxi seat.

Reading · A Better Open Day

After our college open day, the volunteer team reviewed the instructions. Visitors had to sign in at reception, but they didn't have to book ordinary campus tours. They mustn't enter laboratories without a guide, and that rule was clearly displayed. Some information was less clear. Volunteers had printed extra maps, although reception already had enough. They needn't have used that paper. Next time, we will have to check supplies before ordering more. We should also place signs at the side entrance because several families missed the main desk. One parent asked whether children had to attend every talk. They didn't; the programme offered choices. Our new guide will separate compulsory steps from optional activities. The aim is a welcoming visit with understandable rules, not a day spent guessing what each coloured arrow means.

Listening · The Equipment Loan Review

Coordinator: Let's review yesterday's equipment loan. Did every borrower return a signed form?
Assistant: Yes. They had to sign before taking anything. They didn't have to pay a deposit for small items.
Coordinator: What should we change next time?
Assistant: We ought to explain the return times more clearly. One person brought a lamp after the office closed.
Coordinator: Agreed. Borrowers mustn't leave equipment outside the door. We'll have to put that on the form.
Assistant: I needn't have stayed late yesterday. The night receptionist could accept that lamp, but I didn't know.
Coordinator: You should check with reception first next time. You don't need to solve every problem alone.
Assistant: That's useful. Should we send a reminder on the return day?
Coordinator: Yes. A short reminder is better than a long search for a lamp without an owner.

Yesterday every borrower had to sign a form before taking equipment, but small items didn't require a deposit. We should explain the return times more clearly because one lamp arrived after the office closed. Borrowers mustn't leave equipment outside the door, so we will have to add that rule to the form. I needn't have stayed late because the night receptionist could accept the lamp. Next time I ought to check with reception first. We should also send a short reminder on the return day to reduce confusion and unnecessary waiting.

The community centre lends its projector to local clubs. Borrowers must sign the register and mustn't leave the machine in a parked car. They don't have to bring their own cable; one is included. At the previous meeting, we had to borrow an extra extension lead because the socket was far from the screen. This time the organiser has checked the room in advance. She says we should test the picture before the audience arrives. We needn't print fifty handouts because only twenty people have booked. Anyone using photographs ought to check permission from the people shown. The rules protect the equipment, while the advice helps the event run well. Confusing advice with a ban can make a simple service unnecessarily difficult.

Ustoz kaliti: Required; prohibited; unnecessary; advised.

Dalil: Borrowers must sign the register and mustn't leave the machine in a parked car. They don't have to bring their own cable / we should test the picture

Reading · The Silent Noticeboard

The noticeboard outside our community centre has been empty since Monday. Usually, it advertises language clubs, repairs and lost cats with surprisingly professional photographs. Several residents think the centre is closing, but the manager has not announced any closure. There are other possible explanations. The printer may be broken, or the volunteer may be away. The online calendar still shows three events for next week, although that information could be old. A cleaner saw a box of new drawing pins in the office yesterday. That detail suggests somebody plans to use the board again, but it does not prove when. I asked two neighbours before writing a message to the manager. One wanted to warn everyone immediately; the other preferred to wait. I chose a question rather than a warning. An empty board might mean a communication problem. It may not mean an empty building.

Listening · The Late Delivery

Mira: Our microphone hasn't arrived. The tracking page says it reached town yesterday, but the parcel could still be at the local office.
Owen: It might be at reception. Our receptionist sometimes accepts packages during lunch, and the message may not have reached us.
Mira: I checked reception. There is a box for the sports club, not ours. The driver may have used the side entrance.
Owen: That entrance is locked today. He might not know the new opening times. Let's contact the delivery office before we blame anyone.
Mira: Agreed. Our event starts tomorrow afternoon, so we still have time. I could ask the music club about a spare microphone.
Owen: Please do. Their equipment may be available, although they have a rehearsal tonight.
Mira: Then we have two tasks: locate the parcel and check a backup. Guessing alone won't make a microphone appear, however confidently we guess.

Speaking

90 soniyada bo‘sh e’lon doskasi sababiga ikki taxmin, har biriga dalil va bitta tekshirish qadamini ayting.

Mezon: Ikki may/might/could taxmini bor. · Dalil va tasdiqlanmagan xulosa ajratiladi. · Bitta may not/might not va amaliy tekshiruv bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda markaz rahbariga yuborish uchun vaziyat tahlili paragrafini yozing: ikki sabab, dalil va keyingi qadam.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Ikki ehtimol dalil bilan bog‘langan. · Aniq keyingi qadam va ehtiyotkor xulosa bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The empty noticeboard may have a simple explanation. The printer could be broken, or the volunteer might be away this week. The online calendar still lists three events, so I do not think we should announce a closure. However, the calendar may not be current. The new drawing pins in the office suggest that someone intends to use the board again. I recommend asking the manager when the next notices will appear. We could also offer to write a temporary notice by hand. This would give residents useful information while we check the facts. A clear question is more helpful than a dramatic rumour.

Reading · The Extra Lunches

At noon, the school kitchen had twelve extra lunches. The order sheet listed forty children, and the cook had prepared exactly forty meals. Only twenty-eight children were sitting in the dining room. The assistant first thought the missing group must be on a trip. However, the calendar showed no trip for that day. Then a teacher arrived carrying twelve empty trays. Her class was eating in the garden as part of a lesson about food waste. The lunches could not be unwanted: the class had specifically ordered them that morning. The assistant laughed at his own quick conclusion. Could the location of a meal matter as much as the number of meals? In this case, it did. He added a location column to the daily sheet. Counting carefully had not been enough; the team also needed to know where the children were. A full kitchen can still have an information gap.

Listening · The Wrong Building

Nadia: Could this be the training centre? The number is right, but the sign says Dental Laboratory.
Peter: It can't be our centre. The invitation describes a building with a glass entrance, and this door is wooden.
Nadia: We must be on the wrong street. There are two streets with almost the same name: College Road and College Lane.
Peter: You're right. Our message says Lane. The map search selected Road automatically.
Nadia: The organiser must receive a lot of confused calls. There is a special note about the two addresses at the bottom of the invitation.
Peter: Perhaps, but the note only proves that confusion is possible. It doesn't tell us how many people call.
Nadia: Fair correction. Let's check the walking route. We have twenty minutes, and the real centre is only six minutes away. My confidence arrived before my reading skills today.

Speaking

90 soniyada manzil bo‘yicha ikki kuchli taxmin ayting; sherik dalilning kuchini tekshirsin.

Mezon: Must va can't dalilga mos. · Could bilan bitta savol bor. · Bitta ortiqcha qat’iy xulosa yumshatiladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda tushlikdagi chalkashlikni hamkasblarga tushuntiruvchi tahliliy paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Must va can't kamida bittadan dalil bilan ishlatilgan. · Muammo va aniq tuzatish ayblovsiz tushuntirilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The twelve extra lunches must belong to the class in the garden. Their teacher brought twelve trays, and the class ordered food this morning. The meals can't simply be unwanted. Our first explanation about a school trip was not supported by the calendar. Could our daily sheet prevent this problem next time? I think it could, with a column for each group's eating location. Numbers alone do not explain where people are. The cook prepared the correct quantity, so we should not describe this as a cooking mistake. The problem was communication between the classroom and the kitchen, and a small change could make that communication clearer.

Reading · The Warm Printer

When I entered the library office at seven, the printer was warm and a stack of certificates lay beside it. Nobody was there. The librarian must have printed them recently, I thought. Yet her coat was missing, and she usually arrives after eight. A volunteer might have come early instead. The computer screen showed a document called Garden Awards, but a filename could have remained open from the previous evening. I noticed a handwritten message: 'Please leave these for the breakfast group.' That explained the purpose, although not the person responsible. Someone might be preparing the ceremony downstairs now. I took the certificates to the kitchen and found the caretaker arranging flowers. He had printed them during his early shift. The machine's warmth had been useful evidence of recent activity, but it had not identified the user. A printer can reveal timing without revealing a name.

Listening · A Closed Workshop

Rafi: The workshop door is locked, but I can hear a machine. They might be cutting wood in the back room.
Ella: They must have changed the entrance arrangements. A new sign points to the side gate.
Rafi: Or they could have locked this door just for the delivery. There is a truck outside.
Ella: True. The message on my phone says the session starts at two. I might have missed an update, though.
Rafi: Let's ring the bell at the side gate. We shouldn't stand here inventing a mystery about a perfectly ordinary door.
Ella: Someone is coming. She may be carrying the materials for our class.
Rafi: Yes, she has a box of safety glasses. The sound must have been a demonstration, not a full lesson. Still, we should ask rather than treat that as certain.
Ella: Agreed. Hearing a machine tells us something is happening, not exactly what.

Speaking

90 soniyada printer voqeasiga hozirgi bir taxmin va o‘tmishdagi ikki taxmin ayting; ularning dalilini ko‘rsating.

Mezon: Might be + -ing hozirga tegishli. · Must/might have + V3 o‘tmishga tegishli. · Shaxs va vaqtga oid dalillar aralashtirilmagan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda yopiq ustaxona yonidagi kuzatuvlaringizni ehtiyotkor xulosa bilan yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Hozirgi va o‘tgan taxminning kamida bittadan namunasi bor. · Aniq kuzatuv va tekshirish qadami bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The workshop team might be preparing our materials in the back room. We can hear a machine, and a woman is carrying safety glasses. They may have moved the entrance because a delivery truck is outside the main door. The new sign must have been put there for a reason, but we do not yet know whether the change is permanent. Ella might have missed a message about it. We should ring the side bell and ask where to wait. The sound suggests activity, but it does not prove that our lesson has already started. Checking directly will give us a clearer answer than guessing outside.

Reading · The Missing Booking

Our debate team arrived at the hall and found a yoga class inside. We had booked the space by phone, but nobody had sent written confirmation. The manager checked the system: our request was still marked 'awaiting details'. We couldn't have completed the booking, because the final form was blank. I had assumed the phone conversation was enough. I should have asked for confirmation, and the office should have explained the final step clearly. We shouldn't have invited an audience before checking the room. Fortunately, the library offered us a smaller space. Some teammates wanted to blame one person, but that would have hidden the shared process problem. After the debate, we created a simple checklist with a named person for each stage. The yoga class kept its calm atmosphere; our team gained a practical lesson about paperwork without needing to practise any difficult poses.

Listening · The Deleted Recording

Host: Our interview file is missing. I can't have deleted it this morning; I haven't opened the folder today.
Editor: I moved some files last night. I should have checked the names before moving them.
Host: We shouldn't have used titles like Final, Final New and Really Final. Those names are almost an invitation to confusion.
Editor: I agree. But moving is not deleting. The file could still be in the archive folder.
Host: Here it is, under Tuesday Interview. We should have included the guest's name and the date.
Editor: Let's rename it and make a backup before we edit. I am relieved, but this was avoidable.
Host: So am I. The guest gave us an hour of her time. Losing that would be more serious than losing our tidy desktop.
Editor: I'll write a short naming guide. No file should need to shout 'really final' at its neighbours.

Speaking

90 soniyada bron xatosini ayblovsiz tahlil qiling: imkonsiz taxmin, qilinishi kerak bo‘lgan ish va qilinmasligi kerak bo‘lgan ish.

