Reading · The Silent Noticeboard

The noticeboard outside our community centre has been empty since Monday. Usually, it advertises language clubs, repairs and lost cats with surprisingly professional photographs. Several residents think the centre is closing, but the manager has not announced any closure. There are other possible explanations. The printer may be broken, or the volunteer may be away. The online calendar still shows three events for next week, although that information could be old. A cleaner saw a box of new drawing pins in the office yesterday. That detail suggests somebody plans to use the board again, but it does not prove when. I asked two neighbours before writing a message to the manager. One wanted to warn everyone immediately; the other preferred to wait. I chose a question rather than a warning. An empty board might mean a communication problem. It may not mean an empty building.

Listening · The Late Delivery

Mira: Our microphone hasn't arrived. The tracking page says it reached town yesterday, but the parcel could still be at the local office.
Owen: It might be at reception. Our receptionist sometimes accepts packages during lunch, and the message may not have reached us.
Mira: I checked reception. There is a box for the sports club, not ours. The driver may have used the side entrance.
Owen: That entrance is locked today. He might not know the new opening times. Let's contact the delivery office before we blame anyone.
Mira: Agreed. Our event starts tomorrow afternoon, so we still have time. I could ask the music club about a spare microphone.
Owen: Please do. Their equipment may be available, although they have a rehearsal tonight.
Mira: Then we have two tasks: locate the parcel and check a backup. Guessing alone won't make a microphone appear, however confidently we guess.

Speaking

90 soniyada bo‘sh e’lon doskasi sababiga ikki taxmin, har biriga dalil va bitta tekshirish qadamini ayting.

Mezon: Ikki may/might/could taxmini bor. · Dalil va tasdiqlanmagan xulosa ajratiladi. · Bitta may not/might not va amaliy tekshiruv bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda markaz rahbariga yuborish uchun vaziyat tahlili paragrafini yozing: ikki sabab, dalil va keyingi qadam.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Ikki ehtimol dalil bilan bog‘langan. · Aniq keyingi qadam va ehtiyotkor xulosa bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The empty noticeboard may have a simple explanation. The printer could be broken, or the volunteer might be away this week. The online calendar still lists three events, so I do not think we should announce a closure. However, the calendar may not be current. The new drawing pins in the office suggest that someone intends to use the board again. I recommend asking the manager when the next notices will appear. We could also offer to write a temporary notice by hand. This would give residents useful information while we check the facts. A clear question is more helpful than a dramatic rumour.

Qo‘shimcha bank

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

Reading · The Extra Lunches

At noon, the school kitchen had twelve extra lunches. The order sheet listed forty children, and the cook had prepared exactly forty meals. Only twenty-eight children were sitting in the dining room. The assistant first thought the missing group must be on a trip. However, the calendar showed no trip for that day. Then a teacher arrived carrying twelve empty trays. Her class was eating in the garden as part of a lesson about food waste. The lunches could not be unwanted: the class had specifically ordered them that morning. The assistant laughed at his own quick conclusion. Could the location of a meal matter as much as the number of meals? In this case, it did. He added a location column to the daily sheet. Counting carefully had not been enough; the team also needed to know where the children were. A full kitchen can still have an information gap.

Listening · The Wrong Building

Nadia: Could this be the training centre? The number is right, but the sign says Dental Laboratory.
Peter: It can't be our centre. The invitation describes a building with a glass entrance, and this door is wooden.
Nadia: We must be on the wrong street. There are two streets with almost the same name: College Road and College Lane.
Peter: You're right. Our message says Lane. The map search selected Road automatically.
Nadia: The organiser must receive a lot of confused calls. There is a special note about the two addresses at the bottom of the invitation.
Peter: Perhaps, but the note only proves that confusion is possible. It doesn't tell us how many people call.
Nadia: Fair correction. Let's check the walking route. We have twenty minutes, and the real centre is only six minutes away. My confidence arrived before my reading skills today.

Speaking

90 soniyada manzil bo‘yicha ikki kuchli taxmin ayting; sherik dalilning kuchini tekshirsin.

Mezon: Must va can't dalilga mos. · Could bilan bitta savol bor. · Bitta ortiqcha qat’iy xulosa yumshatiladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda tushlikdagi chalkashlikni hamkasblarga tushuntiruvchi tahliliy paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Must va can't kamida bittadan dalil bilan ishlatilgan. · Muammo va aniq tuzatish ayblovsiz tushuntirilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The twelve extra lunches must belong to the class in the garden. Their teacher brought twelve trays, and the class ordered food this morning. The meals can't simply be unwanted. Our first explanation about a school trip was not supported by the calendar. Could our daily sheet prevent this problem next time? I think it could, with a column for each group's eating location. Numbers alone do not explain where people are. The cook prepared the correct quantity, so we should not describe this as a cooking mistake. The problem was communication between the classroom and the kitchen, and a small change could make that communication clearer.

Reading · The Warm Printer

When I entered the library office at seven, the printer was warm and a stack of certificates lay beside it. Nobody was there. The librarian must have printed them recently, I thought. Yet her coat was missing, and she usually arrives after eight. A volunteer might have come early instead. The computer screen showed a document called Garden Awards, but a filename could have remained open from the previous evening. I noticed a handwritten message: 'Please leave these for the breakfast group.' That explained the purpose, although not the person responsible. Someone might be preparing the ceremony downstairs now. I took the certificates to the kitchen and found the caretaker arranging flowers. He had printed them during his early shift. The machine's warmth had been useful evidence of recent activity, but it had not identified the user. A printer can reveal timing without revealing a name.

Listening · A Closed Workshop

Rafi: The workshop door is locked, but I can hear a machine. They might be cutting wood in the back room.
Ella: They must have changed the entrance arrangements. A new sign points to the side gate.
Rafi: Or they could have locked this door just for the delivery. There is a truck outside.
Ella: True. The message on my phone says the session starts at two. I might have missed an update, though.
Rafi: Let's ring the bell at the side gate. We shouldn't stand here inventing a mystery about a perfectly ordinary door.
Ella: Someone is coming. She may be carrying the materials for our class.
Rafi: Yes, she has a box of safety glasses. The sound must have been a demonstration, not a full lesson. Still, we should ask rather than treat that as certain.
Ella: Agreed. Hearing a machine tells us something is happening, not exactly what.

Speaking

90 soniyada printer voqeasiga hozirgi bir taxmin va o‘tmishdagi ikki taxmin ayting; ularning dalilini ko‘rsating.

Mezon: Might be + -ing hozirga tegishli. · Must/might have + V3 o‘tmishga tegishli. · Shaxs va vaqtga oid dalillar aralashtirilmagan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda yopiq ustaxona yonidagi kuzatuvlaringizni ehtiyotkor xulosa bilan yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Hozirgi va o‘tgan taxminning kamida bittadan namunasi bor. · Aniq kuzatuv va tekshirish qadami bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The workshop team might be preparing our materials in the back room. We can hear a machine, and a woman is carrying safety glasses. They may have moved the entrance because a delivery truck is outside the main door. The new sign must have been put there for a reason, but we do not yet know whether the change is permanent. Ella might have missed a message about it. We should ring the side bell and ask where to wait. The sound suggests activity, but it does not prove that our lesson has already started. Checking directly will give us a clearer answer than guessing outside.

