Reading · The Library Cat's Routine

Our library opens at nine on weekdays. Paper comes from plant fibres. Books need dry shelves. Our librarian always checks the windows before she leaves. She usually feeds the library cat outside. The cat often sleeps near the history books. It never reads them. On Fridays, a volunteer cleans its bowl. Is the library quiet? Usually, yes. Does the cat understand the quiet rule? Its loud breakfast requests suggest a different opinion.

The dragon borrows nothing but listens to every story.

Our bags are full, but my aunt always finds space for one more bunch of herbs.

Reading · The Practice Room Agreement

Our music group uses the community room from six to seven on Fridays. We practise there quietly for the first ten minutes. During the session, our leader listens carefully and gives advice. Sami plays the drums well, but he sometimes plays too loudly. We work hard on the final song. After practice, we carry the chairs outside carefully. The neighbours wave from their windows. Our quiet ending is their favourite part of the concert.

Listening · The Table Tennis Schedule

Coach: We train here from five to six on Mondays.
New player: How long do we warm up?
Coach: For ten minutes. Walk slowly at first, then move quickly between the markers.
New player: Do we talk during matches?
Coach: Not during a point. Listen carefully between games. Your partner plays well, so watch her feet.
New player: I work hard, but I don't move fast yet.
Coach: That's fine. Good practice matters more than noisy shoes.