Mezon: Can't/couldn't have dalil bilan bog‘langan. · Should have va shouldn't have + V3 bor. · Tuzatish shaxsni ayblashdan ko‘ra jarayonga qaratilgan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda yozuv fayli muammosidan keyingi ish tartibini taklif qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Uch o‘tgan modal shakli to‘g‘ri. · Oldingi dalilga mos xulosa va ikki amaliy chora bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We should have named the interview file with the guest's name and the recording date. Titles such as Really Final did not tell us enough. The host can't have deleted the file this morning because she did not open the folder. The editor moved it last night, and it was still safe in the archive. We shouldn't have assumed that a missing file was a deleted file. Before our next interview, we should agree on a naming system and a backup location. One person should check both copies after recording. This will protect the guest's contribution and save the team from another unnecessary search.

Reading · A Festival without Enough Chairs

Our film night attracted more visitors than expected. We could have borrowed chairs from the sports hall, but we decided the thirty seats in our room would be enough. Several people watched from the floor, and one cheerful visitor called it an unusually realistic camping film. The joke helped, but comfort still mattered. Next month, attendance is likely to rise because the local college is sharing our programme. Bad weather is unlikely to reduce numbers much; the event is indoors and close to a bus stop. We will probably need fifty chairs, although we should count registrations before arranging transport. The organiser definitely wants to keep entry free. That makes borrowing more suitable than buying. Our mistake was not a lack of options. We had an option and chose not to use it. A better estimate and an early phone call could prevent a repeat.

Listening · The Train We Didn't Take

Lena: We could have taken the direct train, but we chose the cheaper bus. Now we are arriving an hour later.
Sam: The delay is frustrating, but the price difference paid for lunch. I don't think the decision was completely unreasonable.
Lena: Fair point. Next time, the early train is likely to be busy because the exhibition opens at nine.
Sam: We should probably book seats a week ahead. Tickets are unlikely to become cheaper on the day.
Lena: I definitely don't want another journey with three changes.
Sam: Then let's compare the whole journey, not only the fare. A cheap ticket can cost time and energy.
Lena: Agreed. We still have four hours at the exhibition today, so the trip isn't ruined.
Sam: Exactly. We can learn from the choice without turning one late bus into a national transport disaster.

Speaking

90 soniyada kino kechasi uchun o‘tgan imkon va keyingi safar ehtimolini bog‘lab tavsiya bering.

Mezon: Could have + V3 bajarilmagan imkonni bildiradi. · Likely/unlikely to dan bittasi ishlatiladi. · Probably/definitely o‘rni va qat’iylik darajasi mos.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda keyingi kino kechasi uchun jihoz rejasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · O‘tgan foydalanilmagan imkon va kelajak taxmini farqlangan. · Xarajat hamda qulaylikka oid dalilli tavsiya bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We could have borrowed extra chairs for the last film night, but we underestimated attendance. Next month's audience is likely to be larger because the college is promoting the event. We will probably need about fifty seats. However, registrations should guide the final number. Rain is unlikely to discourage many visitors because the venue is indoors and near public transport. I definitely support keeping entry free. We should therefore ask the sports hall about borrowing chairs before considering a purchase. One volunteer can count bookings while another arranges collection. This approach uses evidence, protects our small budget and gives visitors a more comfortable evening.

Reading · The Unclaimed Exhibition

Three framed photographs arrived at our youth centre without a sender's note. They showed the old railway bridge, so they might belong to the local history group. However, the group's organiser denied sending them. A delivery label carried yesterday's date, which meant the parcel couldn't have been waiting in our office for weeks. We should have recorded the driver's details, but reception had been busy. The frames were new, and someone must have spent money preparing the pictures. That made throwing them into storage a poor response. We posted a neutral description online without publishing the photographs. By evening, a former member contacted us. She had intended them for next month's exhibition but had forgotten the note. We could have guessed correctly, yet a careful enquiry worked better. Clear labels are likely to become a firm rule for future donations, alongside a rather less official request for readable handwriting.

Listening · The Quiet Ticket App

Manager: Online bookings have dropped, but the theatre may not be losing interest. The ticket app might be failing.
Analyst: The phone bookings are normal. That supports your idea. We should have tested the update before releasing it.
Manager: Could customers be giving up at the payment screen?
Analyst: Possibly. I tried twice, and both payments failed. The app can't be working reliably.
Manager: We could have kept the old version available, but we removed it too soon.
Analyst: The technician is checking it now. She is likely to find the problem today, though I can't promise a time.
Manager: Then we will probably direct customers to phone booking temporarily.
Analyst: Yes, and explain why. Silence may look like indifference. Customers should not need detective skills just to buy a seat for a comedy.
Manager: I'll prepare a brief notice with the phone number and an apology.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada ilova muammosini dalil, ikki taxmin, oldingi xato va vaqtinchalik yechim bilan tushuntiring.

Mezon: Uch turli modal shakli to‘g‘ri. · Bitta taxminning chegarasi aytiladi. · Ikki aniq dalil va amaliy chora bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda nomsiz suratlar kelganda amal qilinadigan tahliliy tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Kamida uch modal shakli voqeaga mos. · Dalil, taxmin va kelajak qoidasi aniq ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The photographs might have belonged to several local groups, so guessing the sender was not enough. Yesterday's delivery date showed that they couldn't have been in our office for weeks. We should have recorded the driver's details, although that might not have identified the sender immediately. Publishing a neutral description was a sensible choice because it invited information without exposing the pictures. The former member then confirmed her intention. Future donations are likely to arrive with fewer problems if we request a sender's name and exhibition date. We could also keep a simple arrival log. Careful questions protect both the donation and the relationship with its owner.

The Closed Workshop

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 30 daqiqa; qo‘shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa taxmin; 10 daqiqa mustaqil o‘qish; 12 daqiqa javob; 5 daqiqa dalil tekshiruvi.

The pottery workshop was locked when three students arrived at two. A light was on upstairs, but nobody answered the bell. 'The teacher must have forgotten us,' one student said. Another noticed a note inside the glass door, too far away to read. The third checked their booking message: it said half past two, not two. The teacher might have been preparing upstairs, or the light could have been left on by someone else. Neither possibility was confirmed. The students waited in the café opposite and sent a message. At two twenty-five, the teacher opened the door and apologised for missing the bell. She had been moving clay in the back room. The unreadable note gave the afternoon opening time. The incident showed that a plausible explanation can still be wrong, especially when a small detail in the original evidence has been overlooked.

h-17-1 · Was 'must have forgotten us' justified at two?

Ustoz kaliti: No; the booking was for 2:30 and the light did not establish what the teacher was doing.

Dalil: it said half past two, not two.

Dalil: A light was on upstairs / The teacher might have been preparing upstairs / She had been moving clay in the back room.

h-17-3 · Order: booking check; teacher opens; students ring at two.

Ustoz kaliti: Ring at two → booking check → teacher opens at 2:25.

Dalil: arrived at two. / The third checked their booking message / At two twenty-five, the teacher opened the door

h-17-4 · Why mention the note being too far away to read?

Ustoz kaliti: It explains why the opening-time information was present but unavailable to the waiting students.

Dalil: too far away to read. / The unreadable note gave the afternoon opening time.

Reading · Why the Seed Tray Fails

Our gardening group keeps a notebook of repeated problems. If seedlings get too little light, they grow long and weak. If we water them too heavily, the soil stays wet and the roots struggle. These statements describe regular patterns, not one future experiment. Last month, we moved half the trays to a brighter window and kept the other half on the original shelf. The brighter group grew shorter, stronger stems. However, light was not the only difference: the window area was also cooler. We therefore avoid claiming that our small comparison proves everything. What happens if we change two conditions at once? We cannot easily identify the cause of an improvement. Our next trial will change only the location of the lamp. The notebook has become more valuable than our enthusiastic guesses. Even the tray labelled 'Guaranteed Success' now carries a question mark, which is probably its most scientific feature.

Listening · The Shared Calendar

Trainer: What happens if two people edit the same event without checking each other?
Assistant: We sometimes get conflicting times. If the organiser doesn't name an owner, everyone assumes somebody else will check it.
Trainer: Exactly. If an event has one named owner, questions reach the right person. That doesn't mean nobody else can help.
Assistant: Our volunteers worry that ownership means extra work.
Trainer: It usually means a clear point of contact. If the owner is away, a deputy takes over. We write both names on the calendar.
Assistant: And if the time changes?
Trainer: The owner updates the calendar and sends a message. If people only change the calendar, some participants miss the news.
Assistant: So the system needs a record and a notification.
Trainer: Yes. A perfect calendar is not useful if nobody knows it has changed. Our old one was accurate in the same way a secret is accurate: quietly, and for very few people.

Speaking

90 soniyada ko‘chat tajribasini tushuntiring: uch takroriy sabab–natija va bitta tekshirish savoli.

Mezon: Uch if + Simple, Simple gapi bor. · Bir inkor shart ishlatiladi. · Bir shart savoli va cheklov tushuntiriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda umumiy kalendarni yuritish qoidalarini sabab–natija bilan yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Uch zero conditional ma’noga mos. · Mas’uliyat va xabar berish farqi aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If an event has no named owner, questions often go unanswered. Our calendar should therefore show an organiser and a deputy for every activity. If the organiser is away, the deputy checks messages and updates the details. If a time changes, the responsible person sends a notification as well as editing the calendar. A silent change does not reach people who have already written down the old time. If two volunteers notice conflicting information, they contact the owner before making separate corrections. This system does not prevent teamwork. It makes teamwork clearer by giving everyone a reliable place to ask questions and report problems.

Reading · A Rain Plan for the Street Fair

The street fair committee has finally written a rain plan. If the forecast shows heavy rain on Friday, we will move Saturday's book stalls into the school hall. Food sellers will stay under the covered entrance because cooking is not allowed indoors. If the hall is unavailable, we won't cancel immediately; we will ask the sports centre about its smaller rooms. Some traders dislike changing locations because customers may miss them. The committee will print a simple map if a move becomes necessary. Will volunteers be able to guide visitors if the weather turns suddenly? Two teams have agreed to stand at the original entrances. The plan costs a little extra, but it protects a month of preparation. Nobody can promise sunshine. The chairperson says her official responsibility ends at arranging shelter, not negotiating directly with the clouds. Everyone accepts that reasonable limit on her otherwise ambitious job description.

Listening · The Trial Evening Class

Tutor: If twelve people register by Monday, we'll open the evening class next month.
Learner: Will you run it if only ten people join?
Tutor: We won't decide on numbers alone. If a partner organisation covers the room fee, ten may be enough.
Learner: Some parents can't arrive before seven.
Tutor: If the group prefers a later start, we'll discuss seven thirty with the caretaker. We won't promise that time until the building confirms it.
Learner: That sounds fair. Will there be online materials if somebody misses a lesson?
Tutor: Yes. If a learner is absent, we'll send the tasks, but they will still need to practise with a partner later.
Learner: So flexibility doesn't mean doing nothing.
Tutor: Exactly. An evening course should fit real lives without turning into a collection of unread attachments. Our first job is to find a schedule people can actually keep.

Speaking

90 soniyada yomg‘ir rejasini himoya qiling; sherik ikki if savolini bersin.