Reading · The Missing Booking

Our debate team arrived at the hall and found a yoga class inside. We had booked the space by phone, but nobody had sent written confirmation. The manager checked the system: our request was still marked 'awaiting details'. We couldn't have completed the booking, because the final form was blank. I had assumed the phone conversation was enough. I should have asked for confirmation, and the office should have explained the final step clearly. We shouldn't have invited an audience before checking the room. Fortunately, the library offered us a smaller space. Some teammates wanted to blame one person, but that would have hidden the shared process problem. After the debate, we created a simple checklist with a named person for each stage. The yoga class kept its calm atmosphere; our team gained a practical lesson about paperwork without needing to practise any difficult poses.

Listening · The Deleted Recording

Host: Our interview file is missing. I can't have deleted it this morning; I haven't opened the folder today.
Editor: I moved some files last night. I should have checked the names before moving them.
Host: We shouldn't have used titles like Final, Final New and Really Final. Those names are almost an invitation to confusion.
Editor: I agree. But moving is not deleting. The file could still be in the archive folder.
Host: Here it is, under Tuesday Interview. We should have included the guest's name and the date.
Editor: Let's rename it and make a backup before we edit. I am relieved, but this was avoidable.
Host: So am I. The guest gave us an hour of her time. Losing that would be more serious than losing our tidy desktop.
Editor: I'll write a short naming guide. No file should need to shout 'really final' at its neighbours.

Speaking

90 soniyada bron xatosini ayblovsiz tahlil qiling: imkonsiz taxmin, qilinishi kerak bo‘lgan ish va qilinmasligi kerak bo‘lgan ish.

Mezon: Can't/couldn't have dalil bilan bog‘langan. · Should have va shouldn't have + V3 bor. · Tuzatish shaxsni ayblashdan ko‘ra jarayonga qaratilgan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda yozuv fayli muammosidan keyingi ish tartibini taklif qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Uch o‘tgan modal shakli to‘g‘ri. · Oldingi dalilga mos xulosa va ikki amaliy chora bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We should have named the interview file with the guest's name and the recording date. Titles such as Really Final did not tell us enough. The host can't have deleted the file this morning because she did not open the folder. The editor moved it last night, and it was still safe in the archive. We shouldn't have assumed that a missing file was a deleted file. Before our next interview, we should agree on a naming system and a backup location. One person should check both copies after recording. This will protect the guest's contribution and save the team from another unnecessary search.

Reading · A Festival without Enough Chairs

Our film night attracted more visitors than expected. We could have borrowed chairs from the sports hall, but we decided the thirty seats in our room would be enough. Several people watched from the floor, and one cheerful visitor called it an unusually realistic camping film. The joke helped, but comfort still mattered. Next month, attendance is likely to rise because the local college is sharing our programme. Bad weather is unlikely to reduce numbers much; the event is indoors and close to a bus stop. We will probably need fifty chairs, although we should count registrations before arranging transport. The organiser definitely wants to keep entry free. That makes borrowing more suitable than buying. Our mistake was not a lack of options. We had an option and chose not to use it. A better estimate and an early phone call could prevent a repeat.

Listening · The Train We Didn't Take

Lena: We could have taken the direct train, but we chose the cheaper bus. Now we are arriving an hour later.
Sam: The delay is frustrating, but the price difference paid for lunch. I don't think the decision was completely unreasonable.
Lena: Fair point. Next time, the early train is likely to be busy because the exhibition opens at nine.
Sam: We should probably book seats a week ahead. Tickets are unlikely to become cheaper on the day.
Lena: I definitely don't want another journey with three changes.
Sam: Then let's compare the whole journey, not only the fare. A cheap ticket can cost time and energy.
Lena: Agreed. We still have four hours at the exhibition today, so the trip isn't ruined.
Sam: Exactly. We can learn from the choice without turning one late bus into a national transport disaster.

Speaking

90 soniyada kino kechasi uchun o‘tgan imkon va keyingi safar ehtimolini bog‘lab tavsiya bering.

Mezon: Could have + V3 bajarilmagan imkonni bildiradi. · Likely/unlikely to dan bittasi ishlatiladi. · Probably/definitely o‘rni va qat’iylik darajasi mos.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda keyingi kino kechasi uchun jihoz rejasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · O‘tgan foydalanilmagan imkon va kelajak taxmini farqlangan. · Xarajat hamda qulaylikka oid dalilli tavsiya bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

We could have borrowed extra chairs for the last film night, but we underestimated attendance. Next month's audience is likely to be larger because the college is promoting the event. We will probably need about fifty seats. However, registrations should guide the final number. Rain is unlikely to discourage many visitors because the venue is indoors and near public transport. I definitely support keeping entry free. We should therefore ask the sports hall about borrowing chairs before considering a purchase. One volunteer can count bookings while another arranges collection. This approach uses evidence, protects our small budget and gives visitors a more comfortable evening.

Reading · The Unclaimed Exhibition

Three framed photographs arrived at our youth centre without a sender's note. They showed the old railway bridge, so they might belong to the local history group. However, the group's organiser denied sending them. A delivery label carried yesterday's date, which meant the parcel couldn't have been waiting in our office for weeks. We should have recorded the driver's details, but reception had been busy. The frames were new, and someone must have spent money preparing the pictures. That made throwing them into storage a poor response. We posted a neutral description online without publishing the photographs. By evening, a former member contacted us. She had intended them for next month's exhibition but had forgotten the note. We could have guessed correctly, yet a careful enquiry worked better. Clear labels are likely to become a firm rule for future donations, alongside a rather less official request for readable handwriting.

Listening · The Quiet Ticket App

Manager: Online bookings have dropped, but the theatre may not be losing interest. The ticket app might be failing.
Analyst: The phone bookings are normal. That supports your idea. We should have tested the update before releasing it.
Manager: Could customers be giving up at the payment screen?
Analyst: Possibly. I tried twice, and both payments failed. The app can't be working reliably.
Manager: We could have kept the old version available, but we removed it too soon.
Analyst: The technician is checking it now. She is likely to find the problem today, though I can't promise a time.
Manager: Then we will probably direct customers to phone booking temporarily.
Analyst: Yes, and explain why. Silence may look like indifference. Customers should not need detective skills just to buy a seat for a comedy.
Manager: I'll prepare a brief notice with the phone number and an apology.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada ilova muammosini dalil, ikki taxmin, oldingi xato va vaqtinchalik yechim bilan tushuntiring.

Mezon: Uch turli modal shakli to‘g‘ri. · Bitta taxminning chegarasi aytiladi. · Ikki aniq dalil va amaliy chora bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda nomsiz suratlar kelganda amal qilinadigan tahliliy tavsiya yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Kamida uch modal shakli voqeaga mos. · Dalil, taxmin va kelajak qoidasi aniq ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The photographs might have belonged to several local groups, so guessing the sender was not enough. Yesterday's delivery date showed that they couldn't have been in our office for weeks. We should have recorded the driver's details, although that might not have identified the sender immediately. Publishing a neutral description was a sensible choice because it invited information without exposing the pictures. The former member then confirmed her intention. Future donations are likely to arrive with fewer problems if we request a sender's name and exhibition date. We could also keep a simple arrival log. Careful questions protect both the donation and the relationship with its owner.

The Closed Workshop

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 30 daqiqa; qo‘shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa taxmin; 10 daqiqa mustaqil o‘qish; 12 daqiqa javob; 5 daqiqa dalil tekshiruvi.

The pottery workshop was locked when three students arrived at two. A light was on upstairs, but nobody answered the bell. 'The teacher must have forgotten us,' one student said. Another noticed a note inside the glass door, too far away to read. The third checked their booking message: it said half past two, not two. The teacher might have been preparing upstairs, or the light could have been left on by someone else. Neither possibility was confirmed. The students waited in the café opposite and sent a message. At two twenty-five, the teacher opened the door and apologised for missing the bell. She had been moving clay in the back room. The unreadable note gave the afternoon opening time. The incident showed that a plausible explanation can still be wrong, especially when a small detail in the original evidence has been overlooked.

h-17-1 · Was 'must have forgotten us' justified at two?