Mezon: Ikki real kelajak sharti bor. · Will/won't natijasi to‘g‘ri. · Bir yes/no shart savoliga javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ochiladigan kechki kurs shartlarini izchil tushuntiring.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch real shart/natija bor. · Tasdiqlanmagan vaqt va qatnashish mas’uliyati ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If twelve learners register by Monday, the centre will open an evening course next month. If only ten register, the team will look for help with the room fee before making a final decision. We won't announce a later starting time until the caretaker confirms access to the building. If parents prefer seven thirty, their request will be part of that discussion. Absent learners will receive the lesson tasks, but they will also need partner practice. This arrangement offers flexibility without removing responsibility. A useful course needs both a realistic timetable and regular participation, so registration numbers should not be the only consideration.

Reading · The Repair Voucher

Our neighbourhood repair scheme gives residents a voucher for one basic assessment. Unless you book a time, the mechanic cannot guarantee a same-day check. If you arrive early, wait in the marked area rather than beside the workbench. What should you do if the repair costs more than the voucher covers? Ask for a written estimate before agreeing. Some residents thought the voucher promised a complete free repair, so the organisers changed the information leaflet. The new version explains the difference between assessment and repair in large print. If a part is unavailable, you can take the item home and return later. You do not have to leave it indefinitely. The scheme aims to reduce waste, but it must also respect people's time and budgets. A free assessment is useful only if its limits are clear. Small print should not be the most physically demanding part of fixing a chair.

Listening · A Safe Route Home

Coordinator: What will your group do if the main path floods?
Walker: We'll use the higher path by the school.
Coordinator: Good. Unless the weather improves, don't cross the stream. If you are unsure, call the group leader.
Walker: Can we split into smaller teams if some people walk slowly?
Coordinator: Yes, if each team has an experienced adult and a phone. Keep everyone informed before separating.
Walker: What if a phone has no signal?
Coordinator: Stay together and return to the last marked junction. Don't invent a shortcut. The route card gives the landmarks in order.
Walker: So speed is not our main target.
Coordinator: Exactly. Finishing safely matters more than finishing early. We can change the plan if conditions change, but we shouldn't change it secretly. A group walk is not a competition to discover how many different directions ten people can choose.

Speaking

90 soniyada ta’mirlash taloni shartlarini tushuntiring, what if savoliga maslahat bering.

Mezon: Unless ma’nosi inkor shartiga mos. · If bilan modal va buyruq natijasi bor. · Bir ehtimoliy vaziyatga aniq javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda sayr guruhi uchun tushunarli xavfsiz yo‘l ko‘rsatmasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Unless va ikki if ko‘rsatmasi aniq. · Shartlar manbadagi xavfsiz tartibni saqlaydi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If the main path floods, use the higher route beside the school. Unless the weather improves, do not cross the stream. Call the leader if you are unsure about the conditions. You can divide into smaller teams if each team has an experienced adult and a working phone. Tell the other team before separating. What should you do if there is no signal? Stay together and return to the last marked junction. The route card lists landmarks in order, so keep it accessible. Our aim is a safe shared walk. Arriving early is not a success if part of the group is missing.

Reading · If the Square Had No Cars

Our youth council is discussing an imaginary car-free square. If the town removed parking from the centre, there would be space for trees, benches and a small performance area. Some students see only benefits. A shopkeeper is less certain: if customers could not park nearby, they might shop elsewhere. Another resident argues that people would stay longer if the square felt pleasant. Neither claim is a fact yet. We would need information about deliveries, disabled access and current shopping habits before supporting a permanent change. Would residents accept a trial if it lasted only one Sunday? Several local businesses say they would. That seems more useful than designing an expensive fountain immediately. If we spent the entire budget on a beautiful feature, we wouldn't have money to test practical access. Our dream square needs imagination, but it also needs a way for someone to deliver a crate of tomatoes.

Listening · The Four-Day Club

Chair: Would you support a four-day working week for our community office if the hours were longer?
Volunteer: I would consider it, but I wouldn't support closing on our busiest day. People need help on Fridays.
Chair: If we moved the quiet Wednesday hours to other days, we could keep Friday open.
Volunteer: That would suit some staff. However, if parents worked longer evenings, childcare might become harder.
Chair: True. We would need individual schedules, not one rule for everyone.
Volunteer: Would the public understand the new timetable?
Chair: They would if we explained it clearly and kept the phone line open.
Volunteer: Then I would support a short trial, not an immediate permanent change.
Chair: Agreed. A calendar with fewer workdays is attractive, but it does not automatically create fewer responsibilities. The office plants will still expect somebody to remember them.

If our town removed parking from the square, residents would gain space for trees and seating. People might spend more time there, which could help nearby shops. However, some customers would find access harder if they could not park close to the entrances. I would support a one-day trial before a permanent decision. We would need to protect deliveries and disabled access during that trial. If we spent the budget on a fountain first, we wouldn't learn whether the basic plan worked. A modest experiment would give us evidence about movement, shopping and comfort. Attractive drawings alone would not answer those practical questions.

Reading · A Small Grant, a Large Dream

Our reading club can apply for a small grant this month. If we receive it, we will buy portable lights for evening events. That is a realistic plan with a clear price. Our chair also enjoys a bigger dream: if we owned the empty shop next door, we would open a permanent reading cafe. We do not own it, and the grant would not cover a building. Mixing these two ideas in one application could confuse the funder. What would we do if unlimited money were available? That is an interesting planning question, but it is not this application's question. I told the chair, 'If I were you, I would keep the cafe as a long-term ambition and explain the lights first.' She agreed. A modest request is not a lack of vision. It shows that we understand the next useful step. Even a grand library needs somebody to pay attention to the light switch.

Listening · Choosing a Training Course

Aisha: If I get a place on the local course, I'll study after work. The deadline is Friday.
Ben: What would you do if you could study anywhere?
Aisha: I'd choose a full-time design course abroad, but I can't leave my job now.
Ben: If I were you, I would compare the local course with your actual weekly schedule.
Aisha: I have. If the classes finish at eight, I can catch the last direct bus.
Ben: And if they finished at ten?
Aisha: I would need a taxi, which would make the course too expensive.
Ben: Then transport is part of the decision, not a small detail.
Aisha: Exactly. My dream course is useful for understanding my interests. The real course needs to fit my budget and journey home.
Ben: Sensible. Ambition is excellent, but it should not strand you at a bus stop every Tuesday.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada kurs tanlovini real reja va xayoliy orzu sifatida ajrating; bitta maslahat bering.

Mezon: First va second conditional ma’nosi aniq. · If I were you bilan asosli maslahat bor. · Savolga vaqt/xarajat dalili bilan javob beriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda klub grant arizasi mazmuniga maslahat paragrafini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Real va noreal shartning ikkalasi mavjud. · If boshida kelganda vergul, oxirida kelganda tabiiy tartib saqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If the club receives the small grant, it will be able to buy portable lights for evening meetings. That is a clear and affordable request. If the club owned the neighbouring shop, it could create a reading cafe, but that situation is only a dream at present. If I were the chair, I would explain the lighting project first and mention the cafe only as a future ambition. The funder needs to understand what this particular money will achieve. A focused application does not reduce the club's vision. It connects that vision to a practical next step with a realistic cost and an immediate benefit.

Reading · A Tool Library Proposal

Our street association wants a tool library. If people share rarely used equipment, they save storage space and avoid buying the same things repeatedly. That general benefit sounds convincing, but borrowing needs rules. If the pilot opens next month, members will book tools through a simple paper register. Unless a volunteer checks an item on return, damage may go unnoticed. One resident imagines a digital system with automatic lockers. If we had a larger budget, that would be attractive, but we currently have enough money only for shelves and basic repairs. The proposal therefore begins with twenty donated tools and two opening evenings a week. Would more residents join if collection were available on Saturday? The committee will ask before fixing the schedule. A useful service must match people's lives. There is little point in sharing a drill if its opening hours require everyone to become an expert in rearranging their working week.

Listening · The Shared Lunch Decision

Facilitator: If people bring dishes without labels, guests with allergies cannot choose safely. That is our first rule: label ingredients.
Member: If everyone agrees, we'll hold the lunch next Thursday. What will we do if it rains?
Facilitator: We'll use the downstairs room. Unless the lift is working, we won't use the upper floor.
Member: Good. If we had a professional kitchen, we could cook together, but our room only has a kettle.
Facilitator: Then food should arrive ready to eat. If I were you, I would choose something simple to transport.
Member: Would you include neighbours outside the association?
Facilitator: Yes, if we had enough places. For this pilot, we'll reserve ten seats for them and review attendance afterwards.
Member: That balances welcome and capacity.

Facilitator: Exactly. A community lunch needs generosity, but it also needs enough chairs and accurate information about the mysterious green sauce.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada asbob kutubxonasi uchun qoida, real ishga tushirish rejasi va kelajak farazini taklif qiling.

Mezon: Uch shart turi ma’nosi ajratilgan. · Unless yoki maslahat qolipi bor. · Budjetga mos asos va e’tirozga javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda asbob kutubxonasini qo‘llab-quvvatlovchi, cheklovini tan oluvchi paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Qoida, reja va farazning har biri bor. · Ikki dalil va aniq keyingi qadam bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If neighbours share tools, they save money and space. I support starting a small tool library with the twenty donated items. If the pilot opens next month, a paper register will be enough for bookings. Unless somebody checks each returned tool, the service may miss damage and disappoint the next borrower. If we had more money, automatic lockers would offer flexible collection, but they are not our first priority. We should ask residents whether Saturday opening would help them. A simple service with suitable hours would be more useful than an impressive system that few people can access. The pilot should test demand before expanding.

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 30 daqiqa; qo‘shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa taxmin; 10 daqiqa mustaqil o‘qish; 12 daqiqa javob; 5 daqiqa dalil tekshiruvi.

Our clinic is considering a shaded waiting area outside. If metal seats stand in direct sun, they become uncomfortable. If the council approves the plan, volunteers will install a canopy next month. The receptionist supports the idea because the indoor room is crowded on market days. A nurse is less certain: if patients wait outside, staff may not hear them ask for help. She suggests a bell and clear signs. One resident says that if she had more money, she would donate a water dispenser too. That is an imagined contribution, not a confirmed offer. The clinic will try the canopy for four weeks before making it permanent. If the trial reveals new difficulties, the team will adjust the arrangement. The aim is to increase comfort without making it harder for vulnerable patients to contact staff.

Reading · The Poster with No Address

Our free repair event had tools, volunteers and a cheerful poster. Unfortunately, the poster gave the date but not the address. We shared it online on Wednesday and waited for a busy Saturday. Only regular visitors came. If we had included the address, new residents would have found us more easily. If one person had checked the poster as an outsider, the omission would probably have been obvious. We had all worked in the centre for years, so its location felt like common knowledge. The mistake was not a lack of enthusiasm; it was an assumption about our audience. After the event, we asked two newcomers to review our next announcement. They also wanted bus information and a contact number. If we hadn't made the first mistake, we might not have noticed these wider needs. That does not make the mistake desirable, but it gives the disappointing afternoon a useful consequence.

Listening · The Late Team Entry

Captain: If we had submitted our entry on Thursday, we would have met the deadline. I left it until Friday evening.
Member: And if I hadn't assumed you were handling payment, I would have checked it myself. We both missed a step.
Captain: The form was ready, but the payment link closed at five. I thought it stayed open until midnight.
Member: The rules stated five clearly. We should separate the deadline from the day in our checklist.
Captain: Agreed. If our reminder had included the time, we wouldn't have arrived at a closed page.
Member: We can still volunteer at the tournament. That won't replace competing, but we can learn how the event runs.
Captain: Let's do that. I don't want our whole month to become a story about one button we didn't press.
Member: Then next time, one person submits and another confirms. Trust is useful; a receipt is useful too.

Speaking

90 soniyada afishadagi xatoni ikki muqobil o‘tgan natija orqali tushuntiring.

Mezon: Ikki if + had V3, would have V3 bor. · Bitta inkor shart yoki natija bor. · Sabab va oqibat vaqt jihatdan mos.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda afisha muammosi bo‘yicha foydali retrospektiv paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Ikki o‘tgan noreal shart to‘g‘ri. · Ayblov o‘rniga aniq jarayon tuzatishi taklif qilingan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If we had added the address to our poster, more newcomers would have found the repair event. We knew the building well and forgot that other people did not share that knowledge. If we hadn't asked newcomers to review the next announcement, we might have missed their need for bus details and a phone number too. Our future review should therefore include someone outside the organising team. A checklist can cover date, time, location, transport and contact information. The quiet event was disappointing, but blaming the designer alone would not improve our process. The whole team approved the poster, so the whole team should support the correction.

Reading · The Interview We Almost Cancelled

A local historian agreed to speak at our youth club, but her train was cancelled. We nearly abandoned the session. Instead, one volunteer suggested a phone interview through a speaker. Would we have tried that if our audience had already arrived? Probably not; the extra hour gave us time to test the sound. What might have happened if we had cancelled immediately? Some visitors might have lost interest in future events, although we cannot know that for certain. The remote format had disadvantages: questions were slower, and the historian could not show her maps clearly. However, we recorded the audio with her permission and later added photographs of the maps. If we had insisted on a perfect live event, we could have missed a useful alternative. The result was not identical to our original plan. It was a different event with different strengths, including a historian speaking from her kitchen beside an occasionally opinionated kettle.

Listening · The Unchosen Exhibition Space

Curator: Would we have attracted more visitors if we had used the station hall?
Artist: We might have, because more people pass through it. But many would have been rushing for trains.
Curator: What could we have done to encourage them to stop?
Artist: We could have displayed fewer pieces with larger labels. Our detailed notes suited the quiet library better.
Curator: So the station wasn't automatically a better choice.
Artist: Exactly. If we had wanted brief encounters, it might have worked well. We wanted visitors to spend time with the stories.
Curator: The library gave us that, though attendance was smaller.
Artist: Next time, we could use a small station display to invite people to the main exhibition.
Curator: A combination rather than a competition between venues.
Artist: Yes. The best room depends on the experience we want, not just the number of shoes passing the doorway.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada bekat va kutubxona ko‘rgazmasini muhokama qiling; ikki o‘tgan faraz savoli bering.

Mezon: Would … have … if savoli bor. · What could/might … have savoli bor. · Could/might natijasi aniq bo‘lmagan deb tushuntiriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda bekat varianti haqidagi farazni muvozanatli tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · O‘tgan faraz savoli va could/might javobi bor. · Qatnashuv va chuqur o‘qish mezonlari farqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Would the exhibition have reached more people if it had been in the station? It might have, but passing a display is not the same as studying it. We could have used larger labels and fewer works to suit hurried travellers. However, that would have changed the experience we wanted. The library offered a quiet place for reading personal stories. If we had chosen the station only for its foot traffic, we might have lost that depth. A future station display could introduce the project and direct interested people to the library. This would connect broad visibility with the opportunity for a longer visit.

Reading · The Skill That Opened a Door

Two years ago, I joined a free spreadsheet course because a friend needed company. Today, I manage bookings for a community sports centre. If I hadn't taken that course, I wouldn't feel confident with the booking system now. The connection is clear: an old decision supports a present skill. Another connection works in the opposite direction. I am naturally comfortable speaking to strangers. If I were less confident with people, I wouldn't have volunteered to explain the new system at last month's meeting. Neither statement means my career was inevitable. Other people helped, and I still make mistakes. Last week, I briefly booked a room for a meeting of zero people, which was at least easy to organise. Looking back helps me identify useful habits, not write a heroic story about myself. A small opportunity can matter later, especially when we keep practising the skill after the original course ends.

Listening · The Bike and the Missed Bus

Zara: If I had repaired my bicycle last weekend, I wouldn't be waiting for this bus now.
Imran: Would you be cycling today if the weather were worse?
Zara: Probably not. But the weather is fine, and my tyre is still flat.
Imran: I understand. If I were better at planning, I would have bought my train ticket before the cheap seats disappeared yesterday.
Zara: So your present habit affected a past choice, while my past delay affects this morning.
Imran: Exactly. Neither of us needs a lecture; we need one practical change.
Zara: I'll book the repair today rather than promise to become a completely different person.
Imran: And I'll set a ticket reminder. I am good at remembering concerts but apparently less talented at remembering how to reach them.
Zara: Small systems might help more than dramatic regrets. For now, at least the bus is finally coming.

Speaking

90 soniyada ikki vaqt yo‘nalishidagi bittadan hayotiy faraz va amaliy yechim ayting.

Mezon: O‘tgan sababdan hozirgi natija to‘g‘ri. · Hozirgi xususiyatdan o‘tgan natija to‘g‘ri. · Now/yesterday kabi vaqt tayanchi aniq.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda o‘rganilgan ko‘nikmaning hozirgi foydasi va odatning o‘tgan qarorga ta’sirini tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Ikki yo‘nalishdagi mixed conditional bor. · Vaqt munosabati va cheklangan xulosa aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If I hadn't joined the spreadsheet course, I wouldn't be comfortable managing bookings now. Practice after the course made that knowledge useful. My confidence with people also affected an earlier decision. If I were more nervous about speaking, I wouldn't have explained the system at last month's meeting. These connections show two directions between past events and present circumstances. They do not prove that one course explains every success. Colleagues helped me, and I still need to improve. My next step is to document common booking errors and practise checking them. Reflection is useful when it leads to a specific habit rather than a perfect story about the past.

Reading · The Courtyard at Midnight

Our apartment courtyard is popular in summer, but late conversations echo between the walls. I wish the benches were farther from the bedrooms. That describes a present situation I cannot easily change. I also wish I had raised the problem politely at the residents' meeting last month. Instead, I posted an angry message at midnight, and the discussion became personal. Several neighbours replied that they had nowhere else to meet after work. Their need is real, even if the noise is difficult for others. I wish everyone would lower their voices after ten, and I wish our group chat would stop turning every request into a battle. We are now discussing a quiet period and a different seating arrangement. If only I had begun with those practical suggestions. A complaint can express a genuine problem while still using an unhelpful method. The courtyard needs both conversation and sleep, not a winner.

Listening · The Group Project Regret

Maya: I wish we had divided the project earlier. Now three people are editing the same section.
Leon: I wish our shared document had clearer headings. I can't tell which comments are still relevant.
Maya: And I wish Dan would reply to messages before changing the slides. His ideas are good, but the timing creates confusion.
Leon: Let's avoid making him the entire problem. I changed two charts without telling anyone yesterday.
Maya: You're right. If only we had agreed on a review process at the start.
Leon: We can still assign sections today and freeze changes an hour before the presentation.
Maya: Good. I wish we had more time, but another complaint won't create it.
Leon: Exactly. Let's make the remaining time useful. Our slides don't need six people moving the same comma around like an expensive piece of furniture.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada shovqin muammosiga hozirgi istak, afsus va o‘zgarish talabi ayting; murosali yechim bering.

Mezon: Wish + Past Simple hozirga mos. · Wish + Past Perfect o‘tgan afsus. · Wish + would boshqaning o‘zgarishi uchun.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda guruh loyihasidan keyingi afsus va tuzatish rejasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Uch wish shakli ma’nosi to‘g‘ri. · O‘z mas’uliyati va ikki tuzatish bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish we had divided the project into clear sections at the beginning. Three people are now editing the same material, and useful work is being repeated. I also wish the document had clearer headings so that current comments were easy to find. I wish team members would explain major changes before making them, but that request includes me too. Yesterday, I changed two charts without telling anyone. We should assign one owner to each section and stop editing an hour before the presentation. We cannot recover the lost time, but we can use the remaining time more carefully. Regret is helpful only when it changes our next action.

Reading · The Accessible Garden Visit

Our class is planning a garden visit with several older neighbours. One resident said, 'I wish I could walk the whole route, but my knee makes that difficult.' The organiser replied that shorter routes were available. We hope the weather stays dry, but we will bring portable seats even if the forecast is good. Comfort should not depend on luck. The garden manager allows us to use the sheltered terrace provided we leave it clean. Volunteers can borrow wheelchairs as long as they return them before closing time. These conditions are practical, not signs of reluctance to welcome us. A student first suggested cancelling the longer walk for everyone. However, residents preferred a choice of routes and a shared tea break afterwards. Inclusion does not always mean doing exactly the same activity. It can mean giving people enough information and support to choose. Our plan now has more options and fewer assumptions about what others need.

Listening · The Borrowed Recording Room

Singer: I wish I could record at home, but the traffic noise is too loud.
Technician: You can use this room as long as you book a slot and bring your own memory card.
Singer: I hope the room is free on Thursday. Can my friend join me?
Technician: Yes, provided you keep the group to three people. Even if you finish early, please tell reception before leaving.
Singer: Understood. I wish I had a better microphone too.
Technician: The room includes one. Technique matters more than buying everything immediately.
Singer: That's reassuring. I hope we get a clean recording, but I know it may take several attempts.
Technician: Exactly. A first session is also practice. You don't need to turn every small mistake into proof that you can't sing.
Singer: Good. My notebook has room for notes, not a dramatic resignation speech.

Speaking

90 soniyada bog‘ tashrifi uchun umid, amalga oshmayotgan qobiliyat va ikki foydalanish shartini ayting.

Mezon: Hope real kelajak uchun ishlatiladi. · Wish could imkon yetishmasligini bildiradi. · As long as/provided/even if dan ikkitasi to‘g‘ri.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda studiyadan foydalanish rejasi va shaxsiy umidni yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Wish va hope farqi aniq. · Uch shart manba talablarini saqlaydi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish I could record at home, but traffic makes the room unsuitable. I hope the community studio is available on Thursday. We can use it as long as we book a slot and bring a memory card. My friend can join me provided there are no more than three people in our group. Even if we finish early, we need to inform reception before leaving. I also hope we produce a clear recording, although the session will be valuable practice if we need several attempts. The studio provides a microphone, so I do not need to buy one immediately. Preparation matters more than owning every piece of equipment.

Reading · A Walk with Too Many Steps

Our local history walk attracted thirty residents, but the route included a staircase we had overlooked. Two visitors could not continue. If we had checked access with a wheelchair user beforehand, we would have noticed the problem. I wish we had asked people about their needs instead of assuming that a short distance was automatically easy. If our information sheet were clearer, visitors would have known about the steps before registering. The guide changed the route and brought the group back together at the market, but some trust was lost. We now hope the next walk will rebuild it. A volunteer offered to test alternative routes as long as the team shared the full plan early. We accepted. The aim is not to advertise a perfect service after one correction. It is to show that feedback changes decisions. A route is not accessible merely because an enthusiastic organiser can walk it quickly.