Ustoz kaliti: No; the booking was for 2:30 and the light did not establish what the teacher was doing.

Dalil: it said half past two, not two.

h-17-3 · Order: booking check; teacher opens; students ring at two.

Ustoz kaliti: Ring at two → booking check → teacher opens at 2:25.

Dalil: arrived at two. / The third checked their booking message / At two twenty-five, the teacher opened the door

h-17-4 · Why mention the note being too far away to read?

Ustoz kaliti: It explains why the opening-time information was present but unavailable to the waiting students.

Dalil: too far away to read. / The unreadable note gave the afternoon opening time.

Reading · Why the Seed Tray Fails

Our gardening group keeps a notebook of repeated problems. If seedlings get too little light, they grow long and weak. If we water them too heavily, the soil stays wet and the roots struggle. These statements describe regular patterns, not one future experiment. Last month, we moved half the trays to a brighter window and kept the other half on the original shelf. The brighter group grew shorter, stronger stems. However, light was not the only difference: the window area was also cooler. We therefore avoid claiming that our small comparison proves everything. What happens if we change two conditions at once? We cannot easily identify the cause of an improvement. Our next trial will change only the location of the lamp. The notebook has become more valuable than our enthusiastic guesses. Even the tray labelled 'Guaranteed Success' now carries a question mark, which is probably its most scientific feature.

Listening · The Shared Calendar

Trainer: What happens if two people edit the same event without checking each other?
Assistant: We sometimes get conflicting times. If the organiser doesn't name an owner, everyone assumes somebody else will check it.
Trainer: Exactly. If an event has one named owner, questions reach the right person. That doesn't mean nobody else can help.
Assistant: Our volunteers worry that ownership means extra work.
Trainer: It usually means a clear point of contact. If the owner is away, a deputy takes over. We write both names on the calendar.
Assistant: And if the time changes?
Trainer: The owner updates the calendar and sends a message. If people only change the calendar, some participants miss the news.
Assistant: So the system needs a record and a notification.
Trainer: Yes. A perfect calendar is not useful if nobody knows it has changed. Our old one was accurate in the same way a secret is accurate: quietly, and for very few people.

Speaking

90 soniyada ko‘chat tajribasini tushuntiring: uch takroriy sabab–natija va bitta tekshirish savoli.

Mezon: Uch if + Simple, Simple gapi bor. · Bir inkor shart ishlatiladi. · Bir shart savoli va cheklov tushuntiriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda umumiy kalendarni yuritish qoidalarini sabab–natija bilan yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Uch zero conditional ma’noga mos. · Mas’uliyat va xabar berish farqi aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If an event has no named owner, questions often go unanswered. Our calendar should therefore show an organiser and a deputy for every activity. If the organiser is away, the deputy checks messages and updates the details. If a time changes, the responsible person sends a notification as well as editing the calendar. A silent change does not reach people who have already written down the old time. If two volunteers notice conflicting information, they contact the owner before making separate corrections. This system does not prevent teamwork. It makes teamwork clearer by giving everyone a reliable place to ask questions and report problems.

Reading · A Rain Plan for the Street Fair

The street fair committee has finally written a rain plan. If the forecast shows heavy rain on Friday, we will move Saturday's book stalls into the school hall. Food sellers will stay under the covered entrance because cooking is not allowed indoors. If the hall is unavailable, we won't cancel immediately; we will ask the sports centre about its smaller rooms. Some traders dislike changing locations because customers may miss them. The committee will print a simple map if a move becomes necessary. Will volunteers be able to guide visitors if the weather turns suddenly? Two teams have agreed to stand at the original entrances. The plan costs a little extra, but it protects a month of preparation. Nobody can promise sunshine. The chairperson says her official responsibility ends at arranging shelter, not negotiating directly with the clouds. Everyone accepts that reasonable limit on her otherwise ambitious job description.

Listening · The Trial Evening Class

Tutor: If twelve people register by Monday, we'll open the evening class next month.
Learner: Will you run it if only ten people join?
Tutor: We won't decide on numbers alone. If a partner organisation covers the room fee, ten may be enough.
Learner: Some parents can't arrive before seven.
Tutor: If the group prefers a later start, we'll discuss seven thirty with the caretaker. We won't promise that time until the building confirms it.
Learner: That sounds fair. Will there be online materials if somebody misses a lesson?
Tutor: Yes. If a learner is absent, we'll send the tasks, but they will still need to practise with a partner later.
Learner: So flexibility doesn't mean doing nothing.
Tutor: Exactly. An evening course should fit real lives without turning into a collection of unread attachments. Our first job is to find a schedule people can actually keep.

Speaking

90 soniyada yomg‘ir rejasini himoya qiling; sherik ikki if savolini bersin.

Mezon: Ikki real kelajak sharti bor. · Will/won't natijasi to‘g‘ri. · Bir yes/no shart savoliga javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ochiladigan kechki kurs shartlarini izchil tushuntiring.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch real shart/natija bor. · Tasdiqlanmagan vaqt va qatnashish mas’uliyati ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If twelve learners register by Monday, the centre will open an evening course next month. If only ten register, the team will look for help with the room fee before making a final decision. We won't announce a later starting time until the caretaker confirms access to the building. If parents prefer seven thirty, their request will be part of that discussion. Absent learners will receive the lesson tasks, but they will also need partner practice. This arrangement offers flexibility without removing responsibility. A useful course needs both a realistic timetable and regular participation, so registration numbers should not be the only consideration.

Reading · The Repair Voucher

Our neighbourhood repair scheme gives residents a voucher for one basic assessment. Unless you book a time, the mechanic cannot guarantee a same-day check. If you arrive early, wait in the marked area rather than beside the workbench. What should you do if the repair costs more than the voucher covers? Ask for a written estimate before agreeing. Some residents thought the voucher promised a complete free repair, so the organisers changed the information leaflet. The new version explains the difference between assessment and repair in large print. If a part is unavailable, you can take the item home and return later. You do not have to leave it indefinitely. The scheme aims to reduce waste, but it must also respect people's time and budgets. A free assessment is useful only if its limits are clear. Small print should not be the most physically demanding part of fixing a chair.

Listening · A Safe Route Home

Coordinator: What will your group do if the main path floods?
Walker: We'll use the higher path by the school.
Coordinator: Good. Unless the weather improves, don't cross the stream. If you are unsure, call the group leader.
Walker: Can we split into smaller teams if some people walk slowly?
Coordinator: Yes, if each team has an experienced adult and a phone. Keep everyone informed before separating.
Walker: What if a phone has no signal?
Coordinator: Stay together and return to the last marked junction. Don't invent a shortcut. The route card gives the landmarks in order.
Walker: So speed is not our main target.
Coordinator: Exactly. Finishing safely matters more than finishing early. We can change the plan if conditions change, but we shouldn't change it secretly. A group walk is not a competition to discover how many different directions ten people can choose.

Speaking

90 soniyada ta’mirlash taloni shartlarini tushuntiring, what if savoliga maslahat bering.

Mezon: Unless ma’nosi inkor shartiga mos. · If bilan modal va buyruq natijasi bor. · Bir ehtimoliy vaziyatga aniq javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda sayr guruhi uchun tushunarli xavfsiz yo‘l ko‘rsatmasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Unless va ikki if ko‘rsatmasi aniq. · Shartlar manbadagi xavfsiz tartibni saqlaydi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If the main path floods, use the higher route beside the school. Unless the weather improves, do not cross the stream. Call the leader if you are unsure about the conditions. You can divide into smaller teams if each team has an experienced adult and a working phone. Tell the other team before separating. What should you do if there is no signal? Stay together and return to the last marked junction. The route card lists landmarks in order, so keep it accessible. Our aim is a safe shared walk. Arriving early is not a success if part of the group is missing.

Reading · If the Square Had No Cars

Our youth council is discussing an imaginary car-free square. If the town removed parking from the centre, there would be space for trees, benches and a small performance area. Some students see only benefits. A shopkeeper is less certain: if customers could not park nearby, they might shop elsewhere. Another resident argues that people would stay longer if the square felt pleasant. Neither claim is a fact yet. We would need information about deliveries, disabled access and current shopping habits before supporting a permanent change. Would residents accept a trial if it lasted only one Sunday? Several local businesses say they would. That seems more useful than designing an expensive fountain immediately. If we spent the entire budget on a beautiful feature, we wouldn't have money to test practical access. Our dream square needs imagination, but it also needs a way for someone to deliver a crate of tomatoes.

Listening · The Four-Day Club

Chair: Would you support a four-day working week for our community office if the hours were longer?
Volunteer: I would consider it, but I wouldn't support closing on our busiest day. People need help on Fridays.
Chair: If we moved the quiet Wednesday hours to other days, we could keep Friday open.
Volunteer: That would suit some staff. However, if parents worked longer evenings, childcare might become harder.
Chair: True. We would need individual schedules, not one rule for everyone.
Volunteer: Would the public understand the new timetable?
Chair: They would if we explained it clearly and kept the phone line open.
Volunteer: Then I would support a short trial, not an immediate permanent change.
Chair: Agreed. A calendar with fewer workdays is attractive, but it does not automatically create fewer responsibilities. The office plants will still expect somebody to remember them.

If our town removed parking from the square, residents would gain space for trees and seating. People might spend more time there, which could help nearby shops. However, some customers would find access harder if they could not park close to the entrances. I would support a one-day trial before a permanent decision. We would need to protect deliveries and disabled access during that trial. If we spent the budget on a fountain first, we wouldn't learn whether the basic plan worked. A modest experiment would give us evidence about movement, shopping and comfort. Attractive drawings alone would not answer those practical questions.

Reading · A Small Grant, a Large Dream

Our reading club can apply for a small grant this month. If we receive it, we will buy portable lights for evening events. That is a realistic plan with a clear price. Our chair also enjoys a bigger dream: if we owned the empty shop next door, we would open a permanent reading cafe. We do not own it, and the grant would not cover a building. Mixing these two ideas in one application could confuse the funder. What would we do if unlimited money were available? That is an interesting planning question, but it is not this application's question. I told the chair, 'If I were you, I would keep the cafe as a long-term ambition and explain the lights first.' She agreed. A modest request is not a lack of vision. It shows that we understand the next useful step. Even a grand library needs somebody to pay attention to the light switch.

Listening · Choosing a Training Course

Aisha: If I get a place on the local course, I'll study after work. The deadline is Friday.
Ben: What would you do if you could study anywhere?
Aisha: I'd choose a full-time design course abroad, but I can't leave my job now.
Ben: If I were you, I would compare the local course with your actual weekly schedule.
Aisha: I have. If the classes finish at eight, I can catch the last direct bus.
Ben: And if they finished at ten?
Aisha: I would need a taxi, which would make the course too expensive.
Ben: Then transport is part of the decision, not a small detail.
Aisha: Exactly. My dream course is useful for understanding my interests. The real course needs to fit my budget and journey home.
Ben: Sensible. Ambition is excellent, but it should not strand you at a bus stop every Tuesday.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada kurs tanlovini real reja va xayoliy orzu sifatida ajrating; bitta maslahat bering.

Mezon: First va second conditional ma’nosi aniq. · If I were you bilan asosli maslahat bor. · Savolga vaqt/xarajat dalili bilan javob beriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda klub grant arizasi mazmuniga maslahat paragrafini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Real va noreal shartning ikkalasi mavjud. · If boshida kelganda vergul, oxirida kelganda tabiiy tartib saqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If the club receives the small grant, it will be able to buy portable lights for evening meetings. That is a clear and affordable request. If the club owned the neighbouring shop, it could create a reading cafe, but that situation is only a dream at present. If I were the chair, I would explain the lighting project first and mention the cafe only as a future ambition. The funder needs to understand what this particular money will achieve. A focused application does not reduce the club's vision. It connects that vision to a practical next step with a realistic cost and an immediate benefit.

Reading · A Tool Library Proposal

Our street association wants a tool library. If people share rarely used equipment, they save storage space and avoid buying the same things repeatedly. That general benefit sounds convincing, but borrowing needs rules. If the pilot opens next month, members will book tools through a simple paper register. Unless a volunteer checks an item on return, damage may go unnoticed. One resident imagines a digital system with automatic lockers. If we had a larger budget, that would be attractive, but we currently have enough money only for shelves and basic repairs. The proposal therefore begins with twenty donated tools and two opening evenings a week. Would more residents join if collection were available on Saturday? The committee will ask before fixing the schedule. A useful service must match people's lives. There is little point in sharing a drill if its opening hours require everyone to become an expert in rearranging their working week.

Listening · The Shared Lunch Decision

Facilitator: If people bring dishes without labels, guests with allergies cannot choose safely. That is our first rule: label ingredients.
Member: If everyone agrees, we'll hold the lunch next Thursday. What will we do if it rains?
Facilitator: We'll use the downstairs room. Unless the lift is working, we won't use the upper floor.
Member: Good. If we had a professional kitchen, we could cook together, but our room only has a kettle.
Facilitator: Then food should arrive ready to eat. If I were you, I would choose something simple to transport.
Member: Would you include neighbours outside the association?
Facilitator: Yes, if we had enough places. For this pilot, we'll reserve ten seats for them and review attendance afterwards.
Member: That balances welcome and capacity.

Facilitator: Exactly. A community lunch needs generosity, but it also needs enough chairs and accurate information about the mysterious green sauce.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada asbob kutubxonasi uchun qoida, real ishga tushirish rejasi va kelajak farazini taklif qiling.

Mezon: Uch shart turi ma’nosi ajratilgan. · Unless yoki maslahat qolipi bor. · Budjetga mos asos va e’tirozga javob bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda asbob kutubxonasini qo‘llab-quvvatlovchi, cheklovini tan oluvchi paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Qoida, reja va farazning har biri bor. · Ikki dalil va aniq keyingi qadam bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If neighbours share tools, they save money and space. I support starting a small tool library with the twenty donated items. If the pilot opens next month, a paper register will be enough for bookings. Unless somebody checks each returned tool, the service may miss damage and disappoint the next borrower. If we had more money, automatic lockers would offer flexible collection, but they are not our first priority. We should ask residents whether Saturday opening would help them. A simple service with suitable hours would be more useful than an impressive system that few people can access. The pilot should test demand before expanding.

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 30 daqiqa; qo‘shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa taxmin; 10 daqiqa mustaqil o‘qish; 12 daqiqa javob; 5 daqiqa dalil tekshiruvi.