Listening · The Exhibition Feedback Meeting

Chair: I wish we had placed the labels lower. Several visitors couldn't read them comfortably.
Designer: If I had seen the room with the chairs in place, I would have noticed the height problem.
Visitor: And if the lighting were brighter, I would have stayed longer yesterday. The pictures were interesting, but reading was tiring.
Chair: Would larger print have helped as well?
Visitor: Yes, it might have. I don't expect every problem to disappear immediately, but I hope the next display is easier to use.
Designer: We can test a new label provided you are willing to comment on it.
Visitor: Gladly. Even if we disagree about the style, we can check whether the words are readable.
Chair: Good. Our success should depend on visitors understanding the stories, not on the labels looking elegant from across an empty room.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada foydalanish qulayligi xatosini tahlil qiling: o'tgan afsus, hozirgi natija va kelgusi hamkorlik sharti.

Mezon: Third va mixed conditional farqlangan. · Wish yoki hope ma’noga mos. · Foydalanuvchi dalilіga tayangan tuzatish bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ko‘rgazma yorliqlarini yaxshilash bo‘yicha fikr yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch modul shakli to‘g‘ri. · Dalil va sinov mezoni ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish we had tested the exhibition labels with visitors before opening. If we had placed chairs in the room during the design stage, we would have noticed that some labels were too high. If the lighting were better, visitors would find reading less tiring now. Larger print might also have helped yesterday, but we should test it instead of guessing. I hope the next display is more comfortable to use. We can ask visitors to review a sample provided we give them enough time. Even if opinions about style differ, readability is a shared practical goal. Attractive design should support understanding rather than compete with it.

The history club advertised a 'walk for everyone', but its route included three steep staircases. Rafiq, who uses a walking stick, left after the first stop. The organiser later said, 'If we had checked the route with him, we would have chosen the riverside path.' The club had measured distance but had not inspected steps. Now it wishes it had asked about access before printing the leaflets. If the old route were easier, Rafiq might still join next month's walk; however, changing the publicity alone will not remove the stairs. The group is arranging a route inspection with several residents. Rafiq has agreed to advise them, though he does not want to speak for everyone with a mobility difficulty. A better plan needs both practical changes and more than one person's perspective.

h-19-1 · What specific planning gap made the claim 'for everyone' unreliable?

Ustoz kaliti: They measured distance but did not inspect steps/access.

Dalil: The club had measured distance but had not inspected steps.

h-19-2 · Distinguish the past regret from the present hypothetical condition.

Ustoz kaliti: Regret: wishes it had asked about access. Present condition: if old route were easier.

Dalil: Now it wishes it had asked about access / If the old route were easier h-19-3 · Why is changing the leaflet insufficient?

Ustoz kaliti: It does not remove stairs or make the route physically accessible.

Dalil: changing the publicity alone will not remove the stairs.

h-19-4 · Can Rafiq's approval establish that the route suits everyone?

Ustoz kaliti: No; he does not represent everyone with mobility difficulties.

Dalil: he does not want to speak for everyone with a mobility difficulty.

Reading · Where the Cups Go

At our community cafe, reusable cups are collected at a separate counter. Staff check each cup, and damaged ones are removed from service. The remaining cups are washed, dried and stored upside down. This process sounds simple, but customers often leave cups in the paper recycling bin. A sign saying 'Staff collect cups here' was replaced with 'Cups are collected here', beside a large arrow. The new wording puts the object in focus, which helps people looking for somewhere to return it. However, grammar alone cannot fix poor placement. The first sign stood behind a plant, where it was almost invisible. We moved it to eye level and watched what happened over three busy afternoons. Incorrect returns fell noticeably. We cannot separate the effect of wording from the effect of position, but together the changes helped. The plant still has a place in the cafe; it no longer manages customer information.

Listening · A Day at the Repair Hub

Presenter: What happens to a donated bicycle when it arrives here?
Mechanic: Every bicycle is labelled with a number. Its brakes and tyres are checked before anybody rides it.
Presenter: Who decides what needs replacing?
Mechanic: A trained volunteer does the assessment. Useful parts are kept, and worn parts are replaced. We record the work on a card.
Presenter: So the bicycle's history stays with it.
Mechanic: Exactly. The card is given to the new owner. People deserve to know what has been checked, not just hear that the bike looks shiny.
Presenter: Does the system slow you down?
Mechanic: A little at first. But clear records save repeated checks and questions later. Speed is not the only measure of useful work.
Presenter: Your cards sound less exciting than the bicycles, but equally important.
Mechanic: They are. A bell makes noise; a record makes responsibility visible.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Every donated bicycle is given a number when it reaches the repair hub. A trained volunteer checks its brakes, tyres and other important parts. Damaged components are replaced, while useful ones are kept. The work is recorded on a card, and that card is passed to the new owner. This process takes time, but it makes the repair history clear. A clean bicycle is not necessarily a checked bicycle. Records help the team avoid repeating work and give owners useful information. The system therefore supports both efficiency and responsibility. Volunteers should see the card as part of the repair, not as optional paperwork after the interesting work.

Reading · A Bench with a Second Life

The long bench outside our library was made from an old classroom door. A local carpenter built it during last summer's repair festival. Today, it is used by readers, bus passengers and people who simply need a rest. Is the bench treated with a special coating? Yes, it is protected against rain. It is not painted every month; volunteers inspect the surface and refresh the coating when necessary. Where is similar furniture made? The workshop behind the library produces small items from donated wood. The project is not presented as a solution to all waste. Some materials are unsafe or too damaged to reuse. Still, the bench offers a visible example of a useful second life. A small label tells its history. Several former pupils enjoy sitting on it, perhaps because it is the first classroom door that has ever encouraged them to stay outside for longer.

Listening · The Local Soap Stall

Customer: Is this soap made here in town?
Seller: Yes. It is produced in a small workshop near the river. The business was started by two sisters three years ago.
Customer: Is it tested on animals?
Seller: No, it isn't. The supplier documents are available on our website. You should check those details rather than rely only on a friendly face at a stall.
Customer: I appreciate that. Is the wrapping recyclable?
Seller: The paper is, but the small label is not accepted by our local collection service. We are looking for an alternative.
Customer: So the packaging isn't completely recyclable yet.
Seller: Correct. We don't want to hide that limit behind a green design.
Customer: That's more useful than a perfect claim.
Seller: We think so. Good soap should clean your hands, not wash important details out of the conversation.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Present Passive tasdiq/inkor va Past Passive bor. · Loyiha foydasi va chegarasi ko‘rsatilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

This bench was built during last summer's repair festival from an old classroom door. It is now used by readers and other people passing the library. The wood is protected against rain, but the surface still needs regular checks. It is not painted automatically every month. Volunteers renew the coating when it is necessary. Similar furniture is made in the workshop behind the library. Not all donated wood is suitable, because some pieces are damaged or unsafe. The bench does not solve the whole problem of waste. It gives people a clear local example of reuse, with a history they can read while they rest.

Reading · The Newsletter That Never Arrived

Our residents' newsletter was not delivered to three buildings last week. At first, the editor assumed the volunteers had forgotten them. Was the route map checked before delivery? Yes, it was, and all three buildings appeared on it. Were enough copies printed? The printer's record confirmed that they were. The real problem was at the entrance: new security codes had not reached the delivery team. Copies were left at the management office instead, but no notice explained where residents could collect them. The team had completed part of the task without completing the communication. We changed the checklist to include access details and a fallback message. The editor also apologised for the early accusation. A missing newsletter does not automatically prove a careless volunteer. Asking precise questions about each stage produced a fairer explanation than turning the delivery bag upside down and hoping responsibility would fall out with the spare copies.

Listening · Checking the Cancelled Lesson

Parent: Was yesterday's music lesson cancelled because the teacher was ill?
Administrator: No. It wasn't cancelled for that reason. The hall was closed after a small water leak.
Parent: Were families informed before they left home?
Administrator: Messages were sent at noon, but five phone numbers were incorrect. Those families weren't reached.
Parent: My number changed last month. Was the new one added?
Administrator: It was written on a paper form, but it wasn't entered into the contact list. I'm sorry.
Parent: Thank you for explaining. What happens now?
Administrator: We are checking every number and confirming the replacement lesson by phone.
Parent: That sounds sensible. A message marked 'sent' is not the same as a message received.
Administrator: Exactly. Our system counted outgoing messages, not successful contact. We need to measure the result families actually experience, rather than celebrate a busy send button.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada yetkazilmagan xabarning sababini Past Passive savollar orqali tekshiring.

Mezon: Uch Was/Were savoli bor. · Ikki wasn't/weren't javobi dalilga mos. · Yuborish va qabul qilish farqi aytiladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda dars bekor bo‘lishi haqidagi xabar jarayonini xolis tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Past Passive inkor va savol to‘g‘ri. · Kamida uch dalil va jarayon bo‘yicha tavsiya bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The music lesson was cancelled because the hall had a water leak, not because the teacher was ill. Messages were sent at noon, but five families were not reached because their phone numbers were wrong. One parent's new number was recorded on paper but was not added to the main contact list. Was the notification process successful? Only partly. Sending a message did not guarantee that families received it. The centre should check contact details regularly and confirm urgent changes through another channel when necessary. The replacement lesson is now being confirmed by phone. This correction addresses the communication gap rather than blaming parents for missing a message.

Qo‘shimcha bank

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

Reading · The Library behind the Screens

Our library is open during renovation, but the ground floor is being reorganised. New shelves are being installed near the entrance, and the children's corner is being moved upstairs. The computers are not being replaced; they are being stored temporarily in the meeting room. Some visitors worry that 'temporary' means a service will quietly disappear. To address that concern, the library displays a weekly progress board with photographs and expected dates. Is the lift being checked before the children's activities move? Yes, an engineer is inspecting it this week. Parents with pushchairs need that information as much as they need a timetable. The work is noisy and occasionally inconvenient, but vague reassurance would make it worse. The librarian says visitors can tolerate a drill more easily than an unexplained barrier. Clear notices do not remove disruption. They help people decide when to visit and what they can use.

Listening · The Roadworks Update

Reporter: Why is one side of the market road being closed this week?
Engineer: A damaged pipe is being replaced underneath it. The surface is being removed in short sections so shops can keep some access.
Reporter: Are deliveries being redirected?
Engineer: Yes, morning deliveries are being sent through the service lane. Pedestrians are using the marked walkway.
Reporter: Some traders say the signs are hard to see.
Engineer: New signs are being printed today. The route itself isn't being changed again; only the information is being improved.
Reporter: When will you publish the next update?
Engineer: Tomorrow afternoon. We cannot promise a finishing date until we inspect the final section.
Reporter: So the message is progress with limits.
Engineer: Exactly. We would rather explain uncertainty than announce a confident date and miss it. A bright sign is useful only if its information is as clear as its colour.

Speaking

90 soniyada kutubxona holati haqida yangilanish bering: uch ish, bir o‘zgarmayotgan xizmat va bir savol.