Our clinic is considering a shaded waiting area outside. If metal seats stand in direct sun, they become uncomfortable. If the council approves the plan, volunteers will install a canopy next month. The receptionist supports the idea because the indoor room is crowded on market days. A nurse is less certain: if patients wait outside, staff may not hear them ask for help. She suggests a bell and clear signs. One resident says that if she had more money, she would donate a water dispenser too. That is an imagined contribution, not a confirmed offer. The clinic will try the canopy for four weeks before making it permanent. If the trial reveals new difficulties, the team will adjust the arrangement. The aim is to increase comfort without making it harder for vulnerable patients to contact staff.

Reading · The Poster with No Address

Our free repair event had tools, volunteers and a cheerful poster. Unfortunately, the poster gave the date but not the address. We shared it online on Wednesday and waited for a busy Saturday. Only regular visitors came. If we had included the address, new residents would have found us more easily. If one person had checked the poster as an outsider, the omission would probably have been obvious. We had all worked in the centre for years, so its location felt like common knowledge. The mistake was not a lack of enthusiasm; it was an assumption about our audience. After the event, we asked two newcomers to review our next announcement. They also wanted bus information and a contact number. If we hadn't made the first mistake, we might not have noticed these wider needs. That does not make the mistake desirable, but it gives the disappointing afternoon a useful consequence.

Listening · The Late Team Entry

Captain: If we had submitted our entry on Thursday, we would have met the deadline. I left it until Friday evening.
Member: And if I hadn't assumed you were handling payment, I would have checked it myself. We both missed a step.
Captain: The form was ready, but the payment link closed at five. I thought it stayed open until midnight.
Member: The rules stated five clearly. We should separate the deadline from the day in our checklist.
Captain: Agreed. If our reminder had included the time, we wouldn't have arrived at a closed page.
Member: We can still volunteer at the tournament. That won't replace competing, but we can learn how the event runs.
Captain: Let's do that. I don't want our whole month to become a story about one button we didn't press.
Member: Then next time, one person submits and another confirms. Trust is useful; a receipt is useful too.

Speaking

90 soniyada afishadagi xatoni ikki muqobil o‘tgan natija orqali tushuntiring.

Mezon: Ikki if + had V3, would have V3 bor. · Bitta inkor shart yoki natija bor. · Sabab va oqibat vaqt jihatdan mos.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda afisha muammosi bo‘yicha foydali retrospektiv paragraf yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Ikki o‘tgan noreal shart to‘g‘ri. · Ayblov o‘rniga aniq jarayon tuzatishi taklif qilingan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If we had added the address to our poster, more newcomers would have found the repair event. We knew the building well and forgot that other people did not share that knowledge. If we hadn't asked newcomers to review the next announcement, we might have missed their need for bus details and a phone number too. Our future review should therefore include someone outside the organising team. A checklist can cover date, time, location, transport and contact information. The quiet event was disappointing, but blaming the designer alone would not improve our process. The whole team approved the poster, so the whole team should support the correction.

Reading · The Interview We Almost Cancelled

A local historian agreed to speak at our youth club, but her train was cancelled. We nearly abandoned the session. Instead, one volunteer suggested a phone interview through a speaker. Would we have tried that if our audience had already arrived? Probably not; the extra hour gave us time to test the sound. What might have happened if we had cancelled immediately? Some visitors might have lost interest in future events, although we cannot know that for certain. The remote format had disadvantages: questions were slower, and the historian could not show her maps clearly. However, we recorded the audio with her permission and later added photographs of the maps. If we had insisted on a perfect live event, we could have missed a useful alternative. The result was not identical to our original plan. It was a different event with different strengths, including a historian speaking from her kitchen beside an occasionally opinionated kettle.

Listening · The Unchosen Exhibition Space

Curator: Would we have attracted more visitors if we had used the station hall?
Artist: We might have, because more people pass through it. But many would have been rushing for trains.
Curator: What could we have done to encourage them to stop?
Artist: We could have displayed fewer pieces with larger labels. Our detailed notes suited the quiet library better.
Curator: So the station wasn't automatically a better choice.
Artist: Exactly. If we had wanted brief encounters, it might have worked well. We wanted visitors to spend time with the stories.
Curator: The library gave us that, though attendance was smaller.
Artist: Next time, we could use a small station display to invite people to the main exhibition.
Curator: A combination rather than a competition between venues.
Artist: Yes. The best room depends on the experience we want, not just the number of shoes passing the doorway.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada bekat va kutubxona ko‘rgazmasini muhokama qiling; ikki o‘tgan faraz savoli bering.

Mezon: Would … have … if savoli bor. · What could/might … have savoli bor. · Could/might natijasi aniq bo‘lmagan deb tushuntiriladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda bekat varianti haqidagi farazni muvozanatli tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · O‘tgan faraz savoli va could/might javobi bor. · Qatnashuv va chuqur o‘qish mezonlari farqlangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Would the exhibition have reached more people if it had been in the station? It might have, but passing a display is not the same as studying it. We could have used larger labels and fewer works to suit hurried travellers. However, that would have changed the experience we wanted. The library offered a quiet place for reading personal stories. If we had chosen the station only for its foot traffic, we might have lost that depth. A future station display could introduce the project and direct interested people to the library. This would connect broad visibility with the opportunity for a longer visit.

Reading · The Skill That Opened a Door

Two years ago, I joined a free spreadsheet course because a friend needed company. Today, I manage bookings for a community sports centre. If I hadn't taken that course, I wouldn't feel confident with the booking system now. The connection is clear: an old decision supports a present skill. Another connection works in the opposite direction. I am naturally comfortable speaking to strangers. If I were less confident with people, I wouldn't have volunteered to explain the new system at last month's meeting. Neither statement means my career was inevitable. Other people helped, and I still make mistakes. Last week, I briefly booked a room for a meeting of zero people, which was at least easy to organise. Looking back helps me identify useful habits, not write a heroic story about myself. A small opportunity can matter later, especially when we keep practising the skill after the original course ends.

Listening · The Bike and the Missed Bus

Zara: If I had repaired my bicycle last weekend, I wouldn't be waiting for this bus now.
Imran: Would you be cycling today if the weather were worse?
Zara: Probably not. But the weather is fine, and my tyre is still flat.
Imran: I understand. If I were better at planning, I would have bought my train ticket before the cheap seats disappeared yesterday.
Zara: So your present habit affected a past choice, while my past delay affects this morning.
Imran: Exactly. Neither of us needs a lecture; we need one practical change.
Zara: I'll book the repair today rather than promise to become a completely different person.
Imran: And I'll set a ticket reminder. I am good at remembering concerts but apparently less talented at remembering how to reach them.
Zara: Small systems might help more than dramatic regrets. For now, at least the bus is finally coming.

Speaking

90 soniyada ikki vaqt yo‘nalishidagi bittadan hayotiy faraz va amaliy yechim ayting.

Mezon: O‘tgan sababdan hozirgi natija to‘g‘ri. · Hozirgi xususiyatdan o‘tgan natija to‘g‘ri. · Now/yesterday kabi vaqt tayanchi aniq.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda o‘rganilgan ko‘nikmaning hozirgi foydasi va odatning o‘tgan qarorga ta’sirini tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Ikki yo‘nalishdagi mixed conditional bor. · Vaqt munosabati va cheklangan xulosa aniq.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

If I hadn't joined the spreadsheet course, I wouldn't be comfortable managing bookings now. Practice after the course made that knowledge useful. My confidence with people also affected an earlier decision. If I were more nervous about speaking, I wouldn't have explained the system at last month's meeting. These connections show two directions between past events and present circumstances. They do not prove that one course explains every success. Colleagues helped me, and I still need to improve. My next step is to document common booking errors and practise checking them. Reflection is useful when it leads to a specific habit rather than a perfect story about the past.

Reading · The Courtyard at Midnight

Our apartment courtyard is popular in summer, but late conversations echo between the walls. I wish the benches were farther from the bedrooms. That describes a present situation I cannot easily change. I also wish I had raised the problem politely at the residents' meeting last month. Instead, I posted an angry message at midnight, and the discussion became personal. Several neighbours replied that they had nowhere else to meet after work. Their need is real, even if the noise is difficult for others. I wish everyone would lower their voices after ten, and I wish our group chat would stop turning every request into a battle. We are now discussing a quiet period and a different seating arrangement. If only I had begun with those practical suggestions. A complaint can express a genuine problem while still using an unhelpful method. The courtyard needs both conversation and sleep, not a winner.

Listening · The Group Project Regret

Maya: I wish we had divided the project earlier. Now three people are editing the same section.
Leon: I wish our shared document had clearer headings. I can't tell which comments are still relevant.
Maya: And I wish Dan would reply to messages before changing the slides. His ideas are good, but the timing creates confusion.
Leon: Let's avoid making him the entire problem. I changed two charts without telling anyone yesterday.
Maya: You're right. If only we had agreed on a review process at the start.
Leon: We can still assign sections today and freeze changes an hour before the presentation.
Maya: Good. I wish we had more time, but another complaint won't create it.
Leon: Exactly. Let's make the remaining time useful. Our slides don't need six people moving the same comma around like an expensive piece of furniture.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada shovqin muammosiga hozirgi istak, afsus va o‘zgarish talabi ayting; murosali yechim bering.

Mezon: Wish + Past Simple hozirga mos. · Wish + Past Perfect o‘tgan afsus. · Wish + would boshqaning o‘zgarishi uchun.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda guruh loyihasidan keyingi afsus va tuzatish rejasini yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Uch wish shakli ma’nosi to‘g‘ri. · O‘z mas’uliyati va ikki tuzatish bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish we had divided the project into clear sections at the beginning. Three people are now editing the same material, and useful work is being repeated. I also wish the document had clearer headings so that current comments were easy to find. I wish team members would explain major changes before making them, but that request includes me too. Yesterday, I changed two charts without telling anyone. We should assign one owner to each section and stop editing an hour before the presentation. We cannot recover the lost time, but we can use the remaining time more carefully. Regret is helpful only when it changes our next action.

Reading · The Accessible Garden Visit

Our class is planning a garden visit with several older neighbours. One resident said, 'I wish I could walk the whole route, but my knee makes that difficult.' The organiser replied that shorter routes were available. We hope the weather stays dry, but we will bring portable seats even if the forecast is good. Comfort should not depend on luck. The garden manager allows us to use the sheltered terrace provided we leave it clean. Volunteers can borrow wheelchairs as long as they return them before closing time. These conditions are practical, not signs of reluctance to welcome us. A student first suggested cancelling the longer walk for everyone. However, residents preferred a choice of routes and a shared tea break afterwards. Inclusion does not always mean doing exactly the same activity. It can mean giving people enough information and support to choose. Our plan now has more options and fewer assumptions about what others need.

Listening · The Borrowed Recording Room

Singer: I wish I could record at home, but the traffic noise is too loud.
Technician: You can use this room as long as you book a slot and bring your own memory card.
Singer: I hope the room is free on Thursday. Can my friend join me?
Technician: Yes, provided you keep the group to three people. Even if you finish early, please tell reception before leaving.
Singer: Understood. I wish I had a better microphone too.
Technician: The room includes one. Technique matters more than buying everything immediately.
Singer: That's reassuring. I hope we get a clean recording, but I know it may take several attempts.
Technician: Exactly. A first session is also practice. You don't need to turn every small mistake into proof that you can't sing.
Singer: Good. My notebook has room for notes, not a dramatic resignation speech.

Speaking

90 soniyada bog‘ tashrifi uchun umid, amalga oshmayotgan qobiliyat va ikki foydalanish shartini ayting.

Mezon: Hope real kelajak uchun ishlatiladi. · Wish could imkon yetishmasligini bildiradi. · As long as/provided/even if dan ikkitasi to‘g‘ri.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda studiyadan foydalanish rejasi va shaxsiy umidni yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Wish va hope farqi aniq. · Uch shart manba talablarini saqlaydi.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish I could record at home, but traffic makes the room unsuitable. I hope the community studio is available on Thursday. We can use it as long as we book a slot and bring a memory card. My friend can join me provided there are no more than three people in our group. Even if we finish early, we need to inform reception before leaving. I also hope we produce a clear recording, although the session will be valuable practice if we need several attempts. The studio provides a microphone, so I do not need to buy one immediately. Preparation matters more than owning every piece of equipment.

Reading · A Walk with Too Many Steps

Our local history walk attracted thirty residents, but the route included a staircase we had overlooked. Two visitors could not continue. If we had checked access with a wheelchair user beforehand, we would have noticed the problem. I wish we had asked people about their needs instead of assuming that a short distance was automatically easy. If our information sheet were clearer, visitors would have known about the steps before registering. The guide changed the route and brought the group back together at the market, but some trust was lost. We now hope the next walk will rebuild it. A volunteer offered to test alternative routes as long as the team shared the full plan early. We accepted. The aim is not to advertise a perfect service after one correction. It is to show that feedback changes decisions. A route is not accessible merely because an enthusiastic organiser can walk it quickly.

Listening · The Exhibition Feedback Meeting

Chair: I wish we had placed the labels lower. Several visitors couldn't read them comfortably.
Designer: If I had seen the room with the chairs in place, I would have noticed the height problem.
Visitor: And if the lighting were brighter, I would have stayed longer yesterday. The pictures were interesting, but reading was tiring.
Chair: Would larger print have helped as well?
Visitor: Yes, it might have. I don't expect every problem to disappear immediately, but I hope the next display is easier to use.
Designer: We can test a new label provided you are willing to comment on it.
Visitor: Gladly. Even if we disagree about the style, we can check whether the words are readable.
Chair: Good. Our success should depend on visitors understanding the stories, not on the labels looking elegant from across an empty room.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada foydalanish qulayligi xatosini tahlil qiling: o'tgan afsus, hozirgi natija va kelgusi hamkorlik sharti.

Mezon: Third va mixed conditional farqlangan. · Wish yoki hope ma’noga mos. · Foydalanuvchi daliliga tayangan tuzatish bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ko‘rgazma yorliqlarini yaxshilash bo‘yicha fikr yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida uch modul shakli to‘g‘ri. · Dalil va sinov mezoni ajratilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

I wish we had tested the exhibition labels with visitors before opening. If we had placed chairs in the room during the design stage, we would have noticed that some labels were too high. If the lighting were better, visitors would find reading less tiring now. Larger print might also have helped yesterday, but we should test it instead of guessing. I hope the next display is more comfortable to use. We can ask visitors to review a sample provided we give them enough time. Even if opinions about style differ, readability is a shared practical goal. Attractive design should support understanding rather than compete with it.

120 daqiqalik uy vazifasining reading/listening qismi: 30 daqiqa; qo'shimcha vaqt emas. 3 daqiqa taxmin; 10 daqiqa mustaqil o'qish; 12 daqiqa javob; 5 daqiqa dalil tekshiruvi.

The history club advertised a 'walk for everyone', but its route included three steep staircases. Rafiq, who uses a walking stick, left after the first stop. The organiser later said, 'If we had checked the route with him, we would have chosen the riverside path.' The club had measured distance but had not inspected steps. Now it wishes it had asked about access before printing the leaflets. If the old route were easier, Rafiq might still join next month's walk; however, changing the publicity alone will not remove the stairs. The group is arranging a route inspection with several residents. Rafiq has agreed to advise them, though he does not want to speak for everyone with a mobility difficulty. A better plan needs both practical changes and more than one person's perspective.

h-19-1 · What specific planning gap made the claim 'for everyone' unreliable?