Mezon: Uch is/are being + V3 bor. · Inkor va savol shakli to‘g‘ri. · Aniq ma’lumot va noma’lum muddat ajratilgan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ta’mir vaqtida kutubxonaga keluvchilar uchun izohli e’lon paragrafi yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida to‘rtta Continuous Passive bor. · O‘quvchiga kerakli xizmat va tekshirish qadami bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The library remains open while the ground floor is being reorganised. New shelves are being installed near the entrance, and the children's area is being moved upstairs. The computers are not being replaced. They are being kept in the meeting room until the work is complete. The lift is being checked this week to support access for families and other visitors. A progress board shows photographs and expected dates, but some details may change after inspection. Please check that board before planning a long visit. The work causes inconvenience, and clear information cannot remove it entirely. It can help everyone choose a suitable time and use the available services.

Reading · The New Booking System Is Almost Ready

The community centre's new booking system has been tested by twelve volunteers. Several confusing buttons have been renamed, and a large-print guide has been prepared. However, the payment feature has not been approved yet, so the system is not ready for public use. Has the old booking method been removed? No. Telephone bookings are still available, and staff are keeping a paper record during the transition. The project leader wants to announce success, but the volunteers argue that progress and completion are different things. One important task remains unfinished even though many smaller tasks have been completed. Their report lists what has changed, what still needs checking and who will make the final decision. This is less exciting than a banner saying 'Finished!', but more useful to users. A system should not graduate from testing simply because everyone is tired of talking about it. Readiness needs evidence, not an enthusiastic exclamation mark.

Listening · The Archive Opening

Journalist: Has the photo collection been digitised completely?
Archivist: Most of it has been scanned, but forty fragile photographs haven't been processed yet.
Journalist: Have the owners' names been checked?
Archivist: Yes. The names have been compared with the donation records. Some dates are still uncertain, and they have been labelled as estimates.
Journalist: Why not leave those dates out?
Archivist: An approximate date can help, provided readers know its limits. We don't want a guess to look like a verified fact.
Journalist: Has the online gallery been opened?
Archivist: Only to our review group. Public access hasn't been switched on yet.
Journalist: So the work is close, but not complete.
Archivist: Exactly. Preserving history includes preserving uncertainty. Otherwise, a neat caption can accidentally create a story that never happened, which would make our archive very organised and rather unreliable.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada loyiha holatini tugagan, tugamagan va qaror kutayotgan bandlarga ajrating.

Mezon: Has/have been + V3 to‘g‘ri. · Hali tugamagan ish inkorda aytiladi. · Bir Have/Has … been savoli bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda raqamli arxiv ishining hozirgi holati haqida yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Tasdiq, inkor va savol Perfect Passive mavjud. · Tugallanish va rivojlanish farqi asoslangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Most photographs have been scanned, and the owners' names have been checked against donation records. Forty fragile pictures have not been processed yet because they need special care. Uncertain dates have been marked as estimates rather than presented as verified facts. Has the gallery been opened to everyone? Not yet. Access has only been given to the review group. This limited release allows problems to be found before the public launch. The remaining work should be explained clearly, without describing the whole project as a failure. Equally, substantial progress should not be confused with completion. An accurate archive needs honest information about both its contents and its preparation.

Reading · A Drinking Fountain Returns

The drinking fountain in our park was installed twenty years ago, but it stopped working last spring. A damaged valve was found during an inspection. The fountain is now being repaired, and the surrounding path is being levelled for easier access. New water tests have been completed, although the final result has not been published yet. Until then, the fountain is not used by the public. Some residents think the delay proves the project is badly managed. Others point out that safe operation requires more than a shiny tap. The council's update gives dates for completed work and explains the remaining test. It could still be clearer about the expected reopening. Our residents' group has requested a weekly update rather than a promise without evidence. The fountain is a small facility, but the discussion reveals a larger issue: trust grows when people can distinguish work in progress from work that is genuinely ready.

Listening · The Community Kitchen Inspection

Inspector: The kitchen is cleaned every evening, correct?
Manager: Yes. The cleaning record is signed by the closing volunteer. Last week, a damaged shelf was replaced.
Inspector: Has the new fridge been checked?
Manager: Yes, its temperature has been monitored for three days. The results are in this folder.
Inspector: What is happening near the back door?

Manager: A handwashing sink is being installed. That corner isn't being used for food preparation during the work.
Inspector: Good. I can see the practical changes. One record still needs a date.
Manager: I'll complete it with the volunteer who did the check, rather than guess.
Inspector: Exactly. A blank date should lead to a question, not creative handwriting.
Manager: We want the paperwork to describe the kitchen honestly.
Inspector: Then it becomes useful evidence. Clean surfaces and accurate records support each other; neither replaces the other.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The park fountain was installed twenty years ago and stopped working last spring. A damaged valve was identified, and repairs are now being carried out. The path is also being improved for easier access. Water tests have been completed, but the final result has not been published. The fountain is therefore not open to the public yet. These facts show progress, but they do not establish a reopening date. Residents need regular updates about the remaining steps. The council should explain the next decision and publish the result when it is available. A clear weekly notice would be more useful than either silence or an unsupported promise.

Every donated kettle at the reuse centre is checked before it is offered to a new owner. A volunteer records the model number, but electrical testing is carried out by a trained technician. Last month several labels were damaged during cleaning. The kettles had been tested, yet the results could not be matched confidently to individual machines. They were removed from the display until new checks were completed. Now a duplicate record is kept in the office. Customers are told what was tested and when, rather than simply being assured that an item is 'fine'. The centre has not found evidence that the affected kettles were dangerous. The problem was the missing link between each object and its test result. Reliable records make an assurance checkable; they do not turn used equipment into something guaranteed never to fail.

Reading · The Square's Trial Weekend

The town square will be closed to private cars for one trial weekend next month. Temporary benches will be placed near the trees, and a marked delivery route will be kept open before ten each morning. The permanent parking layout will not be changed during the trial. That distinction matters because some residents have read the announcement as a final decision. Visitor numbers, shop sales and access problems will be recorded, but no single measure will determine the outcome. A busy square may benefit cafes while creating difficulties for other businesses. The report will therefore include comments from traders, disabled visitors and delivery drivers. Supporters want the experiment to succeed, yet a useful trial must be allowed to reveal problems. If every difficulty is dismissed as resistance, the evidence loses value. The mayor says the square will receive temporary furniture, not a temporary guarantee that everyone will agree. At least the benches should make the disagreement more comfortable.

Listening · The Library Card Change

Manager: New library cards will be introduced in November. Existing memberships will be transferred automatically.
Reader: Will people lose their borrowing history?
Manager: No. That information will be kept unless a reader asks for it to be removed. Personal details won't be displayed on the public catalogue.
Reader: Some older members may struggle with the online form.
Manager: Paper forms will be provided at the desk, and staff will help during two drop-in sessions each week.
Reader: Good. A digital improvement shouldn't make familiar services harder to reach.
Manager: Exactly. The old cards won't be switched off until the help sessions have run for a month.
Reader: How will members hear about that?
Manager: Notices will be posted in the building and sent with loan reminders. We will also explain the change at the desk. A new card should open access, not become a tiny plastic test of computer confidence.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada maydon sinovi e’lonini tushuntiring: uch kelajak ish, bir qilinmaydigan ish va baholash cheklovi.

Mezon: Uch will be + V3 bor. · Won't be + V3 aniq chegarani bildiradi. · Bir natija mezonining cheklovi tushuntiriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda kutubxona kartasi o‘zgarishini foydalanuvchilarga tushuntiring.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Future Passive tasdiq va inkori mavjud. · Raqamli va qog‘oz yo‘llari hamda muddat aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

New library cards will be introduced in November, and current memberships will be transferred automatically. Borrowing history will be retained unless a reader requests its removal. Personal details will not be shown in the public catalogue. Paper forms will be available for members who prefer them, and help will be offered twice a week. Old cards will not be disabled until those sessions have been running for a month. This gradual change should protect access while the system improves. Notices will be displayed in the library and included with loan reminders. Staff should also explain the process personally, because a written announcement does not reach every reader equally well.

Reading · A Notice Worth Reading

The housing office plans to replace the noticeboards in six apartment buildings. When will the new boards be installed? The published schedule says the work will begin on Monday, but gives no order for individual buildings. Residents also want to know how old notices will be handled. Important information must be copied before the boards are removed. Private phone numbers should not be displayed without permission, and commercial advertisements cannot be added by anyone who happens to find an empty corner. The office initially focused on colour and size. Those choices matter, but they do not answer questions about responsibility. A board can be designed beautifully and still be managed badly. The revised plan names a contact person for each building and explains how notices can be submitted. It also leaves space for handwritten community messages. Clear rules should protect useful communication without turning a request for a borrowed ladder into a formal research application.

Listening · The Shared Recording Equipment

Producer: When will the new recorder be delivered?
Coordinator: On Wednesday. It can be borrowed after the introductory session on Friday.
Producer: Can the files be stored on our own computers?
Coordinator: Yes, but participants' permission must be recorded first. Private interviews mustn't be shared in the public folder.
Producer: Where will the training materials be posted?
Coordinator: On the club page, with a printed copy at reception. The device can also be demonstrated in person.
Producer: That helps. Some members learn better by trying the controls.
Coordinator: Exactly. The equipment should be accessible, but recordings need careful handling. A convenient folder is not automatically an appropriate audience.
Producer: I'll make a project folder and check permissions before sharing anything.
Coordinator: Good. We bought a recorder to preserve voices, not to give every private conversation an accidental public performance. That protects both interviewers and guests.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada umumiy qurilma qoidalarini muhokama qiling: ikki kelajak savoli, ruxsat va taqiq.

Mezon: When/Where will … be V3 savoli bor. · Can/must be + V3 to‘g‘ri. · Mustn't be + V3 aniq ma’lumotni himoya qiladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda e’lon doskalarini boshqarish qoidalarini dalil bilan yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch modal passiv bor. · Mas’ul va muddat haqidagi savollar aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Before the old noticeboards are removed, important information must be copied. Residents should be told when each building will receive its replacement. Private phone numbers must not be displayed without permission, and commercial notices should be checked by a named contact person. Community messages can be submitted through that person or left at the housing office. The board should still allow simple handwritten requests, because not every useful message needs a polished design. Clear management matters as much as the board's colour or size. The final notice should answer two questions directly: when will installation happen, and who will be responsible for keeping the information current?

Reading · The Repair Shop Window

When I visited the repair shop on Tuesday, an old radio was being examined on the main bench. Two chairs were being sanded near the window. I asked whether the radio could be repaired economically. The technician explained that a replacement part might cost more than a similar second-hand radio. Could the original case be kept while the inside was replaced? Technically, yes, but the owner valued its original sound as well as its appearance. The decision was therefore not only financial. While we talked, the owner arrived with a photograph of his father using the radio. That did not make every repair price reasonable, but it explained why a simple cost comparison was incomplete. The technician offered a written estimate and two options. Good repair advice should make choices clearer, not decide how much another person's memory is worth. The radio remained silent, but the conversation around it was unusually informative.

Listening · The Event Setup Review

Organiser: Could the stage be moved closer to the wall next time?
Technician: Possibly. When I arrived yesterday, it was being assembled in the middle because the wall sockets were being checked.
Organiser: Could the cables be covered more securely?
Technician: Yes. Extra covers can be hired. The team was being shown the cable route when the first musicians arrived, which interrupted the briefing.
Organiser: So an earlier setup would help.
Technician: It would, but we also need a clear handover. People shouldn't guess which checks are complete.
Organiser: Can the final inspection be recorded on one sheet?
Technician: Certainly. Name the person responsible for each item and leave space for unresolved issues.
Organiser: That sounds more useful than simply writing 'all fine'.
Technician: Exactly. A check sheet should describe reality, not offer the room an encouraging compliment before the audience walks in.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada radio ta’miri variantlarini so‘rang; tashrif paytidagi ikki jarayonni tasvirlang.

Mezon: Ikki Can/Could … be V3 savoli bor. · Was/were being + V3 bilan ikki jarayon bor. · Narxdan tashqari bir mezon asoslangan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda sahna o‘rnatish jarayoni bo‘yicha tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · O‘tgan jarayon va modal savol to‘g‘ri. · Ikki amaliy chora sabab bilan berilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

When the technician arrived, the stage was being assembled away from the wall because the sockets were being checked. The cable route was being explained when musicians interrupted the briefing. Could setup begin earlier next time? That would help, but timing alone would not solve every problem. Extra cable covers can be hired, and the final inspection can be recorded on one sheet. Each item should name the responsible person and show any unresolved issue. A general statement that everything is fine gives little useful information. A clear handover would help the next team understand what has been checked and what still needs attention before the audience arrives.

Reading · The Hall before the Meeting

When the residents arrived, the hall was not being cleaned as the booking email had suggested. Cleaning had been completed at noon, and the chairs had been arranged before three. The room was locked because a missing key had caused a delay. Was the entrance being repaired? No; a contractor was working on the office door farther along the corridor. Several people connected the visible tools with the locked hall and assumed the wrong cause. The organiser eventually found the spare key in a labelled cabinet. Afterwards, we compared the booking message with the actual sequence of events. It described an activity that was no longer happening and omitted the person responsible for opening the room. We changed the handover note to show completed tasks, current work and the key holder separately. A useful update should explain time as well as activity. Otherwise, yesterday's instruction can become today's very convincing misunderstanding.

Listening · The Packing Room Check

Supervisor: Was the order being packed when you arrived at nine?
Assistant: No, it wasn't being packed then. The boxes had been sealed before my shift started.
Supervisor: Had the labels been printed too?
Assistant: Yes. They had been placed beside the boxes, but nobody had attached them.
Supervisor: So the order was not ready for collection.
Assistant: Correct. The driver was waiting, and I initially thought the labels on the desk belonged to another order.
Supervisor: Was the packing area being used by another team?
Assistant: No. The confusion came from the status note. It said 'packed', which sounded complete.
Supervisor: We need separate stages for sealed, labelled and ready to collect.
Assistant: Agreed. One short word was doing three jobs badly. A little more detail would have saved the driver from a long discussion with a pile of anonymous boxes.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada zal tayyorligi haqidagi chalkashlikni vaqt ketma-ketligida izohlang.

Mezon: Bir was/were being savoli va inkori bor. · Had been + V3 bilan oldingi ish berilgan. · Ko‘rinadigan dalil va asl sabab farqlangan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda buyurtma holatini qayd etish uchun tahliliy tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Past Perfect va davomiy passiv farqlangan. · Jarayonning uch bosqichi va asos bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The order was not being packed when the assistant arrived at nine. The boxes had been sealed before the shift began, and the labels had been printed. However, the labels were still on the desk, so the order was not ready for collection. The status word packed hid that unfinished step. We should use separate labels for sealed, labelled and ready to collect. A final check should connect each box with its delivery information. This change would give both staff and drivers a clearer picture of progress. Short updates are useful only when their meaning is shared. Otherwise, saving a few words can create a much longer delay.

Reading · The Exhibition Credit

A photograph in our exhibition carried the wrong photographer's name. The image had been donated by a family member, but the original creator had not been identified before printing. Had the donation form been checked? Yes, although the form named the donor rather than the photographer. Those roles had been treated as identical. A visitor recognised the picture and contacted the actual photographer, who was disappointed but willing to help correct the record. The label was replaced, and an explanation was added to the exhibition page. We did not simply remove the mistake quietly. The photographer wanted the correction to be visible because credit was part of the work's history. Our new form separates creator, donor and rights contact. It takes longer to complete, but the extra distinctions matter. A name beneath a picture is not decorative furniture. It tells readers whose effort they are seeing and whose permission may be needed.

Listening · The Group Tickets

Leader: Had our seats been reserved before the payment deadline?
Agent: The request had been entered by your colleague, but the seats hadn't been confirmed. Payment was still missing.
Leader: I thought the email was a confirmation.
Agent: It was an acknowledgement of the request. The subject line was not clear enough, and I understand the confusion.
Leader: Had a reminder been sent?
Agent: Yes, but it went to the address on the form. Your colleague says that mailbox is no longer checked.
Leader: Then both our details and your wording need attention.
Agent: Agreed. I can offer another departure with enough seats, but it leaves an hour later.
Leader: Please hold it while I contact the group.
Agent: I will send a message explicitly marked 'held, not paid'. We should not make a booking depend on interpreting polite but ambiguous language.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada surat mualliffigi tekshiruvini qayta qurib ayting va bajaruvchilarni by bilan aniqlang.

Mezon: Had … been savoli bor. · Hadn't been + V3 to‘g‘ri. · By bilan donor va muallif farqi saqlanadi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda surat yorlig‘i xatosidan keyingi tuzatish tamoyilini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Ikki Past Perfect Passive va bir inkor bor. · Rol farqi va oshkora tuzatish sababi aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The photographer had not been identified before the exhibition label was printed. The donation form had been checked, but it named the donor, not the creator. A family member had supplied the image, and the team incorrectly treated that person as its photographer. The correction should therefore be visible rather than quietly replacing one name with another. Credit forms part of the picture's history. Our new form should distinguish creator, donor and permission contact. Each role answers a different question. This will add work at the beginning, but it will reduce confusion later and show respect for the people whose images make the exhibition possible.

Reading · The Reopening Report

The swimming pool will be reopened only after the final inspection. New filters have already been fitted, and damaged tiles were being replaced when the residents' committee visited on Tuesday. The changing rooms were not being used during that work. Had the emergency signs been checked before the visit? The manager showed a signed record confirming that they had. However, the accessible entrance had not been tested by users with mobility needs. The committee recommended a practical visit rather than relying only on measurements. Small difficulties can be missed on a drawing. The manager agreed that the route could be assessed by a local access group before opening. The report therefore records substantial progress without calling the pool ready. Some residents want a firm date, which is understandable after a long closure. Still, a date should follow completed checks rather than pressure staff to describe unfinished work as complete. A reopened door is useful only when people can actually get through it.

Listening · The Festival Equipment Audit

Auditor: Will the borrowed speakers be returned tomorrow?
Organiser: Yes. They must be checked before transport. One cable was being repaired when I left the workshop.
Auditor: Had the equipment list been updated before collection?
Organiser: Most of it had, but the extra microphone hadn't been added. It was supplied by the school at the last minute.
Auditor: Can that be corrected now?
Organiser: Yes. The microphone is here, and the school has confirmed its number.
Auditor: Good. The return record should show each item and its condition. Was anything being used during the final count?
Organiser: No. Everything was on the table, though two cases were closed.
Auditor: Then open them and check the contents. An empty case can look impressively complete from outside.
Organiser: Agreed. We need evidence of the equipment, not just a tidy photograph of its luggage.

Speaking

Mezon: Uch xil kengaytirilgan passiv zamon bor. · Modal passiv bilan tekshiruv talabi bor. · Hujjat va haqiqiy buyum holati farqlangan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda hovuz ochilishidan oldingi tekshiruv haqida xolis xulosa yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch xil passiv shakl to‘g‘ri. · Dalil, qolgan ish va tavsiya ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The pool should not be described as ready until the remaining checks are complete. New filters have been fitted, and damaged tiles were being replaced during Tuesday's visit. Emergency signs had been checked, but the accessible entrance had not been tested by people with mobility needs. That route can be assessed by a local access group before reopening. Measurements are useful, yet they may miss practical difficulties.

A firm opening date will be welcomed by residents, but it should follow evidence rather than replace it. The report should show completed work, outstanding checks and responsible people. This gives the public a clearer basis for judging progress and trusting the eventual reopening.

Reading · Two Accounts of One Meeting

After the residents' meeting, two summaries appeared in our group chat. One said the caretaker was against the new garden. The other said he supported it. I had taken notes, so I checked his actual words. He said he liked the idea but did not have time to water the beds every evening. He told the committee he could help with repairs at weekends. His objection concerned responsibility, not the garden itself. Both summaries had removed the condition that made his position understandable. I posted a fuller account and asked the writers to correct their messages. Neither had intended to mislead anyone; each had remembered the part that matched an existing opinion. Reporting speech is therefore more than changing pronouns and verbs. It requires selecting fairly. Our final minutes recorded support for the garden and a request for a separate watering team. A useful summary should shorten a discussion without shrinking the people in it into convenient labels.

Listening · The Customer's Actual Complaint

Assistant: The customer said the whole workshop was useless.
Manager: Did she use those words?
Assistant: Not exactly. She said she didn't understand the online instructions. She told me the practical demonstration was helpful.
Manager: Then we should keep both points. Otherwise, we might change the wrong part of the service.
Assistant: She also said she wanted more time to practise before the final task.
Manager: That's a specific request. Did she say the tutor was unhelpful?
Assistant: No. She said he answered questions clearly, but the group was too large.
Manager: Good. Write that accurately. We need feedback we can act on, not a dramatic headline.
Assistant: I see the difference. My summary turned several useful comments into one negative judgement.
Manager: It happens easily. Listening fairly means preserving the parts that complicate our first impression, even when a shorter story would fit neatly into the message box.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada qarovchining pozitsiyasini ikki gap bilan adolatli yetkazing, noto‘g‘ri xulosani tuzating.

Mezon: Said va told + object to‘g‘ri. · Ko‘chirma inkor va tasdiq bor. · Pozitsiyaning muhim sharti yo‘qolmagan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda mijozning fikrini rahbar uchun xolis paragrafga aylantiring.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Say/tell boshqaruvi to‘g‘ri. · Ijobiy va tanqidiy fikrlar ikkalasi saqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The customer said she did not understand the online instructions, but she told the assistant that the practical demonstration was helpful. She also said she wanted more time to practise before the final task. Her comments did not describe the whole workshop as useless. She praised the tutor's clear answers while pointing out that the group was too large. A fair summary should preserve this mixed view. The centre could review the written instructions, allow extra practice and consider group size. Changing the practical demonstration would not address the concern she actually raised. Accurate reporting helps the team improve the right part of the service rather than react to an exaggerated headline.

Reading · The Promise in the Interview

On Monday, the organiser told our student reporter, 'We are preparing a free skills fair. We have contacted local employers, and we will publish the programme on Friday.' The reporter's draft said the organiser was preparing the fair, had contacted employers and would publish the programme on Friday. Those changes preserved the timing of the interview. However, the draft also said every employer would offer a job. That promise had never been made. The organiser had said employers could explain training routes, not guarantee employment. We corrected the article before publication and kept a short quotation beside the summary. The exercise showed that accurate grammar does not automatically produce accurate journalism. A sentence can have perfect backshift and still report an invented commitment. Our editor now asks two questions: does the language match the original time, and does the claim match what was actually said? Both checks matter more than making the event sound impressive.