Ustoz kaliti: They measured distance but did not inspect steps/access.

Dalil: The club had measured distance but had not inspected steps.

h-19-2 · Distinguish the past regret from the present hypothetical condition.

Ustoz kaliti: Regret: wishes it had asked about access. Present condition: if old route were easier.

Dalil: Now it wishes it had asked about access / If the old route were easier

h-19-3 · Why is changing the leaflet insufficient?

Ustoz kaliti: It does not remove stairs or make the route physically accessible.

Dalil: changing the publicity alone will not remove the stairs.

h-19-4 · Can Rafiq's approval establish that the route suits everyone?

Ustoz kaliti: No; he does not represent everyone with mobility difficulties.

Dalil: he does not want to speak for everyone with a mobility difficulty.

Reading · Where the Cups Go

At our community cafe, reusable cups are collected at a separate counter. Staff check each cup, and damaged ones are removed from service. The remaining cups are washed, dried and stored upside down. This process sounds simple, but customers often leave cups in the paper recycling bin. A sign saying 'Staff collect cups here' was replaced with 'Cups are collected here', beside a large arrow. The new wording puts the object in focus, which helps people looking for somewhere to return it. However, grammar alone cannot fix poor placement. The first sign stood behind a plant, where it was almost invisible. We moved it to eye level and watched what happened over three busy afternoons. Incorrect returns fell noticeably. We cannot separate the effect of wording from the effect of position, but together the changes helped. The plant still has a place in the cafe; it no longer manages customer information.

Listening · A Day at the Repair Hub

Presenter: What happens to a donated bicycle when it arrives here?
Mechanic: Every bicycle is labelled with a number. Its brakes and tyres are checked before anybody rides it.
Presenter: Who decides what needs replacing?
Mechanic: A trained volunteer does the assessment. Useful parts are kept, and worn parts are replaced. We record the work on a card.
Presenter: So the bicycle's history stays with it.
Mechanic: Exactly. The card is given to the new owner. People deserve to know what has been checked, not just hear that the bike looks shiny.
Presenter: Does the system slow you down?
Mechanic: A little at first. But clear records save repeated checks and questions later. Speed is not the only measure of useful work.
Presenter: Your cards sound less exciting than the bicycles, but equally important.
Mechanic: They are. A bell makes noise; a record makes responsibility visible.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Every donated bicycle is given a number when it reaches the repair hub. A trained volunteer checks its brakes, tyres and other important parts. Damaged components are replaced, while useful ones are kept. The work is recorded on a card, and that card is passed to the new owner. This process takes time, but it makes the repair history clear. A clean bicycle is not necessarily a checked bicycle. Records help the team avoid repeating work and give owners useful information. The system therefore supports both efficiency and responsibility. Volunteers should see the card as part of the repair, not as optional paperwork after the interesting work.

Reading · A Bench with a Second Life

The long bench outside our library was made from an old classroom door. A local carpenter built it during last summer's repair festival. Today, it is used by readers, bus passengers and people who simply need a rest. Is the bench treated with a special coating? Yes, it is protected against rain. It is not painted every month; volunteers inspect the surface and refresh the coating when necessary. Where is similar furniture made? The workshop behind the library produces small items from donated wood. The project is not presented as a solution to all waste. Some materials are unsafe or too damaged to reuse. Still, the bench offers a visible example of a useful second life. A small label tells its history. Several former pupils enjoy sitting on it, perhaps because it is the first classroom door that has ever encouraged them to stay outside for longer.

Listening · The Local Soap Stall

Customer: Is this soap made here in town?
Seller: Yes. It is produced in a small workshop near the river. The business was started by two sisters three years ago.
Customer: Is it tested on animals?
Seller: No, it isn't. The supplier documents are available on our website. You should check those details rather than rely only on a friendly face at a stall.
Customer: I appreciate that. Is the wrapping recyclable?
Seller: The paper is, but the small label is not accepted by our local collection service. We are looking for an alternative.
Customer: So the packaging isn't completely recyclable yet.
Seller: Correct. We don't want to hide that limit behind a green design.
Customer: That's more useful than a perfect claim.
Seller: We think so. Good soap should clean your hands, not wash important details out of the conversation.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Present Passive tasdiq/inkor va Past Passive bor. · Loyiha foydasi va chegarasi ko‘rsatilgan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

This bench was built during last summer's repair festival from an old classroom door. It is now used by readers and other people passing the library. The wood is protected against rain, but the surface still needs regular checks. It is not painted automatically every month. Volunteers renew the coating when it is necessary. Similar furniture is made in the workshop behind the library. Not all donated wood is suitable, because some pieces are damaged or unsafe. The bench does not solve the whole problem of waste. It gives people a clear local example of reuse, with a history they can read while they rest.

Reading · The Newsletter That Never Arrived

Our residents' newsletter was not delivered to three buildings last week. At first, the editor assumed the volunteers had forgotten them. Was the route map checked before delivery? Yes, it was, and all three buildings appeared on it. Were enough copies printed? The printer's record confirmed that they were. The real problem was at the entrance: new security codes had not reached the delivery team. Copies were left at the management office instead, but no notice explained where residents could collect them. The team had completed part of the task without completing the communication. We changed the checklist to include access details and a fallback message. The editor also apologised for the early accusation. A missing newsletter does not automatically prove a careless volunteer. Asking precise questions about each stage produced a fairer explanation than turning the delivery bag upside down and hoping responsibility would fall out with the spare copies.

Listening · Checking the Cancelled Lesson

Parent: Was yesterday's music lesson cancelled because the teacher was ill?
Administrator: No. It wasn't cancelled for that reason. The hall was closed after a small water leak.
Parent: Were families informed before they left home?
Administrator: Messages were sent at noon, but five phone numbers were incorrect. Those families weren't reached.
Parent: My number changed last month. Was the new one added?
Administrator: It was written on a paper form, but it wasn't entered into the contact list. I'm sorry.
Parent: Thank you for explaining. What happens now?
Administrator: We are checking every number and confirming the replacement lesson by phone.
Parent: That sounds sensible. A message marked 'sent' is not the same as a message received.
Administrator: Exactly. Our system counted outgoing messages, not successful contact. We need to measure the result families actually experience, rather than celebrate a busy send button.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada yetkazilmagan xabarning sababini Past Passive savollar orqali tekshiring.

Mezon: Uch Was/Were savoli bor. · Ikki wasn't/weren't javobi dalilga mos. · Yuborish va qabul qilish farqi aytiladi.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda dars bekor bo‘lishi haqidagi xabar jarayonini xolis tahlil qiling.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Past Passive inkor va savol to‘g‘ri. · Kamida uch dalil va jarayon bo‘yicha tavsiya bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The music lesson was cancelled because the hall had a water leak, not because the teacher was ill. Messages were sent at noon, but five families were not reached because their phone numbers were wrong. One parent's new number was recorded on paper but was not added to the main contact list. Was the notification process successful? Only partly. Sending a message did not guarantee that families received it. The centre should check contact details regularly and confirm urgent changes through another channel when necessary. The replacement lesson is now being confirmed by phone. This correction addresses the communication gap rather than blaming parents for missing a message.

Qo‘shimcha bank

Faqat asosiy vazifa tugasa. Qo‘shimcha bank 120 daqiqaga qo‘shilmaydi; bugungi grammatik chegarani kengaytirmang.