Listening · Passing on the Engineer's Update

Supervisor: What did the engineer tell you yesterday?
Assistant: She said she was checking the damaged pump. She said she had ordered a replacement part and could return on Thursday.
Supervisor: Did she promise the system would work that day?
Assistant: No. She said she would test it after fitting the part, but she couldn't guarantee the result before that test.

Supervisor: Good. Our notice must not turn an expected visit into a confirmed reopening.
Assistant: I wrote that the engineer had ordered the part and would return for further work. Is that clear enough?
Supervisor: Add that testing is still required. Residents need to understand the remaining condition.
Assistant: Understood. The original update was careful, but it would be easy to make it sound more certain while shortening it.
Supervisor: Exactly. A summary should remove extra words, not remove the uncertainty that keeps the message honest.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada intervyuni ertasi kuni xabar sifatida yetkazing, va’da bilan imkonni ajrating.

Mezon: Present→past va perfect→past perfect to‘g‘ri. · Will→would hamda can→could misoli bor. · Kafolatlanmagan natija kafolat sifatida berilmagan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda muhandisning kechagi xabarini aholiga xolis yetkazing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch backshift shakli bor. · Shart va aniq sana ma’nosi saqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The engineer said she was checking the damaged pump and had ordered a replacement part. She told the team she could return on Thursday. She did not promise that the system would reopen that day. Instead, she said she would test it after the part was fitted and could not guarantee the result before testing. Our public notice should preserve that condition. An expected visit is evidence of progress, but it is not a confirmed completion date. The team should publish another update after the test. This wording may sound less exciting than a reopening announcement, yet it gives residents a more accurate basis for planning.

Reading · Today Depends on the Reader

At the reception desk on Tuesday, Sara said, 'My class meets here every week, and I am bringing my materials tomorrow.' I wrote the message that afternoon for another receptionist in the same building. I could report that Sara said her class meets here every week because the timetable was still current. However, when I forwarded the note to a colleague in another building on Thursday, 'tomorrow' and 'here' no longer worked without explanation. I changed them to 'Wednesday' and 'the community centre'. The class schedule had not changed, but the reader's time and place had. This is why reported speech cannot always be handled by a mechanical replacement table. A clear date may be safer than 'the next day', especially in a forwarded message. We also checked that 'her materials' referred to Sara, not the receptionist. The final note was slightly longer, but it stopped asking readers to solve a small geographical and grammatical puzzle.

Listening · The Forwarded Room Message

Coordinator: Nargiza says her workshop starts at six. That timetable is still correct, so keep the present tense in today's reminder.
Assistant: Yesterday she wrote, 'I will bring my samples here tomorrow.' We're sending this to the remote volunteers now. Should I keep here?
Coordinator: No. Say she would bring her samples to the arts centre today. Better still, include Wednesday's date so the message remains clear if it is forwarded later.
Assistant: And my becomes her because the samples belong to Nargiza.
Coordinator: Exactly. Don't change words simply because a chart tells you to. Think about who is speaking, where the reader is and when they read it.
Assistant: The facts stay the same, but the reference points move.
Coordinator: Yes. A message should travel better than a suitcase without a label. Every reader needs to know whose materials are going to which place on which day.

Speaking

90 soniyada seshanbadagi xabarni payshanba kuni boshqa binodagi kishiga yetkazing.

Mezon: Olmoshning egasi aniq. · Here/tomorrow aniq joy/sanaga o‘zgargan. · Dolzarb fakt presentda qolishi asoslangan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda xabar uzatishda vaqt va joyni aniqlashtirish tamoyilini misol bilan tushuntiring.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Dolzarb fakt va o‘tgan va’da ajratilgan. · Kim/qayer/qachon ishoralari noaniq emas.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Sara said her class meets at the community centre every week. The present tense is suitable because that schedule is still current. She also said on Tuesday that she would bring her materials on Wednesday. In a message forwarded on Thursday, keeping tomorrow would give the wrong day. Keeping here would also confuse a reader in another building. The report should name the community centre and use an explicit date. Her materials must clearly refer to Sara's belongings. These choices preserve the original meaning rather than mechanically changing every verb. A slightly longer message can be more efficient if it prevents several readers from asking the same clarification question.

Qo‘shimcha bank

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

topic-22.8-5 · Faqat A yoki B ni yozing. “We are ready,” the players said. O‘zlashtirma gapda we o‘rniga: A) I. B) They.

Javob: B. Players uchinchi shaxs ko‘plik bo‘lib they ga o‘tadi.

topic-22.9-5 · Faqat A yoki B ni yozing. Bir kunda shu joyning o‘zida xabar berilsa, today va here: A) Kontekstga mos bo‘lsa saqlanishi mumkin. B) Har doim almashtirilishi shart.

Javob: A. Vaqt va joy o‘zgarishi kontekstga bog‘liq.

r-129-2 · Reconstruct the order in which these three pieces of information are presented. Order the letters, then explain how the final detail adds to the opening. Use presentation order, not an assumed real-world timeline.
A. The final note was slightly longer, but it stopped asking readers to solve a small geographical and grammatical puzzle.
B. At the reception desk on Tuesday, Sara said, 'My class meets here every week, and I am bringing my materials tomorrow.' I wrote the message that afternoon for another receptionist in the same building.
C. The class schedule had not changed, but the reader's time and place had.

Javob: B → C → A. Namuna; mazmuni mos boshqa javoblar ham qabul qilinadi. Dalil: At the reception desk on Tuesday, Sara said, 'My class meets here every week, and I am bringing my materials tomorrow.' I wrote the message that afternoon for another receptionist in the same building. / The class schedule had not changed, but the reader's time and place had. / The final note was slightly longer, but it stopped asking readers to solve a small geographical and grammatical puzzle.. Harflar tartibi kalitga mos. Keyingi darajada oxirgi ma’lumotning birinchi ma’lumotni qanday to‘ldirishini ham izohlatish mumkin; bu izoh tartib javobidan alohida baholanadi.

r-129-3 · Which TWO notes belong to this source? One note comes from the other skill text. Select two letters and locate or recall supporting words. Do not treat an absent note as a false statement about the world.
A. Better still, include Wednesday's date so the message remains clear if it is forwarded later.
B. The class schedule had not changed, but the reader's time and place had.

Reading · The Survey behind the Numbers

Our student council surveyed commuters before requesting a new bus stop. Volunteers asked whether passengers felt safe at the current stop and where they waited during rain. They also asked how long the walk from the college took. The survey leader told volunteers to record answers exactly and avoid suggesting the 'right' response. One draft question began, 'Don't you agree the stop is terrible?' We removed it because it pushed people towards a complaint. The final results were mixed: many wanted shelter, while fewer wanted the stop moved. If our report simply said people disliked the stop, it would hide that distinction. The council asked us to explain how the questions had been worded. That was a useful reminder that numbers depend partly on the questions behind them. A survey can sound official while still being poorly designed. Our strongest request became a shelter, supported by specific answers rather than a large but vague pile of dissatisfaction.

Listening · Reporting an Access Enquiry

Receptionist: A visitor asked whether the gallery had step-free access. She also asked where the nearest accessible toilet was.
Manager: Did you explain the route clearly?
Receptionist: Yes. I told her to use the side entrance, but she asked if that door would be open after six.
Manager: That's an important detail. It normally closes at five thirty.
Receptionist: I said I would check rather than guess. She asked how she could contact someone on arrival.
Manager: Give her the duty phone number and confirm the entrance arrangement in writing.
Receptionist: I'll do that. Her questions show that simply saying 'accessible' isn't enough.
Manager: Exactly. People need a route that works at the time they visit, not only a description that is true during office hours.
Receptionist: I'll add opening times to our access information. A helpful adjective needs some practical details beside it.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada uch yo‘lovchi savoli va rahbar ko‘rsatmasini boshqa kishiga yetkazing.

Mezon: If/whether reported savoli bor. · Wh-savolda oddiy ega-fe’l tartibi. · Told + object + to buyruq shakli bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda galereya tashrifchisining so‘rovini navbatchi rahbarga yetkazing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Uch reported savolda inversiya yo‘q. · Ko‘rsatma va yechilmagan muammo aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

A visitor asked whether the gallery offered step-free access and where the nearest accessible toilet was. The receptionist told her to use the side entrance. However, the visitor also asked if that door would be open after six, and it normally closes at five thirty. She then asked how she could contact someone when she arrived. We should confirm an entrance arrangement before reassuring her. The duty phone number and a written route would help. This enquiry shows why a general description such as accessible needs practical detail. Opening times, contact information and the actual route must work together for the visitor's particular journey.

Reading · The Meeting without a Miracle

At our repair club meeting, the coordinator asked members to describe problems honestly. She told us not to promise repairs before checking the items. One volunteer offered to assess electrical equipment, while another refused to handle appliances without the required training. The refusal was sensible, not unhelpful. A third member admitted losing a customer's label and promised to contact the owner. Nobody denied that the mistake had caused confusion. We suggested using numbered trays so each item stayed with its paperwork. The minutes recorded these actions rather than a vague statement that everyone had discussed quality. That distinction matters after a meeting: people need to know who offered, who agreed and who still needs support. A cheerful atmosphere is valuable, but it cannot substitute for clear commitments. The club did not discover a miracle system that evening. It agreed on three small changes that people could actually carry out before the next session.

Listening · The Event Debrief

Chair: Please summarise the promises from yesterday, not just the complaints.
Secretary: The caterer apologised for arriving late and offered to refund the delivery fee. She denied ignoring our calls; her phone had lost power.
Chair: And the venue manager?
Secretary: He promised to provide a direct contact number next time. He asked us to send the final guest count two days earlier and told us not to block the service entrance.
Chair: Did we agree?
Secretary: Yes. We also admitted changing the count at the last minute. Lara suggested appointing one contact person for all suppliers.
Chair: Good. Include that shared responsibility.
Secretary: I will. A report that makes every problem somebody else's fault would be simpler, but less useful.
Chair: Exactly. We need a plan for the next event, not a carefully formatted collection of excuses with our logo at the top.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada yig‘ilishdagi to‘rtta aniq amalni reported verbs bilan yetkazing.

Mezon: Asked to va told not to to‘g‘ri. · Offer/promise/refuse dan biri + to. · Suggest/admit/deny dan biri + -ing.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda tadbirdan keyingi kelishuvlarni xolis hisobot qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · To-infinitive va -ing boshqaruvi to‘g‘ri. · Ikkala tomon mas’uliyati va kelishuvlar saqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The caterer offered to refund the delivery fee after arriving late. She denied ignoring the team's calls and explained that her phone had lost power. The venue manager promised to provide a direct contact number. He asked the team to send the final guest count two days earlier and told them not to block the service entrance. The team admitted changing the number at the last minute. Lara suggested appointing one person to communicate with all suppliers. These points should appear together in the report because responsibility was shared. Clear commitments will help the next event more than a summary that presents the organisers as faultless and everyone else as the problem.