Reading · The Library behind the Screens

Our library is open during renovation, but the ground floor is being reorganised. New shelves are being installed near the entrance, and the children's corner is being moved upstairs. The computers are not being replaced; they are being stored temporarily in the meeting room. Some visitors worry that 'temporary' means a service will quietly disappear. To address that concern, the library displays a weekly progress board with photographs and expected dates. Is the lift being checked before the children's activities move? Yes, an engineer is inspecting it this week. Parents with pushchairs need that information as much as they need a timetable. The work is noisy and occasionally inconvenient, but vague reassurance would make it worse. The librarian says visitors can tolerate a drill more easily than an unexplained barrier. Clear notices do not remove disruption. They help people decide when to visit and what they can use.

Listening · The Roadworks Update

Reporter: Why is one side of the market road being closed this week?
Engineer: A damaged pipe is being replaced underneath it. The surface is being removed in short sections so shops can keep some access.
Reporter: Are deliveries being redirected?
Engineer: Yes, morning deliveries are being sent through the service lane. Pedestrians are using the marked walkway.
Reporter: Some traders say the signs are hard to see.
Engineer: New signs are being printed today. The route itself isn't being changed again; only the information is being improved.
Reporter: When will you publish the next update?
Engineer: Tomorrow afternoon. We cannot promise a finishing date until we inspect the final section.
Reporter: So the message is progress with limits.
Engineer: Exactly. We would rather explain uncertainty than announce a confident date and miss it. A bright sign is useful only if its information is as clear as its colour.

Speaking

90 soniyada kutubxona holati haqida yangilanish bering: uch ish, bir o‘zgarmayotgan xizmat va bir savol.

Mezon: Uch is/are being + V3 bor. · Inkor va savol shakli to‘g‘ri. · Aniq ma’lumot va noma’lum muddat ajratilgan.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda ta’mir vaqtida kutubxonaga keluvchilar uchun izohli e’lon paragrafi yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z yozilgan. · Kamida to‘rtta Continuous Passive bor. · O‘quvchiga kerakli xizmat va tekshirish qadami bor.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

The library remains open while the ground floor is being reorganised. New shelves are being installed near the entrance, and the children's area is being moved upstairs. The computers are not being replaced. They are being kept in the meeting room until the work is complete. The lift is being checked this week to support access for families and other visitors. A progress board shows photographs and expected dates, but some details may change after inspection. Please check that board before planning a long visit. The work causes inconvenience, and clear information cannot remove it entirely. It can help everyone choose a suitable time and use the available services.

Reading · The New Booking System Is Almost Ready

The community centre's new booking system has been tested by twelve volunteers. Several confusing buttons have been renamed, and a large-print guide has been prepared. However, the payment feature has not been approved yet, so the system is not ready for public use. Has the old booking method been removed? No. Telephone bookings are still available, and staff are keeping a paper record during the transition. The project leader wants to announce success, but the volunteers argue that progress and completion are different things. One important task remains unfinished even though many smaller tasks have been completed. Their report lists what has changed, what still needs checking and who will make the final decision. This is less exciting than a banner saying 'Finished!', but more useful to users. A system should not graduate from testing simply because everyone is tired of talking about it. Readiness needs evidence, not an enthusiastic exclamation mark.

Listening · The Archive Opening

Journalist: Has the photo collection been digitised completely?
Archivist: Most of it has been scanned, but forty fragile photographs haven't been processed yet.
Journalist: Have the owners' names been checked?
Archivist: Yes. The names have been compared with the donation records. Some dates are still uncertain, and they have been labelled as estimates.
Journalist: Why not leave those dates out?
Archivist: An approximate date can help, provided readers know its limits. We don't want a guess to look like a verified fact.
Journalist: Has the online gallery been opened?
Archivist: Only to our review group. Public access hasn't been switched on yet.
Journalist: So the work is close, but not complete.
Archivist: Exactly. Preserving history includes preserving uncertainty. Otherwise, a neat caption can accidentally create a story that never happened, which would make our archive very organised and rather unreliable.

Speaking

Ikki daqiqada loyiha holatini tugagan, tugamagan va qaror kutayotgan bandlarga ajrating.

Mezon: Has/have been + V3 to‘g‘ri. · Hali tugamagan ish inkorda aytiladi. · Bir Have/Has … been savoli bor.

Writing

100–120 so‘zda raqamli arxiv ishining hozirgi holati haqida yozing.

Mezon: 100–120 so‘z bor. · Tasdiq, inkor va savol Perfect Passive mavjud. · Tugallanish va rivojlanish farqi asoslangan.

Writing namuna — urinishdan keyin

Most photographs have been scanned, and the owners' names have been checked against donation records. Forty fragile pictures have not been processed yet because they need special care. Uncertain dates have been marked as estimates rather than presented as verified facts. Has the gallery been opened to everyone? Not yet. Access has only been given to the review group. This limited release allows problems to be found before the public launch. The remaining work should be explained clearly, without describing the whole project as a failure. Equally, substantial progress should not be confused with completion. An accurate archive needs honest information about both its contents and its preparation.

Reading · A Drinking Fountain Returns

The drinking fountain in our park was installed twenty years ago, but it stopped working last spring. A damaged valve was found during an inspection. The fountain is now being repaired, and the surrounding path is being levelled for easier access. New water tests have been completed, although the final result has not been published yet. Until then, the fountain is not used by the public. Some residents think the delay proves the project is badly managed. Others point out that safe operation requires more than a shiny tap. The council's update gives dates for completed work and explains the remaining test. It could still be clearer about the expected reopening. Our residents' group has requested a weekly update rather than a promise without evidence. The fountain is a small facility, but the discussion reveals a larger issue: trust grows when people can distinguish work in progress from work that is genuinely ready.

Listening · The Community Kitchen Inspection

Inspector: The kitchen is cleaned every evening, correct?
Manager: Yes. The cleaning record is signed by the closing volunteer. Last week, a damaged shelf was replaced.
Inspector: Has the new fridge been checked?
Manager: Yes, its temperature has been monitored for three days. The results are in this folder.
Inspector: What is happening near the back door?

Manager: A handwashing sink is being installed. That corner isn't being used for food preparation during the work.
Inspector: Good. I can see the practical changes. One record still needs a date.
Manager: I'll complete it with the volunteer who did the check, rather than guess.
Inspector: Exactly. A blank date should lead to a question, not creative handwriting.
Manager: We want the paperwork to describe the kitchen honestly.
Inspector: Then it becomes useful evidence. Clean surfaces and accurate records support each other; neither replaces the other.

The park fountain was installed twenty years ago and stopped working last spring. A damaged valve was identified, and repairs are now being carried out. The path is also being improved for easier access. Water tests have been completed, but the final result has not been published. The fountain is therefore not open to the public yet. These facts show progress, but they do not establish a reopening date. Residents need regular updates about the remaining steps. The council should explain the next decision and publish the result when it is available. A clear weekly notice would be more useful than either silence or an unsupported promise.

Every donated kettle at the reuse centre is checked before it is offered to a new owner. A volunteer records the model number, but electrical testing is carried out by a trained technician. Last month several labels were damaged during cleaning. The kettles had been tested, yet the results could not be matched confidently to individual machines. They were removed from the display until new checks were completed. Now a duplicate record is kept in the office. Customers are told what was tested and when, rather than simply being assured that an item is 'fine'. The centre has not found evidence that the affected kettles were dangerous. The problem was the missing link between each object and its test result. Reliable records make an assurance checkable; they do not turn used equipment into something guaranteed never to fail.
